KNOX SUGGESTS JAPANESE FLEET MAY RETURN FOR ROUND THREE OF SOLOMON ISLANDS BATTLE

Allies Point Two Spearheads At German Army in Tunisia

Nazi Report Says Allies Reach Area

Allies Give No Indication Battle Is Joined; Bad Weather Lessens Aerial Activity

Drive Is Delayed

Nazi Rear Guard Action Delays Pursuit of Rommel

(By The Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's air-borne invaders of Tunisia were reported to have been driven back today in their first clash with the vanguard of a powerful American-British expeditionary force driving into the French North African protectorate.

An Algiers radio broadcast said the Nazi setback came in a skirmish with Allied reconnaissance forces, spearheading a thrust by perhaps 150,000 American and British soldiers.

Other British-American troop columns were reported sweeping into Tunisia from the south.

All signs pointed to an imminent showdown battle.

London, Nov. 17 (AP)—A German report that British and American motorized forces have reached the southern Tunisian border area suggested today that the Allies might be aiming two armored spearheads into Tunisia, one toward Bizerte and Tunis along the coast, and the other through desert and mountain trails directly toward Tripoli to trap Axis forces in North Africa.

There was no word from Allied sources that the battle yet was joined, but German broadcasts said Nazi planes bombed British and American mobile columns sweeping along the coastal road from Algeria to Bizerte and in the southern border area of Tunisia.

What was meant by the southern border area was not defined, but it was recalled here that as early as the middle of last week an American force from Algeria was reported moving southeast on the Bou-Saada road in the direction of lower Tunisia and a short-cut to Tripoli.

Nothing has been reported from this column since.

Other desert trails, it was noted lead to southern Tunisia from the Lake Chad region where American and fighting French forces have been reported gathered in the north of French Equatorial Africa. It is roughly 1,000 miles from the Lake Chad country to the Tunisian border, however.

Meanwhile bad weather over the Libyan desert curtailed aerial activity, and a United States communique from Cairo said Ameri-

American Pilot Fails to See Tree When He Turns Fire on Workmen

London, Nov. 17 (AP)—Lieut. J. A. Clark, of Westbury, N. Y., is the kind of man who gets all wrapped up in his job.

Yesterday, on a fighter sweep over France, he almost became all wrapped up in a tree, too.

Lieut. Clark reported to headquarters, on his return, that he and Lieut. R. A. Brook, of Springfield, Ill., had been so absorbed in machine-gunning enemy workmen, repairing a damaged factory, that they had flown through a tree-top and wiped the launding-gear off their plane. The workmen were on a chimney, sixty-feet above the ground, he said. Clark made a successful belly-slide in landing the ship at its base.

Other pilots on the sweep machinegunned trains and gun emplacements.

London, Nov. 17—The Allied blows in North Africa struck Nazi Germany at a time when it was entering the grimmest winter of the war.

From the standpoint of five determining factors of war—military, economic and political strength, tenacity of allies and morale—Germany is at a crossroads.

It is not a question of a "turnip winter" like that in 1917 which presaged the fall of imperial Germany. Reichsmarshal Goering already has told the world the suppressed peoples will starve before Germany does.

But Germany has eaten through her reserves despite the strictest rationing. This year's overall harvest is reported to be only 80 per cent of normal, although the Germans now are tilling a million more acres than last year when the harvest was 15 per cent below average.

Disorganized by war, flood, drouth, peasant hoarding and guerrilla warfare, the rest of Europe is much worse off. In France the total wheat production is down a half-million tons to 6,000,000 and the Germans have ordered the French to double their deliveries to the Reich despite the recent loss of African supplies. Italy can barely squeeze through with its 7,000,000 tons.

The Balkans, supposed to be the Nazi granary, will have barely enough food for themselves. Fod-

Two Contingents Are Sent to Army Induction, Camp

Group of 88, Already Part of Armed Forces, Leave at Noon for Upton; Parade Held

Smiles and tears mingled this morning as Kingston sent away two contingents, one numbering 121 men, to an army induction center in Albany for physical tests, and the other composed of 88 men who were inducted into the U. S. Army on November 10, and left on the noon train on the West Shore railroad for Camp Upton where they will receive their preliminary army training.

The contingent that went to the army induction center in Albany left the Kingston draft office at 10 o'clock this morning with Corporation Counsel Joseph H. Forman as leader. His assistants were Fireman James M. Brett of the Kingston fire department, Kenneth G. Appleton, musical instructor at the Kingston High School and director of the high school band, Michael P. Guido and John V. Brinnier.

The Albany trip was made in four large buses.

Those who pass the physical tests will be inducted immediately into the U. S. Army, and will be granted a one week's furlough. They will leave for training camp on November 27.

Included in the Albany contingent were Sidney G. Lutzin, director of public recreation of the city; Harry Gold, one of the younger members of the Ulster county bar; William Chazanoff of the faculty of the Myron J. Michael School; M. Clifford Miller, English teacher and baseball coach of the high school team.

The Freeman was represented by Francis Kolts of the business office.

Parade Is Held

Stephen M. Connelly was named as acting corporal in charge of the contingent for Camp Upton.

Included in the group of 88 of the newest members of Uncle Sam's army were Andrew J. Cook, Jr., and Maurice A. Baker, attorneys of the city; "Danny" Bittner, widely known pianist, and a member of Alderman Paul Zucca's orchestra.

As the first contingent that left at 10 o'clock was only going to Albany for a physical examination there were but a few hundred people who gathered in front of the draft office to watch them off.

Help Is Needed by Board

The City Rationing Board is desperately in need of volunteer helpers immediately. Tomorrow at the Millard Building at 2 p. m., John Cashin will explain what kind of help is needed and assign workers. It is hoped that at least 40 people will turn out for the meeting, which will not take long.

Three-Gallon Gas Coupons Likely For Eastern States

Cut in Gasoline Rations Is Approved Tentatively by O.P.A.; East Only to Be Affected

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—A reduction in the value of basic gasoline ration coupons from four gallons to three gallons in the 17 eastern seaboard states has been approved at least tentatively by the Office of Price Administration, an informed government source said today.

The reduction is expected to be announced shortly along with additional measures to save fuel oil, he said. There was no indication, however, of curtailing household rations of fuel oil for heating below the present 65 degree standard, and O. P. A. officials have expressed reluctance to do this.

The source can not be quoted by name.

The cut in gasoline rations will apply only to the Atlantic coast states whose supply is affected by acute shortages of transportation, and it is not expected to affect the four gallon basic ration to be instituted December 1 in the rest of the country under the nationwide mileage rationing program, he said.

Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes has recommended that a curtailment of almost 140,000 barrels of petroleum products daily be instituted at once on the east coast, of which 80,000 barrels were proposed to be saved through curtailment of motor fuel consumption.

O. P. A. officials said they could not state immediately whether a reduction from four gallons to three would accomplish the 80,000 barrel saving, because of the fact that a reduction in the basic "A" card ration would throw the supplemental "B" and "C" rations out of proportion.

In other words, essential drivers whose ration is gauged to match exactly their necessary driving will find themselves short of motor fuel to extent of the proposed cut.

Some machinery would have to be set up to provide for readjustment of the supplemental rations, it was indicated.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—The position of the treasury November 14: Receipts $10,891,183.77. Expenditures $157,579,363.90. Net balance $3,958,802,011.46. Working balance included $3,196,283,025.76. Commons Demands Full Explanation Of U.S.-Darlan Deal

Admiral's New Appearance in Africa Opens Debate in House; Statement Left to Churchill

London, Nov. 17 (AP)—A demand for a fuller explanation of United States Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's deal with Admiral Jean Darlan reopened general debate in the House of Commons today.

Asserting that the "strange appearance of Admiral Darlan on the scene," gave a "sinister side" to the successful North African operation, Laborite Sir Percy Harris declared:

"This has been a rather bitter pill for those who have been loyal to the cause of France under the leadership of General DeGaulle to swallow."

The demand arose after Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee had informed the house that arrangements with the former Vichy defense minister, now cooperating with the A. E. F. in North Africa, had been made "with a view to the immediate military situation in North Africa."

Harris declared that the government must give a further explanation lest the Darlan incident harm the British cause despite Attlee's prior assertion that nothing more could be said on the subject for the present.

Attlee said he would leave a full statement on Darlan's position to Prime Minister Churchill. DeGaulle yesterday had disassociated the French national committee from the dealings with Darlan.

When Harris wryly remarked that Darlan may be "a much maligned personality," there were shouts of "No! No!" from the members.

"It may be," the Laborite member went on, "that he is not the Quisling we were led to believe but if he is not, this is one of the most mysterious chapters in the history of this war and of all countries."

He added that the absence of an explanation from the government would discourage the Fighting French and offer a premium to Quislings to change their course with the tide.

Efforts to bring all French opposing the Vichy regime under one leadership working for Allied victory were reported by Fighting French sources who emphasized that General DeGaulle did not care who that leader was, provided he was consistently anti-Axis.

Both the British Broadcasting Corporation and the United States Office of War Information gave prominence to the DeGaulle statement disassociating the Fighting French from Eisenhower's recognition of Darlan.

Most London morning newspapers expressed the belief that the Darlan recognition was only temporary. The political correspondent of the London Times said that "Eisenhower's chief concert (after the cease-fire order) was to establish order in Morocco and Algeria and push on to Tunisia . . . Apart from Giraud, Eisenhower had at that stage no man in mind who could take over temporary,

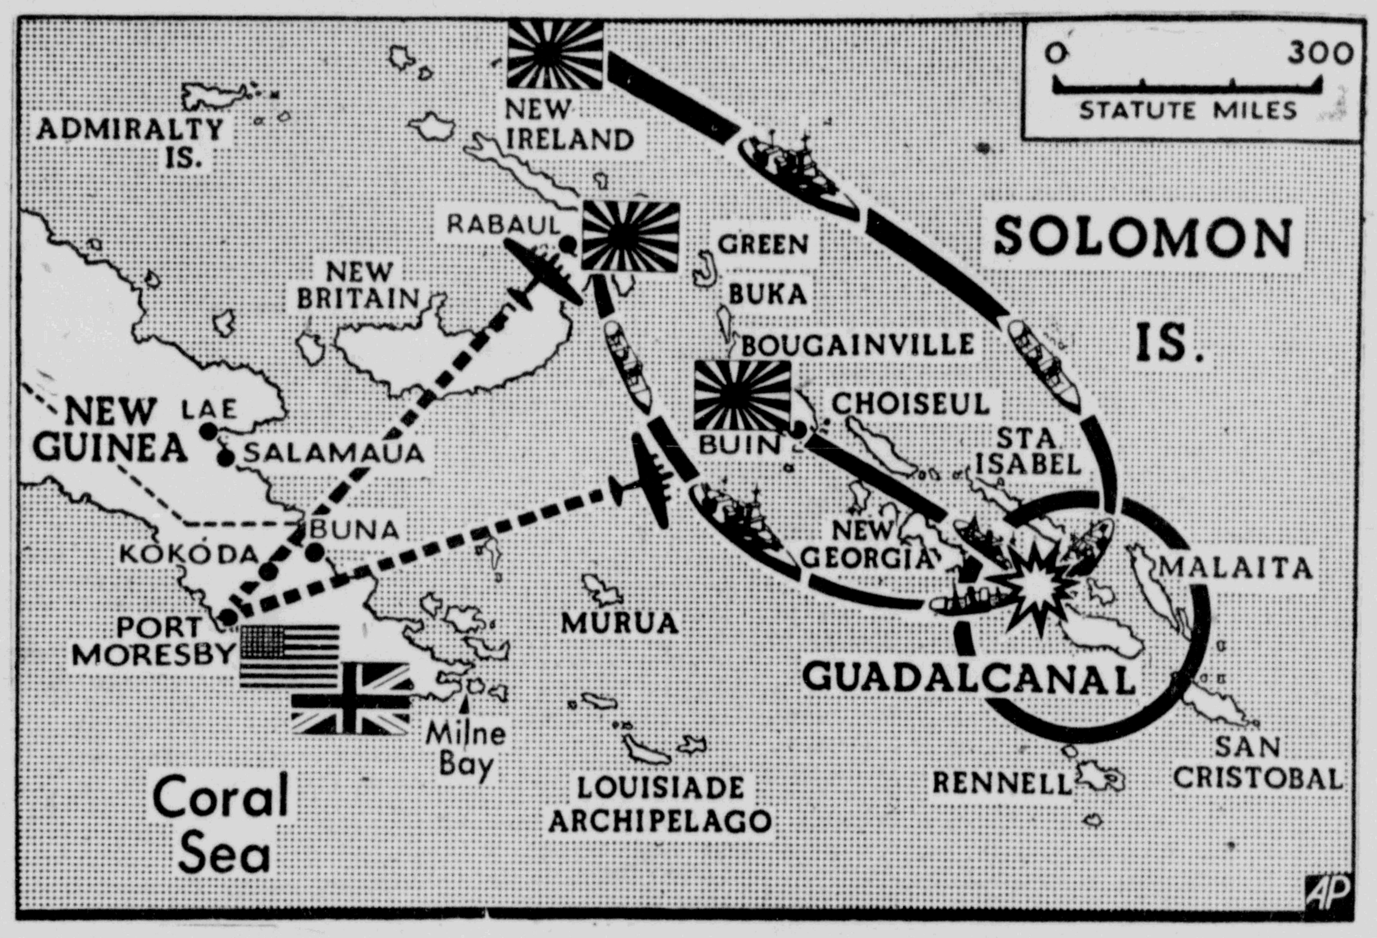
How Solomons Victory Was Won



A Japanese armada invading the Guadalcanal area (circled) from three directions—from the north, from Buin and from Rabaul (lines of ships)—was smashed by the U. S. Naval fleet which sunk 23 of the Jap ships. Raids by General MacArthur's bombers (planes) on Rabaul and Buin helped the Navy to victory.

Nimitz Tells How Japanese Swept South Toward Disaster

Pacific Fleet's Commander Believes Japs Brought All They Had in Attempt to Seize Guadalcanal

Pearl Harbor, T. H., Nov. 17 (AP)—Japan's naval hordes swept down on the Solomon Islands to disaster in their all-out effort to smash American power in the south Pacific.

When full details of those three short but fiery engagements northwest of Guadalcanal on November 13-15 become known, they will tell a story of not only the greatest naval battles ever staged at night, but also of the fiercest slugging combats in all naval history.

It was a most costly demonstration to Japan that not only have American forces complete control of the land, sea and sky there, but also they have the force to carry on an offensive.

"I think they brought everything they had," said Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, significantly.

"As a result, all the enemy forces were either destroyed or driven back, and a major victory was obtained by our gallant forces."

The admiral said he was certain the victory would result in the immediate strengthening of the hold we now have on Guadalcanal and the eventual expulsion of the enemy from that strategic island.

The Japs on Guadalcanal, he said, are suffering from the lack of two things: Beans and bullets.

"They have bands of men in the upper reaches of the island with radio equipment, which gives them the advantage of having reports on everything we do, all our plans and ship movements and almost complete data on our operations and forces," he told newsmen.

"Our problem is to eliminate these observation patrols so we can do something without being seen. We know the enemy is greatly disappointed he didn't get supplies and reinforcements, and he is especially lacking in beans and bullets.

"We know we have plenty of men there, and that they have enough to do the job we set out to do—expel the Japs—and that our men have the proper punch to do it."

For this all-out offensive. the Japs assembled at Rabaul all of the forces they could from powerhouses in the vast western Pacific, the admiral said, adding that "part of this was destined for Guadalcanal and part for New Guinea, but it looks like they were disappointed in both cases."

So great was the confusion on the part of Japan's naval units that at one time two Japanese forces were firing at each other.

"He hope," he commented wryly, "that they matched their usual high skill in that engagement."

Battleships of both sides participated in these brief, bitter fights, two night engagements and one early morning affair, but the Japanese were without airplane carriers.

"Either they didn't have any left, their losses being greater in the October 26 engagement than we estimated, or they didn't choose to risk them," Admiral Nimitz said.

(Partial reports from Washington said the Japs lost 23 ships, including a battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers, eight fully-loaded transports and four cargo ships. American losses were given as two

Newburgh Man's Skeleton Is Found

Awning Salesman Has Been Missing Since March 2; on Rosoff Property

Stanley H. Martin, 42-year-old Newburgh awning salesman who was reported missing last March 2 from his home, was found Monday on the Sam Rosoff property about a mile north of Marlborough. Identification of the body was made by means of his operator's license which was found in his wallet. The body was so badly decomposed that practically nothing but the skeleton remained.

Martin, who was a sailmaker and operated an awning business in Newburgh, left his home on March 2 last in his car and was last seen in the neighborhood of the Rosoff property where his car was recovered that day. Martin had been under treatment for a mental disorder and when he disappeared it was believed he was suffering from amnesia.

When the man failed to return, Newburgh police sent out an alarm and a search was made near Marlborough where his car was recovered but no trace of the missing man was found.

Monday while James Smith, caretaker at the Rosoff farm, was walking through the woods on the premises located about a mile north of Marlborough he came across the skeleton of a man and notified State Trooper William Martin who after investigating notified Coroner Jesse McHugh of Wallkill. The remains were taken to the Tuthill Funeral Home in Marlborough and Mrs. Martin was notified.

State Troopers John Metzer and L. Baker of the B.C.I. were summoned and conducted an investigation. The remains were so badly decomposed that it was difficult to make any determination of the cause of death. There was practically nothing remaining but the clothing and skeleton. Identification was established by the papers in a wallet and by the clothing.

Factor Pleads Guilty

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Nov. 17 (AP)—John (Jake the Barber) Factor of Chicago pleaded guilty in Federal court here today to charges of mail fraud and conspiracy in connection with a whisky warehouse receipts case in which he and 11 others were indicted Aug. 20, 1942.

Supervisors Receive Annual Report From Farm, Home, 4-H Associations

Annual financial reports were received Monday evening by the Board of Supervisors from the Farm, Home and 4-H Club Association. Each one made application to the board for the same appropriation as was given last year. The Home Bureau asked for $3,000, the Farm Bureau $4,400 and the 4-H Club $3,500. The reports were filed and the request for appropriations referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

A report was also submitted by Dr. Clifford Hoppenstedt on Bovine Disease Control in the county. He reported a total of 7,369 animals tested during the past year and that 21 towns were now clean tested. There were 3,407 accredited herds in the county a year ago and during the past year 39 more have been added. In this report on Bangs' disease he reported 3,473 cattle tested. During the year 253 herds were tested and there were 475 ractors. An appropriation of $2,850 was asked for the ensuing year. Referred to committee on appropriations.

The State Department of Audit and Control sent a communication that the unpaid share of the county for the grade crossing elimination 2 1/10 miles north of Kingston over the West Shore Railroad in the town of Ulster was $14.50 and it was moved that the county pay this sum. Carried.

District Attorney N. LeVan Haver reported on the moneys received by him during the past year from fines. He reported that during the year none had been collected through his office. A report was also submitted of expenditures from a $2,000 appropriation from the Court and Jury Fund which was made available for office expenses during the past year. Mr. Haver reported that on November 1, 1941, there had been a balance of $218.85 in the fund to which

Round Two Called Only Major Fight

Praises Navy

Knox Says Conduct of Navy Was of High Quality

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Secretary of Navy Knox said today that the United States clearly had won round two of the battle for the Solomon Islands, but that it "must not be forgotten" that there may be a round three.

The Secretary called last week's American naval victory — which cost the Japanese 11 warships and 12 other vessels sunk and 7 ships damaged—a major action, but not a decisive one."

Japanese personnel losses may have run from 20,000 to 30,000.

"We have at the moment," Knox said in response to a press conference question, "naval supremacy around Guadalcanal."

He declined to claim more advantage than that strategically, but, commenting on the overall result of the greatest naval engagement since the battle of Jutland in the World War, said that it leaves American forces "in complete and undisputed possession of the (Guadalcanal-Tulagi) area and the airfield there and has caused the enemy very severe losses both in ships and personnel."

The effect of these losses, Knox said, obviously will be hurtful to the Japanese navy, but he declined to say that the Jap fleet had been crippled.

"No doubt," he declared, "the processes of attrition operate more against them than against us. Remember that we build faster with our greater resources than they do. But remember also that the Japanese operate pretty much in home waters and adjacent waters. Our navy is spread all over the seven seas. While the Japanese fleet has suffered severely to date it is still operating in comparatively narrow waters."

The Secretary was asked whether, if the Japanese come back to the southeastern Solomons with a strong naval force, our forces would again defeat them.

He replied that "we will defeat them—I don't know when or in what action."

Knox said that the enemy had had numerical superiority in the theater of action during the period of the battle ending last weekend, and said the American triumph had been won in spite of that.

"I cannot speak in too high praise of the qualities displayed by the navy in this action, the Secretary asserted.

"Nimitz, Halsey, Callaghan and others not only met and drove from the field a numerically superior force but also they employed the most daring type of action to accomplish that result," he said in naming the admirals largely concerned.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz is commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, Vice Admiral William F. Halsey is commander in the south Pacific area and Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, former

'Kept in Dark'

Japs Are Told Americans' Miserable Defeat Is Kept From Nation

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—The office of War Information recorded a Tokyo broadcast today in which the Japanese people were told the American navy's "miserable defeat is kept in the dark'" by the navy communique disclosing the crippling blows administered to Japan in the latest Solomon Islands action.

Curiously, this Japanese-language broadcast for home consumption was followed up by trumpetings beamed to the United States about the "Honesty" of Japanese communiques. Other English language broadcasts, like this one, said nothing about the U. S. navy communique, but repeated over and over again the imperial high command's exaggerated claims of virtual destruction of American naval power in the Solomons.

Some machinery would have to be set up to provide for readjustment of the supplemental rations, it was indicated.

CommonsDemands Full Explanation Of U.S.-DarlanDeal

London, Nov. 17 (AP)—A demand for a fuller explanation of United States Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's deal with Admiral Jean Darlan reopened general debate in the House of Commons today.

Asserting that the "strange appearance of Admiral Darlan on the scene," gave a "sinister side" to the successful North African operation, Laborite Sir Percy Harris declared:

"This has been a rather bitter pill for those who have been loyal to the cause of France under the leadership of General DeGaulle to swallow."

The demand arose after Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee had informed the house that arrangements with the former Vichy defense minister, now cooperating with the A. E. F. in North Africa, had been made "with a view to the immediate military situation in North Africa."

Harris declared that the government must give a further explanation lest the Darlan incident harm the British cause despite Attlee's prior assertion that nothing more could be said on the subject for the present.

Attlee said he would leave a full statement on Darlan's position to Prime Minister Churchill. DeGaulle yesterday had disassociated the French national committee from the dealings with Darlan.

When Harris wryly remarked that Darlan may be "a much maligned personality," there were shouts of "No! No!" from the members.

"It may be," the Laborite member went on, "that he is not the Quisling we were led to believe but if he is not, this is one of the most mysterious chapters in the history of this war and of all countries."

He added that the absence of an explanation from the government would discourage the Fighting French and offer a premium to Quislings to change their course with the tide.

Efforts to bring all French opposing the Vichy regime under one leadership working for Allied victory were reported by Fighting French sources who emphasized that General DeGaulle did not care who that leader was, provided he was consistently anti-Axis.

Both the British Broadcasting Corporation and the United States Office of War Information gave prominence to the DeGaulle statement disassociating the Fighting French from Eisenhower's recognition of Darlan.

Most London morning newspapers expressed the belief that the Darlan recognition was only temporary. The political correspondent of the London Times said that "Eisenhower's chief concert (after the cease-fire order) was to establish order in Morocco and Algeria and push on to Tunisia . . . Apart from Giraud, Eisenhower had at that stage no man in mind who could take over temporary,

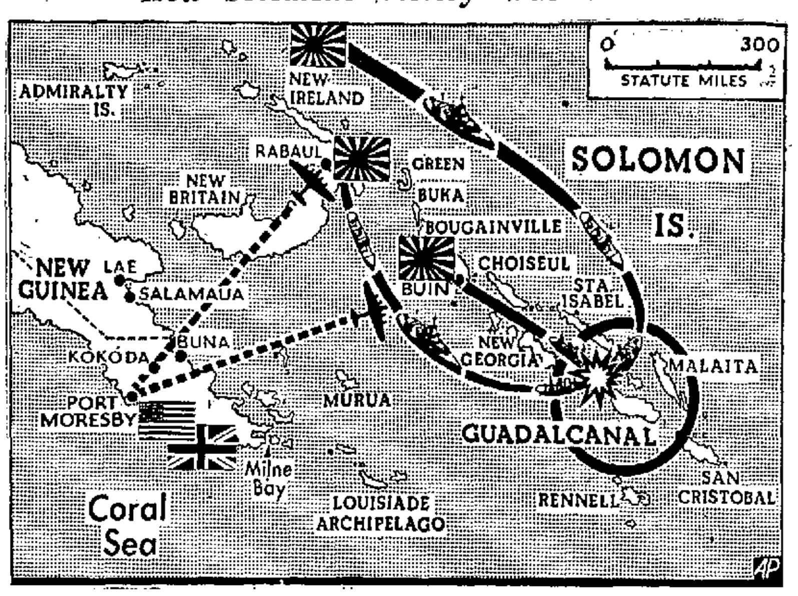
How Solomons Victory Was Won



A Japanese armada invading the Guadalcanal area (circled) from three directions—from the north, from Buin and from Rabaul (lines of ships)—was smashed by the U. S. Naval fleet which sunk 23 of the Jap ships. Raids by General MacArthur's bombers (planes) on Rabaul and Buin helped the Navy to victory.

Supervisors Receive Annual Report From Farm, Home, 4-H Associations

Annual financial reports were received Monday evening by the Board of Supervisors from the Farm, Home and 4-H Club Association. Each one made application to the board for the same appropriation as was given last year. The Home Bureau asked for $3,000, the Farm Bureau $4,400 and the 4-H Club $3,500. The reports were filed and the request for appropriations referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

A report was also submitted by Dr. Clifford Heppenstedt on Bovine Disease Control in the county. He reported a total of 7,369 animals tested during the past year, and that 21 towns were now clean tested. There were 3,907 accredited herds in the county a year ago and during the past year 39 more have been added. In this report on Bangs' disease he reported 3,473 cattle tested. During the year 252 herds were tested and there were 475 reactors. An appropriation of $2,850 was asked for the ensuing year. Referred to committee on appropriations.

The State Department of Audit and Control sent a communication that the unpaid share of the county for the grade crossing elimination 2 1/10 miles north of Kingston over the West Shore Railroad in the town of Ulster was $14.50 and it was moved that the county pay this sum. Carried.

District Attorney N. LeVan Haver reported on the moneys received by him during the past year from fines. He reported that during the year none had been collected through his office. A report was also submitted of expenditures from a $2,000 appropriation from the Court and Jury Fund which was made available for office expenses during the past year. Mr. Haver reported that on November 1, 1941, there had been a balance of $218.85 in the fund to which

Pearl Harbor, T. H., Nov. 17 (AP)—Japan's naval hordes swept down on the Solomon Islands to disaster in their all-out effort to smash American power in the south Pacific.

When full details of those three short but fiery engagements northwest of Guadalcanal on November 13-15 become known, they will tell a story of not only the greatest naval battles ever staged at night, but also of the fiercest slugging combats in all naval history.

It was a most costly demonstration to Japan that not only have American forces complete control of the land, sea and sky there, but also they have the force to carry on an offensive.

"I think they brought everything they had," said Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, significantly.

"As a result, all the enemy forces were either destroyed or driven back, and a major victory was obtained by our gallant forces."

The admiral said he was certain the victory would result in the immediate strengthening of the hold we now have on Guadalcanal and the eventual expulsion of the enemy from that strategic island.

The Japs on Guadalcanal, he said, are suffering from the lack of two things: Beans and bullets.

"They have bands of men in the upper reaches of the island with radio equipment, which gives them the advantage of having reports on everything we do, all our plans and ship movements and almost complete data on our operations and forces," he told newsmen.

"Our problem is to eliminate these observation patrols so we can do something without being seen. We know the enemy is greatly disappointed he didn't get supplies and reinforcements, and he is especially lacking in beans and bullets.

"We know we have plenty of men there, and that they have enough to do the job we set out to do—expel the Japs—and that our men have the proper punch to do it."

For this all-out offensive, the Japs assembled at Rabaul all of the forces they could from powerhouses in the vast western Pacific, the admiral said, adding that "part of this was destined for Guadalcanal and part for New Guinea, but it looks like they were disappointed in both cases."

So great was the confusion on the part of Japan's naval units that at one time two Japanese forces were firing at each other.

"He hope," he commented wryly, "that they matched their usual high skill in that engagement."

Battleships of both sides participated in these brief, bitter fights, two night engagements and one early morning affair, but the Japanese were without airplane carriers.

"Either they didn't have any left, their losses being greater in the October 26 engagement than we estimated, or they didn't choose to risk them," Admiral Nimitz said.

(Partial reports from Washington said the Japs lost 23 ships, including a battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers, eight fully-loaded transports and four cargo ships. American losses were given as two

Newburgh Man's Skeleton Is Found

Awning Salesman Has Been Missing Since March 2; on Rosoff Property

Stanley H. Martin, 42-year-old Newburgh awning salesman who was reported missing last March 2 from his home, was found Monday on the Sam Rosoff property about a mile north of Marlborough. Identification of the body was made by means of his operator's license which was found in his wallet. The body was so badly decomposed that practically nothing but the skeleton remained.

Martin, who was a sailmaker and operated an awning business in Newburgh, left his home on March 2 last in his car and was last seen in the neighborhood of the Rosoff property where his car was recovered that day. Martin had been under treatment for a mental disorder and when he disappeared it was believed he was suffering from amnesia.

When the man failed to return, Newburgh police sent out an alarm and a search was made near Marlborough where his car was recovered but no trace of the missing man was found.

Monday while James Smith, caretaker at the Rosoff farm, was walking through the woods on the premises located about a mile north of Marlborough he came across the skeleton of a man and notified State Trooper William Martin who after investigating notified Coroner Jesse McHugh of Wallkill. The remains were taken to the Tuthill Funeral Home in Marlborough and Mrs. Martin was notified.

State Troopers John Metzer and L. Baker of the B.C.I. were summoned and conducted an investigation. The remains were so badly decomposed that it was difficult to make any determination of the cause of death. There was practically nothing remaining but the clothing and skeleton. Identification was established by the papers in a wallet and by the clothing.

Round Two Called Only Major Fight

Praises Navy

Knox Says Conduct of Navy Was of High Quality

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Secretary of Navy Knox said today that the United States clearly had won round two of the battle for the Solomon Islands, but that it "must not be forgotten" that there may be a round three.

The Secretary called last week's American naval victory — which cost the Japanese 11 warships and 12 other vessels sunk and 7 ships damaged—a major action, but not a decisive one."

Japanese personnel losses may have run from 20,000 to 30,000.

"We have at the moment," Knox said in response to a press conference question, "naval supremacy around Guadalcanal."

He declined to claim more advantage than that strategically, but, commenting on the overall result of the greatest naval engagement since the battle of Jutland in the World War, said that it leaves American forces "in complete and undisputed possession of the (Guadalcanal-Tulagi) area and the airfield there and has caused the enemy very severe losses both in ships and personnel."

The effect of these losses, Knox said, obviously will be hurtful to the Japanese navy, but he declined to say that the Jap fleet had been crippled.

"No doubt," he declared, "the processes of attrition operate more against them than against us. Remember that we build faster with our greater resources than they do. But remember also that the Japanese operate pretty much in home waters and adjacent waters. Our navy is spread all over the seven seas. While the Japanese fleet has suffered severely to date it is still operating in comparatively narrow waters."

The Secretary was asked whether, if the Japanese come back to the southeastern Solomons with a strong naval force, our forces would again defeat them.

He replied that "we will defeat them—I don't know when or in what action."

Knox said that the enemy had had numerical superiority in the theater of action during the period of the battle ending last week-end, and said the American triumph had been won in spite of that.

"I cannot speak in too high praise of the qualities displayed by the navy in this action, the Secretary asserted.

"Nimitz, Halsey, Callaghan and others not only met and drove from the field a numerically superior force but also they employed the most daring type of action to accomplish that result," he said in naming the admirals largely concerned.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz is commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, Vice Admiral William F. Halsey is commander in the south Pacific area and Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, former

'Kept in Dark'

Japs Are Told Americans' Miserable Defeat Is Kept From Nation

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—The office of War Information recorded a Tokyo broadcast today in which the Japanese people were told the American navy's "miserable defeat is kept in the dark" by the navy communique disclosing the crippling blows administered to Japan in the latest Solomon Islands action.

Curiously, this Japanese-language broadcast for home consumption was followed up by trumpetings beamed to the United States about the "Honesty" of Japanese communiques. Other English language broadcasts, like this one, said nothing about the U. S. navy communique, but repeated over and over again the imperial high command's exaggerated claims of virtual destruction of American naval power in the Solomons.

'Teen-Age Forms To Be Mailed Out

Kingston's draft board on Wednesday plans to begin the work of sending out questionnaires to the 'teen-age registrants in the city. It was estimated that there would be approximately 200 blanks mailed out altogether.

It was stated at the board's office today that since the law had been passed by Congress that a large number of youths in the 18-19 years old group in Kingston were enlisting instead of waiting to be drafted.

Killed in Solomons

Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callahan, former naval aide to President Roosevelt, was killed in night action in the Solomon Islands fighting, the Navy reports.

Local Death Record

Mrs. Walter Nase, nee Marjorie Miller, of Glenerie died in this city last evening. The funeral will be held at the parlors of A. Carr and Son, 1 Pearl street, Wednesday at 4 p. m. Burial will be in Wiltwyck cemetery. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Miller of this city and has been employed as a stenographer of the New York Board of Water Supply. She is survived by her husband, Walter Nase, a sister, Miss Adah Miller and one brother, Ralph Miller.

John Pallay of East Kingston died early this morning in this city. He came from Austria 57 years ago and since then has made his home in this county. Surviving are two sons, John of New Brunswick, N. J., and Albert of Highland, also a step-son; Stephen Szekeres of East Kingston, and three daughters; Mary and Elizabeth of New York and Mrs. Clinton Carle of Kingston. Friends may call any time at the W. N. Conner Funeral Home. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

John Van Demark died at his home in Mettacahonts Monday. He was 57 years of age. Besides his wife, Mrs. Louise Van Demark he is survived by two sons, Byron and Vernon of Accord; a daughter, Mrs. Beulah Hutchins of Freeport, L. I., a granddaughter, Janice Hutchins; a brother, Elmer of Kripplebush; and several nieces and nephews. Funeral services will be held at the Accord Reformed Church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery, near Stone Ridge. The Rev. Ben Scholten of Accord will officiate.

Emma F. Smith, 76, died at Pine Hill, Tuesday, November 17. She had been ill for some time. Surviving are four daughters; Mrs. Lillian Smith, Mrs. Maude Smith, both of Pine Hill, Mrs. Florence Smith of Kingston and Mrs. Inez Smith of Staten Island, two sons; Conrad and Paul Smith of Pine Hill and one brother; Orville Smith of Pine Hill. Funeral services will be held from the Pine Hlil Methodist Church Thursday, November 19, at 1 p. m., with the Rev. Purdy Halstead of Pine Hill officiating. Burial will be in Pine Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Margaret Hannon Broderick, wife of Michael Broderick, died suddenly in her home in New York city on Monday. Although she had been ill for the past two years her sudden death came as a shock to her relatives and friends in this city. Mrs. Broderick was born in Sawkill, the daughter of the late John and Mary Callahan Hannon. Besides her husband she is survived by several nieces and nephews, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Timothy Hannon of Kingston. Funeral services will be held from the James M. Murphy Funeral Home on Broadway on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock and thence to St. Mary's Church where at 9:30 o'clock a high Mass of requiem will be offered, with burial in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Thomas Deegan Found Dead in Home

Mrs. Mary B. Cullen Deegan, 51, wife of Thomas Deegan, was found dead in the kitchen of the family home at 53 Emerson street, shortly after 5 o'clock Monday afternoon by the husband on his return home from work. Mr. Deegan found the house filled with fumes of gas.

Coroner Frank J. McCardle, after an investigation, issued a verdict of accidental death. Officers McGrane and Perry of the police department said that the jets on the gas range in the kitchen were partly open and that the escaping gas filled the house.

Mr. Deegan upon finding his wife immediately called the authorities and the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. rushed an inhalator to the house, in an attempt to revive her.

Dr. Chester B. Van Gaasbeek, who had been called, pronounced Mrs. Deegan dead. He stated she had been dead for some hours.

Mrs. Deegan was a former school teacher. Besides her husband she is survived by a son, Robert C. Deegan, a student at Notre Dame University, and a sister, Mrs. Arthur Mesereau, of Bergenfield, N. J.

Funeral services will be held from the Jenson & Deegan Funeral Home, 15 Downs street, on Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock and thence to St. Joseph's Church where at 9 o'clock a requiem Mass will be offered. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Knox Expects Another Fight

Relays Message

Knox relayed to his press conference a message from Major General Alexander Vandergrift, the marine commander on Guadalcanal. Vandegrift, Knox said, described the outcome of the naval action, which be obviously had watched with the utmost concern, as a crushing defeat for the Japanese. The marine general also praised the naval forces participating and, Knox said, "properly and deservedly" complimented his own air forces on Guadalcanal.

Vandegrift, Knox added, concluded his message with a "beautiful, moving tribute," to the effectiveness of navy-marine cooperation in the Solomons.

There has been no further word from the battle area on the still unreported results of what apparently was the conclusive encounter of the running sea battle of last week. This encounter occurred on the night of November 14-15 and Knox said information as to results was still lacking here, but would be released as quickly as possible once it came in.

Since the Secretary had characterized the Solomons campaign as a series of "rounds," he was asked how many rounds it might go on, that is how many times the Japanese could come back and how many rounds there would be.

"The only safe assumption," he replied, "is that they will come back and that is exactly what we are making our plans for."

He said that as a result of this most recent battle it obviously would be more difficult for the Japanese to come back, but declined to say that they might be greatly impeded by their losses.

Asked why each side was investing so heavily in the battle for control of the southeastern Solomons, Knox said that the islands were obviously of first class importance to the United States because they flank our lines of communication and supply with Australia and from them the Japanese could make direct attack on those lines.

They are important to the Japanese, he continued, because they could serve as a base for hammering away at Australian supply lines.

Speed, Delivery Gratifying

In commenting on the construction of American warships as compared with the enemy's construction program, Knox said that the "speed of delivery of our combatant ships is one of the most gratifying phases of the whole picture" and that the process of converting large non-combatant ships into aircraft carriers was going along with "gratifying speed."

He was asked whether this country would not be able to replace easily and quickly its losses in the Solomons battle of two light cruisers and six destroyers. In reply he simply reminded the conference that on Armistice Day the federal shipbuilding yard at Kearny, N. J., launched four destroyers.

Knox called the Solomons battle the "greatest surface action of this war to date" and said that while it was apparently the greatest surface action since the engagement between Britain and Germany at Jutland in the North Sea during the first World War it was not "greater than Jutland."

In a savage three-day conflict that sent the foe's battered naval remnants into hiding, 23 Nipponese ships were sunk, seven were damaged and possibly 20,000 to 40,000 Japanese troops were lost in the swirl of sunken transports.

First details of the battle that raged from November 13 to 15 were released by the Navy last night. Further reports may boost the staggering toll taken of enemy ships but already the victory was hailed by naval officers unofficially as the greatest of the war thus far, and perhaps of modern times.

The partial reports listed the sinking of a Japanese battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers, eight crowded transports and four cargo ships. The American losses were given as two light cruisers and six destroyers.

Thus, in 11 months of war, Associated Press records indicate that 365 Japanese ships have been sent to the bottom of the Pacific as against 84 American vessels, including those listed as lost at Pearl Harbor.

Of these losses, 119 were Japanese warships and 50 were American.

At Close Range

Much of the running sea fight was at close range in darkness. So furious was the action that at one time two of three large Japanese units that converged for an attack on prized Guadalcanal Island "seemed confused," the Navy said, and "were firing at each other."

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, declared at Pearl Harbor last night he believed the Japanese "brought down everything they had."

"As a result," he added, "all the enemy forces were either destroyed or driven back and a major victory was obtained by our gallant forces."

While battleships took part in the gigantic naval engagement, the Japanese brought no airplane carriers to bear. Nimitz expressed belief the foe either had no carriers left or "didn't choose to risk them." No mention was made as to whether American carriers participated.

Nimitz assertion that "both sides had battleships and that our battleships contributed to the loss of the enemy to a great degree," was the first official disclosure of the presence of the big U. S. battlewagons in the southwestern Pacific fighting. So far they have not been mentioned specifically in Navy Department communiques

The Navy's description of the spectacular combat, fought under the immediate direction of Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, told of the discovery early this month of heavy Japanese shipping concentrations in the New British-northwestern Solomons area. This was the beginning of an attempted major assault to recapture Henderson airfield and other American positions in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi region.

The Rising Sun's offensive was underway November 10 with three naval forces streaming to the attack. One prong approached the southeastern Solomons from the north. The other detachments, counting many transports, closed in from Rabaul and Buin, where they already had felt the lash of bombs from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's planes.

The foe's spearhead—two battleships of the Kongo class, two heavy cruisers, four light cruisers and about 10 destroyers — boiled into the Guadalcanal battle zone after midnight of November 13.

An intended bombardment of the American-held airfield prepatory to a large scale landing of troops was thwarted suddenly by American warships arriving at the right moment. It was in this close-range battle that the Japanese vessels slammed away at each other, unwittingly committing a sort of naval hara-kiri.

Says Gun Was Loaded

New York, Nov. 17 (AP) — A schoolboy testifying at the first degree murder trial of Joseph Annunziata, 19, and Neil Simonelli, 16, accused of slaying Erwin Goodman, 36, math teacher in a Brooklyn junior high school, told today of seeing one of the defendants hand the other a pistol and say: "Here it's loaded. Wait until his back is turned." The prosecution contends that the two former "zoot suit" students shot Goodman in the back after an argument with him.

Truck Hits Tree

Monday evening about 10 o'clock a large trailer-tractor truck owned by the Milk Transportation Co. of Highland Mills, got out of control and crashed into a tree in front of 66 East Chester street. Clarence G. McGill, driver of the machine, informed the police that the steering gear suddenly went bad, causing the trailor-tractor truck to swerve from the road and crash into the tree. No personal injuries were reported but the big machine was damaged.

Bike Rider Injured

Discharged Ward Employe Is Now at Stewart Field

Final N. L. R. B. order in the controversy between the Retail Clerks International Protective Association and Robert Kalter and Montgomery Ward & Co. was received Saturday by Francis Martocci, attorney for the union. It confirms the recommendations made by Examiner I. L. Broadwin, with the exception that notice indicating compliance with the board's cease and desist order need be posted only in the Kingston store of the Ward Co. instead of in all its New York state stores, as the examiner had recommended.

Under the N. L. R. B. order, the company is directed to cease and desist from interfering with employes' union activities; to reinstate Kalter in his former position and to compensate him for any losses he may have sustained by reason of unemployment.

Attorney Martocci said this morning that Kalter at present is employed at the Stewart Airport and that the government has declared he is employed in essential war work and cannot be released to resume his former position with the Ward Co.

Youths May Enlist

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP) — Seventeen-year-old youths may enlist, with parental or guardian consent, in the New York State Guard. Governor Lehman authorized the drop in age limit, explaining the selective service act revision calling for induction of 18 and 19-year-olds will take approximately 15 per cent of the guard's membership.

"And then I learned lack of 'bulk' is one of its common causes."

"And what a difference that made! You see, I knew this wartime living had upset my usual habits of working, sleeping and eating. But I overlooked the fact that in this rush, my meals were likely to be improperly balanced —and I just wasn't getting the 'bulk' I needed.

"And this very lack is one of the most frequent causes of wartime constipation. Medicinal laxatives gave me only temporary relief, because they don't correct the cause.

Barbara Returns, Wonders Why Fuss Is Made Over Her

Beverly Hills, Calif., Nov. 17 (AP) —Barbara Bennett, whose desire for a little rest caused southern California police officers to lose a lot of it, is safe at home and says she can't understand what all the fuss was about.

While the widespread search for her was on, Miss Bennett, she said, was in seclusion in a rest home and knew nothing of the alarm her absence had caused. She was reported missing Saturday morning by her husband, Addison Randall, screeen cowboy.

Miss Bennett, former wife of Singer Morton Downey, left her apartment Friday evening, presumably to keep a dinner engagement at the home of James Doane, actor's agent, and Mrs. Doane.

"But I changed my mind," Miss Bennett explained, "and didn't go there. Instead I went to another friend's home and telephoned the Doanes that I wouldn't be at the dinner.

"I decided I needed a rest, so I went to a rest home where I registered under an assumed name.

"The first I knew of the excitement was Monday morning," she continued, "when I bought a newspaper and read that I had been reported missing. I telephoned Mr. Randall at once that I was safe.

"I can't understand all the fuss I seem to have started."

When Randall filed his missing persons report at police headquarters Saturday he said she was "somewhat intoxicated" when she left their apartment Friday night.

Her husband denied reports that they are separating, but said that he is going to San Francisco to take a theatre engagement.

"Miss Bennett is staying here," Randall said. "There is no formal separation, although it might come to that."

Randall and she were married in Mexico in June, 1941, a few days after Downey was awarded an uncontested divorce in Bridgeport, Conn., together with custody of their five children.

She later tried to obtain the children's custody, but a Bridgeport court denied her plea last month.

Three Days—One Tanker

Vancouver, Wash., Nov. 17 (AP)— A Henry J. Kaiser shipyard claimed another record today—a three-day ship launching. A tank landing craft slid into the Columbia river from his Vancouver yard here last night, just two days, 23 hours and 40 minutes after keel-laying.

All road transport vehicles in County Mayo, Eire, have been pooled to conserve gasoline and tires.

Anyone Who Has Basic 'A' Book Is To Register Tires

Every person who has a Basic "A" ration book issued for passenger car use or a Basic "D" book for a motorcycle will have to register Thursday, Friday or Saturday of this week at one of the numerous inspection stations in the city and county if future gasoline and tires are to be issued to the car. This means that any holder of an "A" or "D" book must register even though a supplemental "B" book has been issued.

There has been some confusion among passenger car owners as to whether they have to register their tires and secure an inspection slip if they have had a "B" book issued.

John M. Cashin, chairman of the Kingston ration board, said today that there had been numerous inquiries at the office from people now holding "B" books as to whether they would be required to register their tires the last three days of this week in order to be eligible for future gas and tire rationing. In order to have had issued a "B" or "C" book passenger car owners must have had a Basic "A" book issued and therefore they must register.

Owners of commercial vehicles will use another form which will be supplied by the applicant's War Price and Rationing Board. These include ambulances, hearses, a vehicle held by a dealer for sale or resale or operated on a dealer license plates, a taxi or jitney or vehicle leased from or held for rental by a car renting agency, a vehicle owned or leased by a State or Federal, local or foreign government or government agency, a vehicle which belongs to a fleet of three or more passenger cars owned or leased by and used principally for business or occupational purposes of the same person or organization. All other car owners must register.

Mettacahonts Resident Is Found Lying Dead

John Vandemark, a man of about 60 years of age, who lived alone at Mettacahonts, was found lying dead alongside the road near his house about 3:30 Monday afternoon. Mr. Vandemark, who had been using a pick to dig out the remains of a stump, was found by Charles Osterhoudt and Abram Bernstein, who were passing by.

Dr. Rachel Halloway of Kerhonkson was summoned and pronounced death due to a heart attack. Coroner Frank J. McCardle, who had been notified, rendered a verdict of death from natural causes.

The deceased is survived by his wife, who was a Miss Churchwell before her marriage; two sons, Vernon Vandemark of Mettacahonts and Byron Vandemark,, who conducts a garage business on Route 209 at Accord; a daughter, Mrs. Ward Hutchins of Poughkeepsie.

EVERY SECOND COUNTS!

A HUGE TANK swings upward through the darkness. Winches creak and derricks groan. Under the shaded flares men's backs are sweaty.

In an hour the convoy sails. And every second in that hour is packed with dynamite.

For ships at anchor win no wars.

Rail transportation to the ports is a vital key to the life-and-death shuttle race of the Atlantic.

And this involves more than keeping the trains rolling.

The grim, unrelenting activity of the Nazi wolf pack makes it impossible to determine accurately the time of arrival of ships in port—frequently makes it necessary to divert convoys to ports far distant from those originally scheduled.

But no matter where or when the ships come in, there must be waiting balanced cargoes ready for immediate loading. And there must be no congestion—no immobilized rolling stock.

Careful planning, accurate timing, the machinery to divert shipments en route—these are essential to control the flow of vital war materials to the docks.

That ships have not had to wait for cargoes—that ports have not become congested—is a tribute to the cooperation that exists between the government and the railroads.

Of railroad performance, Joseph B. Eastman, Director, Office of Defense Transportation, has said: "There has been no breakdown and no serious congestion. The railroads have done promptly and well all that they have been called upon to do. In view of all of the conditions, it has been a remarkable record."

Remarkable as this achievement is, it must be remembered that there are physical limits to the carrying capacity of any given amount of equipment.

The coming months will make even sterner demands on American railroad capacity—demands which can be fully met only with additional locomotives and cars.

But meanwhile railroad men are united in their determination to make every available locomotive and car yield the last ounce of performance—feeding the convoys which carry the hope of the world.

Mrs. Thomas Deegan Found Dead in Home

Mrs. Mary B. Cullen Deegan, 51, wife of Thomas Deegan, was found dead in the kitchen of the family home at 53 Emerson street, shortly after 5 o'clock Monday afternoon by the husband on his return home from work. Mr. Deegan found the house filled with fumes of gas.

Coroner Frank J. McCardle, after an investigation, issued a verdict of accidental death. Officers McGrane and Perry of the police department said that the jets on the gas range in the kitchen were partly open and that the escaping gas filled the house.

Mr. Deegan upon finding his wife immediately called the authorities and the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. rushed an inhalator to the house, in an attempt to revive her.

Dr. Chester B. Van Gaasbeek, who had been called, pronounced Mrs. Deegan dead. He stated she had been dead for some hours.

Mrs. Deegan was a former school teacher. Besides her husband she is survived by a son, Robert C. Deegan, a student at Notre Dame University, and a sister, Mrs. Arthur Mesereau, of Bergenfield, N. J.

Funeral services will be held from the Jenson & Deegan Funeral Home, 15 Downs street, on Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock and thence to St. Joseph's Church where at 9 o'clock a requiem Mass will be offered. Burial will be in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

White House naval aide, was one of the commanders in the battle. He was killed in action.

Relays Message

Knox relayed to his press conference a message from Major General Alexander Vandergrift, the marine commander on Guadalcanal. Vandegrift, Knox said, described the outcome of the naval action, which he obviously had watched with the utmost concern, as a crushing defeat for the Japanese. The marine general also praised the naval forces participating and, Knox said, "properly and deservedly" complimented his own air forces on Guadalcanal.

Vandegrift, Knox added, concluded his message with a "beautiful, moving tribute," to the effectiveness of navy-marine cooperation in the Solomons.

There has been no further word from the battle area on the still unreported results of what apparently was the conclusive encounter of the running sea battle of last week. This encounter occurred on the night of November 14-15 and Knox said information as to results was still lacking here, but would be released as quickly as possible once it came in.

Since the Secretary had characterized the Solomons campaign as a series of "rounds," he was asked how many rounds it might go on, that is how many times the Japanese could come back and how many rounds there would be.

"The only safe assumption," he replied, "is that they will come back and that is exactly what we are making our plans for."

He said that as a result of this most recent battle it obviously would be more difficult for the Japanese to come back, but declined to say that they might be greatly impeded by their losses.

Asked why each side was investing so heavily in the battle for control of the southeastern Solomons, Knox said that the islands were obviously of first class importance to the United States because they flank our lines of communication and supply with Australia and from them the Japanese could make direct attack on those lines.

They are important to the Japanese, he continued, because they could serve as a base for hammering away at Australian supply lines.

Speed, Delivery Gratifying

In commenting on the construction of American warships as compared with the enemy's construction program, Knox said that the "speed of delivery of our combatant ships is one of the most gratifying phases of the whole picture" and that the process of converting large non-combatant ships into aircraft carriers was going along with "gratifying speed."

He was asked whether this country would not be able to replace easily and quickly its losses in the Solomons battle of two light cruisers and six destroyers. In reply he simply reminded the conference that on Armistice Day the federal shipbuilding yard at Kearny, N. J., launched four destroyers.

Knox called the Solomons battle the "greatest surface action of this war to date" and said that while it was apparently the greatest surface action since the engagement between Britain and Germany at Jutland in the North Sea during the first World War it was not "greater than Jutland."

In a savage three-day conflict that sent the foe's battered naval remnants into hiding, 23 Nipponese ships were sunk, seven were damaged and possibly 20,000 to 40,000 Japanese troops were lost in the swirl of sunken transports.

First details of the battle that raged from November 13 to 15 were released by the Navy last night. Further reports may boost the staggering toll taken of enemy ships but already the victory was hailed by naval officers unofficially as the greatest of the war thus far, and perhaps of modern times.

The partial reports listed the sinking of a Japanese battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers, eight crowded transports and four cargo ships. The American losses were given as two light cruisers and six destroyers.

Thus, in 11 months of war, Associated Press records indicate that 365 Japanese ships have been sent to the bottom of the Pacific as against 84 American vessels, including those listed as lost at Pearl Harbor.

Of these losses, 119 were Japanese warships and 50 were American.

At Close Range

Much of the running sea fight was at close range in darkness. So furious was the action that at one time two of three large Japanese units that converged for an attack on prized Guadalcanal Island "seemed confused," the Navy said, and "were firing at each other."

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, declared at Pearl Harbor last night he believed the Japanese "brought down everything they had."

"As a result," he added, "all the enemy forces were either destroyed or driven back and a major victory was obtained by our gallant forces."

While battleships took part in the gigantic naval engagement, the Japanese brought no airplane carriers to bear. Nimitz expressed belief the foe either had no carriers left or "didn't choose to risk them." No mention was made as to whether American carriers participated.

Nimitz assertion that "both sides had battleships and that our battleships contributed to the loss of the enemy to a great degree," was the first official disclosure of the presence of the big U. S. battlewagons in the southwestern Pacific fighting. So far they have not been mentioned specifically in Navy Department communiques.

The Navy's description of the spectacular combat, fought under the immediate direction of Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, told of the discovery early this month of heavy Japanese shipping concentrations in the New British-northwestern Solomons area. This was the beginning of an attempted major assault to recapture Henderson airfield and other American positions in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi region.

The Rising Sun's offensive was underway November 10 with three naval forces streaming to the attack. One prong approached the southeastern Solomons from the north. The other detachments, counting many transports, closed in from Rabaul and Buin, where they already had felt the lash of bombs from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's planes.

The foe's spearhead—two battleships of the Kongo class, two heavy cruisers, four light cruisers and about 10 destroyers — bolted into the Guadalcanal battle zone after midnight of November 13.

An intended bombardment of the American-held airfield prepatory to a large scale landing of troops was thwarted suddenly by American warships arriving at the right moment. It was in this close-range battle that the Japanese vessels slammed away at each other, unwittingly committing a sort of naval hara-kiri.

Says Gun Was Loaded

New York, Nov. 17 (AP) — A schoolboy testifying at the first degree murder trial of Joseph Annunziata, 19, and Neil Simonelli, 16, accused of slaying Erwin Goodman, 36, math teacher in a Brooklyn junior high school, told today of seeing one of the defendants hand the other a pistol and say: "Here it's loaded. Wait until his back is turned." The prosecution contends that the two former "zoot suit" students shot Goodman in the back after an argument with him.

Truck Hits Tree

Monday evening about 10 o'clock a large trailer-tractor truck owned by the Milk Transportation Co. of Highland Mills, got out of control and crashed into a tree in front of 66 East Chester street. Clarence C. McGill, driver of the machine, informed the police that the steering gear suddenly went bad, causing the trailer-tractor truck to swerve from the road and crash into the tree. No personal injuries were reported but the big machine was damaged.

N.L.R.B. Orders Kalter Reinstated

Discharged Ward Employe Is Now at Stewart Field

Final N. L. R. B. order in the controversy between the Retail Clerks International Protective Association and Robert Kalter and Montgomery Ward & Co. was received Saturday by Francis Martocci, attorney for the union. It confirms the recommendations made by Examiner I. L. Broadwin, with the exception that notice indicating compliance with the board's cease and desist order need be posted only in the Kingston store of the Ward Co. instead of in all its New York state stores, as the examiner had recommended.

Under the N. L. R. B. order, the company is directed to cease and desist from interfering with employes' union activities; to reinstate Kalter in his former position and to compensate him for any losses he may have sustained by reason of unemployment.

Attorney Martocci said this morning that Kalter at present is employed at the Stewart Airport and that the government has declared he is employed in essential war work and cannot be released to resume his former position with the Ward Co.

HIS 100%—YOUR 10 PER CENT

The eager acceptance by the rank and file of Americans of the opportunity to invest in War Bonds and Stamps is not only a manifestation of the inherent sound, common sense of the American people, but it is proof positive there is no complacency here and that patriotism runs high and that the spirit of independence which made of us a great nation is still virile and strong. But we have not done enough.

Almost fifty millions of Americans have invested more than nine billion dollars in War Bonds. Not in decades has any single effort aroused such a sense of pride in America; such fervor in the hearts of America's freemen, as has the campaign to sell War Bonds.

From hamlet and by-way and from city and highway and from the plains to the mountains comes the voluntary challenge from the throats of these millions of Americans—"This is our America. We shall defend her." But we have not started to sacrifice. We have only begun to finance this war.

We must have more millions of farmers, more millions of workers in the industrial plants, more millions in office and store putting more and more billions into War Bonds before we reach the goal of ten per cent of the nation's gross payroll invested in War Bonds. No person gainfully employed should shirk. Everybody must join the Payroll Savings Plan for regular deductions of earnings for War Bonds to the extent of ten per cent. Where there is no Payroll Saving Plan available, regular investment of ten per cent of income must be done individually.

The Treasury Department is today opening a more intensive campaign with the slogan "Top That Ten Per Cent by New Year's." That means ten per cent of the nation's gross payroll must go into War Bonds by the first of the year.

Love of country, love of home and love of our American way of life should spark this great voluntary and democratic method of financing this war, which is our war, your war. For your boy, your husband, your father, your sweetheart is there on the battle front, on the high seas, in the air, in the training camps ready to give his all for you and for our country.

To make his hundred per cent worth while, the Treasury Department must have your ten per cent.

WINTER RESORTS

The St. Petersburg, Fla., Chamber of Commerce reports about two-thirds as many winter visitors as have usually arrived by this time. But it learns that many visitors will remain longer than in previous years. The tourist now, when he gets to a pleasant place, stays there and drives little. In easier years there was more running around.

No tourist haven expects to do much business during the war. The very nature of life under war conditions precludes it. Some of the people who cater to tourists are engaged in war work for the duration, some in factories, others helping out on farms. The rest are sitting tight, doing what little business there is to do, knowing that when the war is over it will be reasonable to expect a great rush of travel.

It has become a normal business in America, this one of catering to people who want to get around and see the country. It is an abnormal time, but some day there will be gas again, and plenty of railway trains, and better ones. Then the restless, inquisitive and eager to learn American will once more be going places, seeing things and storing up impressions.

DEATH IN THE DESERT

The most pitiful thing in that North African warfare is the plight of the Italians. Those unlucky stooges of Hitler have been heartlessly abandoned by the Nazis, in their western flight, and left without food or water. Of two such deprivations, the lack of water in that barren desert is the most terrible. They also suffer greatly from the cold nights. Thousands of them, who might have been saved by a decent sharing of such supplies as the Germans possessed, have died in the desert sands.

It is another example of the way the Nazis treat their allies. The Germans must have the best of everything, and the Italians must take their leavings, if any.

Yet such arrogance and cruelty may be a good thing in the end—for those Italians who survive. The Italian people, already sick of their alliance, will be so completely "fed up" that they will repudiate both Mussolini and his German partners in crime, and cast their lot permanently with civilized nations.

STAND-UP TRAVEL

And still tires need to be saved. Hence the new order of Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, reducing drastically on November 1 the bus service of six cities. By this reduction Eastman hopes to make bus-riders use the street cars which in many cases run over the same streets, to reduce bus mileage by 15 per cent, and to save 100,000,000 tire miles a year.

This cut now affects only New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati and Richmond. No one can doubt that there will be others. Thus there will be untold additions to the numbers of that famous American character, the Straphanger, once a creature of jest but now a contributor to the war effort.

As Gen. James H. Doolittle takes over the air forces in Africa, everybody expects that General Jimmy will help belie his name as usual, and do much.

"We know the fate that awaits us if we lose the war," says Hitler. Sure—America won't quit cold this time.

Joe Stalin is telling us democracies a little more than is really necessary, but can you blame him?

Hitler says he will never flee. But in case he changes his mind, we'll be glad to suggest a place to go to.

Never in human history has there been so much news.

VITAMIN B COMPLEX

Physicians who have followed the history of the vitamins will remember that vitamin C was one of the first vitamins to gain fame as it was found that scurvy could be prevented by eating foods rich in vitamin C.

Later came the very great interest in vitamin D because it prevented rickits (rachitis) which up to that time had been widespread. Today one rarely sees a case of misshapen legs in children due to rickits.

Still later came the knowledge of the benefits derived from vitamin A; infections warded off and night blindness prevented.

Finally came vitamin B, with its family—B1, B2, B complex and others—as a nerve builder, a definite treatment for neuritis, an appetite builder and an aid to various run down conditions.

Lately we have been reading about vitamin B (complex) as delaying the onset of fatigue. An interesting experiment on the use of vitamin B complex in the treatment of fatigue is recorded in the Journal of Industrial Hygiene and Toxicology (poisons) by Drs. E. Simonson, N. Enzer, A. Baer, and R. Braun. These physicians put 23 persons to various fatigue tests. First they found what each individual could do in the way of work before he became fatigued; then 12 were given vitamin B complex in tablet form and 11 were given plain tablets similar in appearance containing no vitamin B complex but with the same tastes.

From the standpoint of fatigue of the mucles those given the vitamin B complex tablets showed no greater improvement than the ones who received no vitamin B complex. However, from the standpoint of fatigue of the nervous system, measured by the flicker light test, which I mentioned in a previous article, considerable difference was shown. Of the 12 given the B complex, 5 required a great deal more time to become tired, 3 showed moderate amount more time, and 4 showed no change. In the 11 who received no B complex, there was no change in the amount of time it took to cause tiredness of the nervous system.

From the above experiment we learn, then, that for brain workers or those who must keep mind and body alert at their work, vitamin B complex delays or postpones fatigue. Foods rich in vitamin B complex are: yeast, whole wheat breads, bacon, almonds, peanuts, and others.

Foods Rich in Vitamin B1

Send today for a complete list of foods containing vitamin B1, the vitamin which postpones fatigue. To obtain this list just send five cents (coin preferably) to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., and ask for list of foods rich in vitamin B1, mentioning The Kingston Daily Freeman.

Labor-Saving Plans Given to Wood-Cutters

Ithaca — Fuel-wood cutters who have ventured into the woods for the first time, with axe and saw in hand, may harvest fewer blisters and sore muscles along with their firewood, by following certain labor-saving plans.

Even seasoned woodsmen do not always employ all the tricks that save hard work in getting wood to the woodpile, says Prof. A. B. Recknagel of the New York State College of Agriculture. Among his suggestions for easy woodcutting are:

In felling trees, saw in deep for the undercut, to save time and energy in chopping.

In thick woods, where felled trees may lodge in the limbs of other trees and the butts of cut trees dig into the ground, place a greased hardwood plank at the base of each tree on the same side as the undercut before it is felled. This will make the butt of the tree slide out, and bring down the top.

If woods roads will carry a truck safely, wood can be piled along the road instead of at the edge of the woods, to save time in skidding.

If the buzz saw is kept some distance away, near the buildings, entire trees can be skidded to the saw, and the limbs cut off quickly with power instead of with axe or crosscut saw.

Use a buzz saw rig that is mounted on wheels or at the rear of a tractor or truck, for easy moving and for quick setting.

CARS FOR BUSINESS ONLY

Gasoline is rationed in El Salvador on a strictly business basis to reduce consumption 60 per cent, according to regulations issued in San Salvador. Official cars, diplomatic corps, doctors, clergy, funeral cars, milk and coffee transport vehicles and public service vehicles only are eligible. Busses operating in zones served by railroads are not eligible.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The other day I wrote a sketch calling attention to some of the old time bakeries in Kingston. One that I failed to mention was the bakery on Wall street that was conducted for years by A. A. and C. R. Styles, who in February, 1908, sold the business to Charles B. Everett and Clarence Wilson, who conducted it for many years.

One of the best known druggists in Kingston for years was the late William S. Eltinge, who on February 4, 1908, bought the drug business of William F. Cooper on John street. Mr. Eltinge was engaged in the drug business here for many years. He was also active in firemanic matters in the city, and had served both as president and member of the fire board.

Turning from drugs to railroads it was on February 7, 1918, that N. A. Sims, for years general passenger agent of the old Ulster & Delaware railroad, died in his home on West Chester street. Mr. Sims was connected with the former U. & D. road for many years, and was one of the best known railroad men in this section of the state.

In the days at the turn of the century one of the best known confectionery stores on Wall street was that of C. Roscoe Banta who on February 10, 1908, sold the business to Frederick Lynes.

It is also interesting to recall that on January 17, 1928, Charles B. Everett, owner of the building at 318-320 Wall street, leased it to the J. C. Penney Co., operator of a group of chain stores. The building was remodeled that year and still houses the Penney Co. Store.

Kingston's Chamber of Commerce was still active in the 1920's and at the annual meeting in January, 1908, E. Frank Flanagan, Wall street clothier, was re-elected president. The other officers elected were James A. Dwyer as first vice president, Lewis Brown as second vice president; Morris Samter as treasurer, and Louis S. Coe was re-elected as the paid secretary of the organization.

Horse lovers of Kingston will recall Demarest, the trotter owned by Dr. B. W. Maben, and may recall that the animal dropped dead on Flatbush avenue on February 11, 1918. Demarest had a record of 2:06 ¼ made at Syracuse.

Older readers will recall the many fast horse races that used to be staged on the ice in the Rondout creek in the winters of not so long ago. Albany avenue was also used as a racing field during the winters when there was good sleighing.

And speaking of high prices I recall that in January, 1908, eggs were selling for 21 cents a dozen; lard for 12 cents a pound and butter for 23 cents a pound. Today prices on those products have doubled.

Congress Would Make Mistake in Attaching Too Much Importance to Maas' Words

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 17—When a member of the House naval affairs committee who happens to be a Marine colonel comes back from the Pacific and says we are "losing the war" out there, the other members of Congress feel inclined to attach considerable weight to his report. That's why impetus has been given to a movement led by Minority Leader Martin for a congressional committee of both parties to have a voice in the conduct of the war.

But it would be a mistake if hasty action were taken in Congress either condemning or urging the proposal, because it raises some very important questions of policy that ought to be frankly explored so that even a well-intentioned suggestion does not in the end actually result in a disservice to the management of the war.

If all that were involved were merely the set of firsthand observations brought back by Representative Maas, of Minnesota, these could easily be verified or disproved or put into proper perspective. But there is back of this movement something deeper and more significant, and perhaps the best way to correct it is to apply the treatment of healthy exposure to the free air of analysis.

To put it simply, there are many members of Congress who are so bitter against and distrustful of the administration's method of handling public authority that they openly talk of Mr. Roosevelt's alleged ambitions for a fourth term in 1944.

But who suffers from that sort of attack? Not Mr. Roosevelt—who goes on with the New Deal and his New Deal henchmen regardless of how the majority of the voters protested at the polls a couple weeks ago—but the military and naval men to whom politics is an anathema and upon whom the responsibility for winning the war has really been placed.

It is most unfortunate that Mr. Roosevelt is just as vehement against his critics and distrustful of his opponents as they are concerning him. He, however, has had opportunity after opportunity to rise above such polemics and break the vicious circle of accusation and counter-accusation, as befits a man who has been given three terms and presumably can forego further ambition. But Mr. Roosevelt, even during this fateful emergency, has been reluctant to concede that the New Deal scheme of socialization must be sacrificed to win the war. To interrogations about a lengthier work-week, for example, the President still replied with the statement either that we do not have a 40-hour week in America or that we are already working a 48-hour week, as if the economic problem involved in the straitjacket of the wage and hour law and the issue of overtime and increased manpower were as simple as that comment implies.

The American people must evidently continue to bear the burden of a class war inside this country at the same time that their sons are fighting a global war. All this puts politics to the fore and makes the Army and Navy command the target of criticism that is really aimed at Mr. Roosevelt.

Nothing could be further from the truth than the assumption that Admiral King, for instance, would allow political considerations or the behind-the-scenes jealousies of General MacArthur in Army circles to influence the strategy used. Admiral King is an independent, high-minded naval officer who is fighting a two-ocean war with a one-ocean navy, and he had nothing to do with the evolution of the Allied diplomacy that failed to keep Japan out of a Pacific ocean war till Hitler could be defeated. Admiral King must fight with the weapons and ships allotted to him, and it does no good at this late date to bemoan our earlier misfortunes in the Pacific, for we are correcting their ill effects.

Admiral King hasn't confided his strategy to Representative Maas or anyone else outside of his official circle, and it may well be inferred that the Minnesota Marine-congressman knows only a portion of the story of all the global problems involved. There isn't any political subservience or sycophancy in Admiral King's makeup, and members of Congress would do well to let the Army and Navy high command alone and concentrate their attention on the economic blunders being made on the home front, rather than to demand a voice in the making of the strategic policies of the war abroad.

"News is a Weapon," by Matthew Gordon.

The effort to find a good title for a different sort of war book may produce some confusion. It does in the case of Matthew Gordon's "News Is a Weapon." What Mr. Gordon means by the phrase is that the press releases of our enemies have been used as a weapon. News is truth, and there has been only enough newspapers and the radio to use a certain percentage of them.

This is the first book that I have seen in which the attempt to use innocent press associations and innocent newspapers and innocent radio chains to do murder has been accurately explained. It is true that Mr. Gordon has no answer—the United States and Britain operate on the theory that in the end the public will be intelligent enough to catch on. Whether the theory is right or wrong can be debated, but under our present system we can only check, not eliminate, the brutal assault of the enemy. It's too bad, but it's true. An example—

When Germany was about ready for the assault on France Hitler began a careful campaign of bewilderment. The world knew Hitler was going somewhere. Hints came from Berlin that it would be to the South, the East, the West. The result was that the Allies were forced to guard every possible sore spot as carefully as they could. But then, when it was obvious that Hitler was going west, something else cropped up in the news—the Schlieffen plan. This was subtly introduced in such a way that the Allies were supposed to believe it would be followed in this war. But the Germans used only part of it, and caught the Allies off center.

By dropping a few empty parachutes and publicizing them cleverly, the Nazis kept Britain in a dither for days, and time was lost. Berlin's claims often bore no relation to truth, but were made to direct action down a wanted channel. Neutral capitals were fed stories so they might be denied in Berlin, and time-wasting controversy begun. Distorted pictures were produced by requiring radio and newsmen to use the statements of the German high command as fact, although this usually could be tempered by the home offices. It is a vast and clever scheme that grows more difficult from day to day, but still operates. And Mr. Gordon has explained it neatly and without many extra words.

YERBA MATE FOR TEA

San Francisco (AP)—With war interfering with tea imports, the Retail Grocers Advocate has directed merchants' attention to yerba mate, widely drunk in South America and available from that source. Mate consists of dried leaves which are steeped like tea, and already has a limited market in the United States.

When a compressed air cylinder exploded in a garage in Klerksdorp, South Africa, it went through the roof, over a church steeple, and landed in Church street three blocks away.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—"Mystery men" in Washington are about as common as tumbleweeds in Texas and usually just as important in the national scheme of things.

Generally, they are fellows with some sort of title or "important contacts" who look wise, say little, spend money, and by innuendo and rumor create the impression that they are riding very firmly on the coattails of the inner circle.

If you read or hear that Ferdinand Eberstadt is Washington's No. 1 "mystery man" — and you probably will — don't get the wrong impression. He doesn't belong to that outfit.

In the first place his title isn't "some sort of." He's voice chairman of the War Production Board and head of the newly created Facility Clearance Board. At the moment, he has more say-so about what goes into military and what into civilian production than any person in Washington. In his capacity as head of FCB, he's taking a look-see at present and planned construction projects with a view to eliminating waste.

As for "contacts"— hold your breath. It was Under Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal who brought Eberstadt to Washington nearly two years ago to get the Army-Navy Munitions board into line as a going business institution. But, and this is important, probably his closest friend here is Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, a sidekick in World War I.

His other "contacts" include those he made at Princeton, where he picked up a Phi Beta Kappa key; on the Mexican border where he was a member of one of those snappy Park Avenue cavalry regiments; in France where he rose to captain in field artillery; as a member of the law firm of McAdoo-Cotton-Franklin; and as Wall Street investment banker.

His only resemblance to these other "mystery men" is that he doesn't talk much. When he does, it's in snapped-off sentences and the word he uses most frequently is "No." When it comes to publicity, he's a Hollywood starlet in reverse.

From this, it should be apparent that "innuendo" is too long a route for dynamic Mr. Eberstadt to travel and if he has ever bothered with a "rumor" I haven't heard of it. As for spending money, he could, but he doesn't.

In a recent weekly magazine article, Eberstadt was referred to as an "energetic icicle." Employes and the newsmen who are on his run are generally less picturesque. They just say he's "tough".

That crack isn't really uncomplimentary. His position in WPB and his connection with the Army, as well as the Navy, places him in what could be the most powerful job in the country so far as production is concerned.

Some observers think (and the ranks are growing every day) that he has that quality of toughness which may iron out our production kinks—may even result in his superseding Donald Nelson, in authority, if not in title.

Colds Cause Absences In U. S. War Industries

Since Pearl Harbor colds and complications have cost war workers $250,000,000 in lost wages and have caused absences in war industries totalling 40,000,000 work-days, time sufficient to build 900 Flying Fortresses, 8,000 fighter planes, 8,000 tanks, or 35,000 jeeps, according to the Health Bulletin, published by the Vick Chemical Company.

Respiratory diseases now cause more lost work time in war industries than almost all other illnesses, the report states, and a progressive increase in time loss from colds is predicted "unless vigorous and determined efforts are started at once to prevent colds from spreading and to treat all colds promptly."

Giving common-sense health rules that "may help you avoid many colds," a section of the Bulletin addressed to war workers says: "Live normally, avoid excesses. Eat simple food, drink plenty of water, and keep elimination regular. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

"Keep reminding yourself that colds are catching! Stay clear of careless coughers and sneezers. Don't share drinking cups, towels—even a half-eaten apple, a piece of candy or a 'drag' on a cigarette—with anyone.

"If you catch a cold, start care and treatment at once. A neglected cold may reduce your resistance and open the way to development of serious ailments."

B. P. W. Honors Donald Murphy

Freeman Photo

Approximately 75 members of the Board of Public Works attended a farewell party last evening at Jack Haber's Grill on Grand street in honor of Donald J. Murphy who leaves this city today with the local contingent of draftees for Camp Upton to begin his service in the United States Army. Mr. Murphy, as all the speakers remarked last evening, was one of the most popular workers on the Board of Public Works. He has been a faithful and conscientious worker for that department for the last 15 years. Following a delicious roast beef supper, Max Oppenheimer, superintendent of the department, acted as toastmaster and said a few words about Don's departure for a new way of life but in one which he was positive that the new soldier would be a success. Mr. Oppenheimer then introduced Edward Vogt, John Prucnal and Alfred Thomas, who also made brief speeches paying tribute to the new draftee. Last night's function was all the more timely as the hall was completely decorated in patriotic colors. The committee arranging the farewell party for Mr. Murphy included Robert Dederick, chairman, who also spoke; Noah Burger, Walter Tammany and Robert Brizee. In the above photo, Max Oppenheimer is shown presenting the draftee with a "purse." Others in the photo are (kneeling in front row), John Prucnal and John Carpino. Standing in the second row from left to right are Alfred Thomas, Max Oppenheimer, Donald Murphy and Robert Dederick. In the usual order in the back row are Harry Zeller, Robert Brizee, Walter Tammany and Noah Burger.

Nazi Germany Is At Crossroads of War; Outlook Grim

der is generally less, meaning that there is likely to be extensive livestock slaughter. The Nazis are claiming nothing from the Russian Ukraine this year. Finland, Poland, Belgium, Norway and Greece are Europe's black spots, with young and old sinking under food deficiencies and diseases.

Economically Germany is hitting an all-time low. Most of the deterioration is traceable to manpower shortage and transportation knots. And Hitler still does not have the oil and rubber he covets.

In Russia, the war has proved a tremendous drain of economic resources for Germany and blockaded Europe, instead of filling the reservoir as had been hoped.

The North African occupation has cut Germany's access to phosphates—irreplaceable as fertilizer—cobalt, vegetable oils, manganese, antimony, wool, cotton, fresh fruits and vegetables. Besides, it has closed a leak in the blockade through which Hitler was getting Far Eastern supplies such as rubber.

Hitler has exhausted his own labor. Six million foreigners — one in every four workmen—are engaged in Germany, but they are mostly of low efficiency. The skilled hands he needs are in France where Frenchmen have declined to help the Nazis.

Meanwhile, the growing strain of long hours, R. A. F. raids and war conditions on the health and stamina of the industrious German workers is beginning to tell in declining productivity per man.

An iron and steel shortage is becoming a bottleneck. As a result machinery in plants closed down, because of wartime transfers, is being scrapped. Air raids on the Ruhr district are estimated to have caused a drop of 1,250,000 tons in Germany's steel production.

To stretch the supply of steel, the quality is being diluted. After four years of high speed war production, machinery is beginning to balk, due to normal wear and tear and inability to make replacements.

It is estimated that only 20 per cent of Germany's present production is for civilian needs.

Anti-war talk, especially among soldiers, appears to be spreading. A German anti-Nazi station said "Hitler can no longer win the war. He can only prolong it—and prolongation spells ruin for us Germans."

On the home front the inflation bugbear is more threatening. Blackout crimes are soaring. Clothing coupons issued originally for 15 months have been extended over a longer period. Household goods destroyed in air raids or just wearing out can be replaced only with the greatest difficulty.

Barely able to keep their households running, hausfraus are beginning to defy compulsory billeting of bombed-out persons. On top of that is the deadly monotony of poor diet. The German radio took note of complaints that the "bread sticks obstinately to knives" with assurances that "no chemical substitutes are being used."

In Coast Guard

ROBERT A. JONES

Robert A. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Addison Jones of 334 Foxhall avenue, is now stationed at Manhattan Beach in Brooklyn with the United States Coast Guard. He enlisted about six weeks ago but did not report to the training center until about a week ago. Bob, being a member of the never-ending bowling family of Joneses, was well-known in this city for his participation in the sport and was one of the best young keglers of the city. He and his father, Ad Jones, have appeared together many times with a bowling outfit and many say that they formed one of the best father and son bowling duos in these parts. Although local bowling circles will miss another fine participant, all of his friends are sure that Bob will have the same success in this new adventure as he did in the sport of bowling.

Destroyer Smith Performed Task, Skipper Declares

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 17 (AP) — A fighting story of how the U. S. Destroyer Smith carried out its assigned mission through an inferno of flames and exploding ammunition came from the south Pacific today.

"I cannot say enough in praise of our type of sailors," declared Lieut. Commander Hunter Wood, Jr., skipper of the sturdy destroyer that survived a direct hit by a blazing Jap torpedo plane while protecting a task force aircraft carrier the morning of October 26 off Santa Cruz Island in the Solomons.

Commander Wood said the destroyer had taken part in fighting off one wave of Jap torpedo planes and was battling a second wave when the Jap torpedo plane, apparently set aflame by gunfire, fell on the Smith, hitting the No. 2 gun, in front of the bridge, and crashing to the deck between the No. 2 and No. 1 guns.

"I never saw it coming. I heard a swish and there was a flash of red flame," said Wood, whose home is Hopkinsville, Ky., but whose wife and four children are staying in San Francisco.

He gave this account:

All the forepart of the destroyer immediately became an inferno, with blazing gasoline from the plane wreckage exploding the destroyer's ready ammunition. Then, about 6 or 8 minutes after the plane crashed to the deck, its torpedo exploded, causing additional death and destruction.

Despite the fire, the destroyer maintained its place in the carrier's protecting screen and participated with what guns still were functioning in fighting off a third wave of Japanese torpedo planes.

"We kept right in formation, except for slight deviations to get away from the smoke."

Three sailors fighting the flames "went right into a compartment where the ammunition boxes were so hot they couldn't handle them. The men had no fear of anything. They walked right into the fire." An hour and a half later the flames were in control.

Binnewater Ice Company Loses Seventh Employe

Members of the force at the plant of the Binnewater Lake Ice Co. gave a farewell party for Carlton W. Wells, who has been employed as one of the engineers at the plant for the past two years and who left today for induction into the armed forces. There was a speech by President Edgar T. Shultis and Wells was presented with a completely equipped kit. He makes the seventh member of the force of the Binnewater Lake Ice Co. to enter the service.

was added the $2,000 appropriation. The total expenditures have been $2,238.12, leaving a balance of $75.73. Refunds in the sum of $95 were received. The report was referred to committee on county judge and district attorney.

County Judge J. Edward Conway also submitted his annual report on Children's Court work, showing of the disposition of some 163 cases. In his report he pointed out the increasing juvenile delinquency, which he attributed to lack of home supervision and to the normal upswing which is evidenced during a period of war. Judge Conway also reported on the Pistol Permit Bureau Fund and asked that $600 be appropriated for the ensuing year. Referred to committee on county judge and to the committee on appropriations.

Supervisor Rifenbary moved that since Supervisor Edwin W. Ashby of the fifth ward and Supervisor James J. Costello of the eighth ward were now in service that the board pay them their salary for the time they served. The amount due Mr. Ashby is $214.86 and Mr. Costello $293.64.

Clerk James J. Simpson asked for a meeting of the equalization committee on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All supervisors were asked to get in their bonded indebtedness figures by next meeting night and also their grand jury lists. The board then recessed until 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night.

Youths May Enlist

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP) — Seventeen-year-old youths may enlist, with parental or guardian consent, in the New York State Guard. Governor Lehman authorized the drop in age limit, explaining the selective service act revision calling for induction of 18 and 19-year-olds will take approximately 15 per cent of the guard's membership.

"And what a difference that made! You see, I knew this wartime living had upset my usual habits of working, sleeping and eating. But I overlooked the fact that in this rush, my meals were likely to be improperly balanced —and I just wasn't getting the 'bulk' I needed.

"And this very lack is one of the most frequent causes of wartime constipation. Medicinal laxatives gave me only temporary relief, because they don't correct the cause.

Barbara Returns, Wonders Why Fuss Is Made Over Her

Beverly Hills, Calif., Nov. 17 (AP) —Barbara Bennett, whose desire for a little rest caused southern California police officers to lose a lot of it, is safe at home and says she can't understand what all the fuss was about.

While the widespread search for her was on, Miss Bennett, she said, was in seclusion in a rest home and knew nothing of the alarm her absence had caused. She was reported missing Saturday morning by her husband, Addison Randall, screeen cowboy.

Miss Bennett, former wife of Singer Morton Downey, left her apartment Friday evening, presumably to keep a dinner engagement at the home of James Doane, actor's agent, and Mrs. Doane.

"But I changed my mind," Miss Bennett explained, "and didn't go there. Instead I went to another friend's home and telephoned the Doanes that I wouldn't be at the dinner.

"I decided I needed a rest, so I went to a rest home where I registered under an assumed name.

"The first I knew of the excitement was Monday morning," she continued, "when I bought a newspaper and read that I had been reported missing. I telephoned Mr. Randall at once that I was safe.

"I can't understand all the fuss I seem to have started."

When Randall filed his missing persons report at police headquarters Saturday he said she was "somewhat intoxicated" when she left their apartment Friday night.

Her husband denied reports that they are separating, but said that he is going to San Francisco to take a theatre engagement.

"Miss Bennett is staying here," Randall said. "There is no formal separation, although it might come to that."

Randall and she were married in Mexico in June, 1941, a few days after Downey was awarded an uncontested divorce in Bridgeport, Conn., together with custody of their five children.

She later tried to obtain the children's custody, but a Bridgeport court denied her plea last month.

Three Days—One Tanker

Vancouver, Wash., Nov. 17 (AP)— A Henry J. Kaiser shipyard claimed another record today—a three-day ship launching. A tank landing craft slid into the Columbia river from his Vancouver yard here last night, just two days, 23 hours and 40 minutes after keel-laying.

All road transport vehicles in County Mayo, Eire, have been pooled to conserve gasoline and tires.

Anyone Who Has Basic 'A' Book Is To Register Tires

Every person who has a Basic "A" ration book issued for passenger car use or a Basic "D" book for a motorcycle will have to register Thursday, Friday or Saturday of this week at one of the numerous inspection stations in the city and county if future gasoline and tires are to be issued to the car. This means that any holder of an "A" or "D" book must register even though a supplemental "B" book has been issued.

There has been some confusion among passenger car owners as to whether they have to register their tires and secure an inspection slip if they have had a "B" book issued.

John M. Cashin, chairman of the Kingston ration board, said today that there had been numerous inquiries at the office from people now holding "B" books as to whether they would be required to register their tires the last three days of this week in order to be eligible for future gas and tire rationing. In order to have had issued a "B" or "C" book passenger car owners must have had a Basic "A" book issued and therefore they must register.

Owners of commercial vehicles will use another form which will be supplied by the applicant's War Price and Rationing Board. These include ambulances, hearses, a vehicle held by a dealer for sale or resale or operated on a dealer license plates, a taxi or jitney or vehicle leased from or held for rental by a car renting agency, a vehicle owned or leased by a State or Federal, local or foreign government or government agency, a vehicle which belongs to a fleet of three or more passenger cars owned or leased by and used principally for business or occupational purposes of the same person or organization. All other car owners must register.

Mettacahonts Resident Is Found Lying Dead

John Vandemark, a man of about 60 years of age, who lived alone at Mettacahonts, was found lying dead alongside the road near his house about 3:30 Monday afternoon. Mr. Vandemark, who had been using a pick to dig out the remains of a stump, was found by Charles Osterhoudt and Abram Bernstein, who were passing by.

Dr. Rachel Halloway of Kerhonkson was summoned and pronounced death due to a heart attack. Coroner Frank J. McCardle, who had been notified, rendered a verdict of death from natural causes.

The deceased is survived by his wife, who was a Miss Churchwell before her marriage; two sons, Vernon Vandemark of Mettacahonts and Byron Vandemark, who conducts a garage business on Route 209 at Accord; a daughter, Mrs. Ward Hutchins of Poughkeepsie.

A HUGE TANK swings upward through the darkness. Winches creak and derricks groan. Under the shaded flares men's backs are sweaty.

In an hour the convoy sails. And every second in that hour is packed with dynamite.

For ships at anchor win no wars.

Rail transportation to the ports is a vital key to the life-and-death shuttle race of the Atlantic.

And this involves more than keeping the trains rolling.

The grim, unrelenting activity of the Nazi wolf pack makes it impossible to determine accurately the time of arrival of ships in port—frequently makes it necessary to divert convoys to ports far distant from those originally scheduled.

But no matter where or when the ships come in, there must be waiting balanced cargoes ready for immediate loading. And there must be no congestion—no immobilized rolling stock.

Careful planning, accurate timing, the machinery to divert shipments en route—these are essential to control the flow of vital war materials to the docks.

That ships have not had to wait for cargoes—that ports have not become congested—is a tribute to the cooperation that exists between the government and the railroads.

Of railroad performance, Joseph B. Eastman, Director, Office of Defense Transportation, has said: "There has been no breakdown and no serious congestion. The railroads have done promptly and well all that they have been called upon to do. In view of all of the conditions, it has been a remarkable record."

Remarkable as this achievement is, it must be remembered that there are physical limits to the carrying capacity of any given amount of equipment.

The coming months will make even sterner demands on American railroad capacity—demands which can be fully met only with additional locomotives and cars.

But meanwhile railroad men are united in their determination to make every available locomotive and car yield the last ounce of performance—feeding the convoys which carry the hope of the world.

Nuzzo Supporters Hold Election

His Opponents Challenge Legality of Voting

A new subject for controversy was injected into the troubled affairs of Local 17, International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union, when, at an election held in Newburgh, Nuzzo and his entire slate of candidates were elected. The supporters of Samuel Nuzzo, deposed business agent of the Local, were said to have been the exclusive participants in the election.

The executive committee of the Local, at a meeting Saturday, voted to postpone the election to Sunday, November 29, but the election committee, named at a nominating meeting here two weeks ago, held that the executive committee had no power to postpone the election. The designated polling places in the Local territory were not opened, but Nuzzo supporters hired a hall in Newburgh and the election was held under direction of the elections committee. It is stated that only a few of the supporters of Frederick W. Dusing of Kerhonkson, who defeated Nuzzo last February, took part in the balloting.

The Dusing group, which has been known as "the rank and file" portion of the Local's membership, had challenged Nuzzo's right to run for the office on the ground that when he was last employed, it had been as a member of another craft.

The challenge was put up to Joseph V. Moreschi, international president, who ruled that it was a matter for the Local to decide. The Dusing people claim that Moreschi's decision is a reversal of action he took some time ago in reference to eligibility of two of their members for office.

Nuzzo is at present facing charges of having, during his tenure of office, misappropriated some $35,000 of Union funds. His attorney, Henry Hirschberg, who resigned as district attorney of Orange county, on Friday, appeared before the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn and asked for a postponement of the trial. The move for a postponement is being opposed by Assistant Attorney General Edward G. O'Neil, who is representing the Attorney General's office in the proceedings.

Solution Of Yesterday's Puzzle

OFFICE CAT

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

On the days when we seem to have the most sense, we also seem to do the least worrying about things we can't help.

A recruit failed to salute a captain. The captain followed him inside the barracks and demanded:

Captain — Don't you recognize the uniform?

Acute Wool Shortage

Our wood supply has been cut down, as everybody knows;
And we've been warned for months to save our last-year's woolen clothes.
And, since you know me anyway,
right here I'll just confess:
My stock of last year's things to save was one cheap woolen dress.
But one was all that I could wear,
so I refused to worry.
I knew I'd get it out some day,
and saw no need to hurry.
And so, today, when cold winds blew, I said: "Right now I'll get it";
But, oh, I'd waited much too long
—some hungry moths have et it!

Wife—Oh, George, do you realize it's almost a year since our honeymoon, and that glorious day we spent on the sands. I wonder how we'll spend this one?

Husband—On the rocks.

EXPERIENCE . . . Most of us believe that experience is what happens to a man . . . That isn't so . . . It is what a man does with what happens to him . . . This is why experience is classed as the greatest of all teachers—if we but have the wisdom to be guided by its lessons.

Office Manager—I suppose you are laying something aside for a rainy day?

Bookkeeper—Well, I'll admit I'm trying to accumulate enough for a wet evening.

Time was when we could take our time to do our tasks well. But that time has passed. We must do things as well, but must comply with schedules—it's our time no longer. We are in an all-out war.

We are parts of a great machine, and parts must work together in order that this machine give maximum production on time.

Whether we work on the farm or in the shop, in the mines, in the mills, or in transportation of products, all of us are giving our time for VICTORY.

Our time thus becomes the nation's time.

Late one evening when Pat was working in the yard, his wife called to him loud enough for all the neighbors to hear.

Wife — Come to supper—steak and potatoes and hot rolls and coffee!

Pat(coming in with his mouth watering)—Nora, you're kidding me, aren't you?

Tempus Fugit

A glance at this year's calendar
Should set your feet a-hopping;
Great guns! There's only five more weeks
To do your Christmas shopping!

Little Betty (watching the farm hands spreading out a stack of hay to dry, could contain her curiosity no longer, so she politely said)—It is a needle you're looking for?

Departing Guest—You've got a swell place here, Frank, but it looks a little bare yet.

Host—Oh, it's only because the trees are still a little young. I hope they'll have grown to a good size before you come again.

Everyone has work in which to carry on—duties to perform, influences to exert, which are peculiarly his, and which no conscience but his own can teach.

A mushroom measuring 17 inches across was found recently in Middleton-in-Teeside, England.

Farm Fire Hazards Are Shown by Inspections

Cortland,—An inspection of 129 Cortland County farms for fire hazards this fall showed that no farm is completely free from the threat of serious damage by fire; the average number of serious fire hazards on a farm is more than five.

Farm fire inspection reports turned in by 4-H club members were the source of the facts on fire hazards that still remain on an ordinary New York State farm.

The Cortland County farmers in the survey are alert to the danger of chimney fires, for the figures show that nearly all clean their chimneys each year, and maintain a safe distance between stovepipes and walls or woodwork. Alertness is needed, however, because more than a third of all the chimneys have no fire clay lining.

Nearly all farms have stovepipes that run through ceilings or partitions, though practically all have ventilator collars around the pipes to lessen danger of fire.

On the score of early fire control, many farms lack enough safeguards. Twenty-nine of the 129 farm homes have neither running water nor pump in the house; 67 homes have no fire extinguisher, and only a few farms have fire extinguishers in the barn.

Storage of kerosene or gasoline in house or barn is one of the most serious fire hazards on these farms; 63 or about half of the farms report such storage. Thirty-six families still risk their lives by using kerosene to quicken fires in stoves. Nearly half the farmers invite serious fires by storing autos on inflammable floors, or housing auto, truck, or tractor, in a main building.

A few buildings have old curled wooden shingles that catch sparks easily, but practically all farms have ladders to use in mounting to a roof speedily.

About one-fifth of farm homes still have inflammable masses of old paper, furniture, and cloth in attic or cellar.

Few farmers have stored wet hay in their barns, but leaky roofs on 23 of the 129 farms have made wet spots in the hay mows, which may cause spontaneous combustion as easily as improperly cured hay.

Tuo other fire hazards common on the farms are unprotected electric extension cords running under rugs, over doors, and through partitions; and threshing machines on which the separator is not grounded while the machine is in operation, for protection against sparks of static electricity.

Three Towns Give Health Report at '42 Annual Meeting

Reports from the towns of Hurley, Kingston and Shawangunk were made at the county Public Health Nursing Committee meeting, Wednesday, October 28, at the Stuyvesant Hotel. These reports in full follow:

TOWN OF HURLEY

Public Health Nursing Committee

We are young but growing and in good health for a baby not quite eight months old.

Our Committee got its start in Hurley last April; our first duties being the pre-school children's census, and this will be done again this Fall.

The committee also assisted at an immunization clinic for children, taking care of transportation as well.

A group within our organization has been meeting monthly making obstetrical bundles, and are sponsoring our Home Nursing class of 24 with Miss Anne Cassidy as our teacher. Mrs. Harold Davis is the able chairman of this group and Mrs. Edmund Bower is secretary.

Our Home Nursing class is meeting every week on Tuesday evenings, and our next sewing meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. John Gill on November 17th.

We are trying out the idea for cold winter days of serving tea after the business meeting.

May we take this opportunity to thank Miss Cassidy, not only for her instructions, but also for her patience in helping us to get started in Home Nursing and Health work.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. William A. Warren
Hurley, New York

TOWN OF KINGSTON

Public Health Nursing Committee

I am very happy to report a very cooperative committee in Sawkill, as this is a small community. It is with pride, I am privileged to report a Home Nursing Class of 17, completed earlier in the year. Everyone very much interested and most willing to do their part for the benefit of our fellow-men. We were all very happy to have had Miss Anne Cassidy, as our instructress.

Mrs. Harry Hulsair completed a survey of pre-school children in our district.

Although we have no loan closet, we have a list of sick room supplies which are available, at any time, in case of emergency.

There has also been offered, by residents of our district, six cots or single beds with woolen blankets, if, and when, needed; a station wagon to be used as an ambulance and, the Church hall for a hospital by Reverend Father Hughes, for which we are truly grateful.

We, in Sawkill, are ready and willing to do our part when we are needed.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Ellen Beecher

TOWN OF SHAWANGUNK

Public Health Nursing Committee

The Public Health Committee of the Town of Shawangunk held six meetings during the year.

This committee continued to maintain the clinic rooms: payed for the janitor service, for painting of furniture and furnished wood for the stoves.

We purchased a sterilizer for the loan closet.

We purchased cod liver oil for distribution by the health nurse. Paid for one tonsilectomy.

We sponsored a class in home nursing in the health center rooms.

Provided necessary aid for the State Dental Trailer. Made three wool comforters to put in loan closet.

Several of the new members visited the tubercular hospital at Kingston.

We had Miss E. Meiers, County Agent for the Department of Social Welfare as a guest speaker.

Assisted with dental clinic transportation and provided hostesses for same.

Respectfully submitted
Mrs. De Witt Crowell
President
Shawangunk Public Health Nursing Committee

GRANGE NEWS

Ulster Grange, No. 969, of Ulster Park will hold its regular meeting in the hall Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock.

At the meeting November 4, the annual election of officers was held with the following officers elected for 1943:

Master, A. Loren LeFever; Overseer, Charles Gaudette; Lecturer, Alma Viglielmo; Steward, Harold V. Story; Chaplain Sister Pelesi; Secretary, Opta Gaudette; Treasurer, Reta Gaudette; Flora, Charlotte Havlin; Pomona, Georgianna White; Ceres, Doris Meyers; L.A.S., Mary Williams; Ex. Com. George Hard.

On Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock the Grange will sponsor its fourth annual union Thanksgiving and Go-To-Church-Sunday service in the Ulster Park Reformed Church. The pastors of the Port Ewen M. E. Church, the Esopus M. E. Church, the West Park Episcopal Church, the Union Center Chapel and the Port Ewen Reformed Church will assist in the service. The guest speaker will be the Rev. Clarance E. Brown of Kingston. The music will be in charge of Mrs. J. Hudson Cole, organist of the church, assisted by Miss Mary Polhemus.

The offering will be devoted to war activities.

Montgomery Ward's Reply to the NATIONAL WAR LABOR BOARD

November 13, 1942
National War Labor Board
Department of Labor Buildings
Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen:

We have the National War Labor Board's order of November 5.*

In this order the board demands that Montgomery Ward & Company enter into contract establishing a form of closed shop called "Maintenance of Membership," together with a check-off of union dues from wages. Under this form of closed shop, the employes who are members of the union would not be free to resign from the union without being discharged, and Wards would not be free to retain a competent worker who had resigned from the union. This making of union membership a condition of employment is the essence of the closed shop, whatever form it may take. "Maintenance of membership" is the starting phase which inevitably leads to the full closed shop.

The President of the United States is quoted as having said, on November 14, 1941: "The government of the United States will not order, nor will congress pass legislation ordering, the so-called closed shop." Wards is in agreement with this statement and believes that the board's order is not in accordance with the President's principles.

Wards believes that the board's demand not only violates the fundamental principles of liberty, but are economically unsound and are illegal under the terms of the National Labor Relations Act.

If the board's order against Wards is enforced, the pattern will be established by which all unions in all industries can secure a form of closed shop and check-off merely by appeals to the War Labor Board.

The board further ordered a form of compulsory arbitration for Wards. Wards is not opposed to voluntary arbitration. However, Wards' management should not, as demanded by the board, abandon responsibilities which have been vested in it by the owners of the corporation, and so surrender to outside arbitrators the final decision on all matters which the union may wish to treat as grievances.

The board further ordered that Wards guarantee its wages and other working conditions for a one-year period. Wards believes that a fixed duration of one year is unsound in these uncertain times.

Wards operates in a highly competitive field composed of one million seven hundred fifty thousand retail establishments. It is unfair to impose burdens upon Wards and not upon those with whom it is in competition. Ward's efforts to preserve the essential freedoms between itself and its employes have not been prompted by any feeling of anti-unionism. The report of the mediation panel expressly recognizes this fact. Wards policy has been to obey the law. Wards has twenty-nine union contracts with both A. F. of L and C. I. O. Unions.

Wards has already given its employes the increases in wages previously recommended by the board. Wards did this even though its wages were already as high as or higher than those prevailing in the industry and had been increased an average of over 21% since January, 1941. Wards is willing to include these increases in a contract with the union. There is no issue over wages.

The War Labor Board was created by the President to replace the old defense mediation board. The mediation board was destroyed by the resignation of the union members following the board's vote of nine to two against a closed shop in the Captive Coal Mine case. The War Labor Board, in name only, is composed of representatives of the unions, of industry, and of the public. The union representatives are men chosen for leadership by the unions, and have actually protected the interests of the unions. On the other hand, neither industry nor the public have had any voice in the selection of those who presumably represent them. By their decisions, the supposed representatives of industry and of the public have because of inexperience, prejudice or lack of understanding, abandoned the interests of those whom they were appointed to represent.

Under the constitution, congress is the sole law-making authority. If closed shops and compulsory arbitration are to become requirements upon employers, it is congress and not the War Labor Board which should make them so. Congress has not empowered the board to order any employer to do any of the things it demands of Wards. Accordingly, Wards rejects the orders of the board. If congress imposes closed shops, compulsory arbitration or contracts for a year's duration on employers, or if the President of the United States, as commander-in-chief in time of war, directs that Ward accept the board's rulings, which we earnestly believe are illegal and uneconomic, we will respectfully obey.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) SEWELL AVERY,
President.

HIS 100%—YOUR 10 PER CENT

The eager acceptance by the rank and file of Americans of the opportunity to invest in War Bonds and Stamps is not only a manifestation of the inherent sound, common sense of the American people, but it is proof positive there is no complacency here and that patriotism runs high and that the spirit of independence which made of us a great nation is still virile and strong. But we have not done enough.

Almost fifty millions of Americans have invested more than nine billion dollars in War Bonds. Not in decades has any single effort aroused such a sense of pride in America; such fervor in the hearts of America's freemen, as has the campaign to sell War Bonds.

From hamlet and by-way and from city and highway and from the plains to the mountains comes the voluntary challenge from the throats of these millions of Americans—"This is our America. We shall defend her." But we have not started to sacrifice. We have only begun to finance this war.

We must have more millions of farmers, more millions of workers in the industrial plants, more millions in office and store putting more and more billions into War Bonds before we reach the goal of ten per cent of the nation's gross payroll invested in War Bonds. No person gainfully employed should shirk. Everybody must join the Payroll Savings Plan for regular deductions of earnings for War Bonds to the extent of ten per cent. Where there is no Payroll Saving Plan available, regular investment of ten per cent of income must be done individually.

The Treasury Department is today opening a more intensive campaign with the slogan "Top That Ten Per Cent by New Year's." That means ten per cent of the nation's gross payroll must go into War Bonds by the first of the year.

Love of country, love of home and love of our American way of life should spark this great voluntary and democratic method of financing this war, which is our war, your war. For your boy, your husband, your father, your sweetheart is there on the battle front, on the high seas, in the air, in the training camps ready to give his all for you and for our country.

To make his hundred per cent worth while, the Treasury Department must have your ten per cent.

WINTER RESORTS

The St. Petersburg, Fla., Chamber of Commerce reports about two-thirds as many winter visitors as have usually arrived by this time. But it learns that many visitors will remain longer than in previous years. The tourist now, when he gets to a pleasant place, stays there and drives little. In easier years there was more running around.

No tourist haven expects to do much business during the war. The very nature of life under war conditions precludes it. Some of the people who cater to tourists are engaged in war work for the duration, some in factories, others helping out on farms. The rest are sitting tight, doing what little business there is to do, knowing that when the war is over it will be reasonable to expect a great rush of travel.

It has become a normal business in America, this one of catering to people who want to get around and see the country. It is an abnormal time, but some day there will be gas again, and plenty of railway trains, and better ones. Then the restless, inquisitive and eager to learn American will once more be going places, seeing things and storing up impressions.

DEATH IN THE DESERT

The most pitiful thing in that North African warfare is the plight of the Italians. Those unlucky stooges of Hitler have been heartlessly abandoned by the Nazis, in their western flight, and left without food or water. Of two such deprivations, the lack of water in that barren desert is the most terrible. They also suffer greatly from the cold nights. Thousands of them, who might have been saved by a decent sharing of such supplies as the Germans possessed, have died in the desert sands.

It is another example of the way the Nazis treat their allies. The Germans must have the best of everything, and the Italians must take their leavings, if any.

Yet such arrogance and cruelty may be a good thing in the end—for those Italians who survive. The Italian people, already sick of their alliance, will be so completely "fed up" that they will repudiate both Mussolini and his German partners in crime, and cast their lot permanently with civilized nations.

STAND-UP TRAVEL

And still tires need to be saved. Hence the new order of Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, reducing drastically on November 1 the bus service of six cities. By this reduction Eastman hopes to make bus-riders use the street cars which in many cases run over the same streets, to reduce bus mileage by 15 per cent, and to save 100,000,000 tire miles a year.

This cut now affects only New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati and Richmond. No one can doubt that there will be others. Thus there will be untold additions to the numbers of that famous American character, the Straphanger, once a creature of jest but now a contributor to the war effort.

As Gen. James H. Doolittle takes over the air forces in Africa, everybody expects that General Jimmy will help belie his name as usual, and do much.

"We know the fate that awaits us if we lose the war," says Hitler. Sure—America won't quit cold this time.

Joe Stalin is telling us democracies a little more than is really necessary, but can you blame him?

Hitler says he will never flee. But in case he changes his mind, we'll be glad to suggest a place to go to.

Never in human history has there been so much news.

VITAMIN B COMPLEX

Physicians who have followed the history of the vitamins will remember that vitamin C was one of the first vitamins to gain fame as it was found that scurvy could be prevented by eating foods rich in vitamin C.

Later came the very great interest in vitamin D because it prevented rickits (rachitis) which up to that time had been widespread. Today one rarely sees a case of misshapen legs in children due to rickits.

Still later came the knowledge of the benefits derived from vitamin A; infections warded off and night blindness prevented.

Finally came vitamin B, with its family—B1, B2, B complex and others—as a nerve builder, a definite treatment for neuritis, an appetite builder and an aid to various run down conditions.

Lately we have been reading about vitamin B (complex) as delaying the onset of fatigue. An interesting experiment on the use of vitamin B complex in the treatment of fatigue is recorded in the Journal of Industrial Hygiene and Toxicology (poisons) by Drs. E. Simonson, N. Enzer, A. Baer, and R. Braun. These physicians put 23 persons to various fatigue tests. First they found what each individual could do in the way of work before he became fatigued; then 12 were given vitamin B complex in tablet form and 11 were given plain tablets similar in appearance containing no vitamin B complex but with the same tastes.

From the standpoint of fatigue of the mucles those given the vitamin B complex tablets showed no greater improvement than the ones who received no vitamin B complex. However, from the standpoint of fatigue of the nervous system, measured by the flicker light test, which I mentioned in a previous article, considerable difference was shown. Of the 12 given the B complex, 5 required a great deal more time to become tired, 3 showed moderate amount more time, and 4 showed no change. In the 11 who received no B complex, there was no change in the amount of time it took to cause tiredness of the nervous system.

From the above experiment we learn, then, that for brain workers or those who must keep mind and body alert at their work, vitamin B complex delays or postpones fatigue. Foods rich in vitamin B complex are: yeast, whole wheat breads, bacon, almonds, peanuts, and others.

Foods Rich in Vitamin B1

Send today for a complete list of foods containing vitamin B1, the vitamin which postpones fatigue. To obtain this list just send five cents (coin preferably) to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., and ask for list of foods rich in vitamin B1, mentioning The Kingston Daily Freeman.

Labor-Saving Plans Given to Wood-Cutters

Ithaca — Fuel-wood cutters who have ventured into the woods for the first time, with axe and saw in hand, may harvest fewer blisters and sore muscles along with their firewood, by following certain labor-saving plans.

Even seasoned woodsmen do not always employ all the tricks that save hard work in getting wood to the woodpile, says Prof. A. B. Recknagel of the New York State College of Agriculture. Among his suggestions for easy woodcutting are:

In felling trees, saw in deep for the undercut, to save time and energy in chopping.

In thick woods, where felled trees may lodge in the limbs of other trees and the butts of cut trees dig into the ground, place a greased hardwood plank at the base of each tree on the same side as the undercut before it is felled. This will make the butt of the tree slide out, and bring down the top.

If woods roads will carry a truck safely, wood can be piled along the road instead of at the edge of the woods, to save time in skidding.

If the buzz saw is kept some distance away, near the buildings, entire trees can be skidded to the saw, and the limbs cut off quickly with power instead of with axe or crosscut saw.

Use a buzz saw rig that is mounted on wheels or at the rear of a tractor or truck, for easy moving and for quick setting.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The other day I wrote a sketch calling attention to some of the old time bakeries in Kingston. One that I failed to mention was the bakery on Wall street that was conducted for years by A. A. and C. R. Styles, who in February, 1908, sold the business to Charles B. Everett and Clarence Wilson, who conducted it for many years.

One of the best known druggists in Kingston for years was the late William S. Eltinge, who on February 4, 1908, bought the drug business of William F. Cooper on John street. Mr. Eltinge was engaged in the drug business here for many years. He was also active in firemanic matters in the city, and had served both as president and member of the fire board.

Turning from drugs to railroads it was on February 7, 1918, that N. A. Sims, for years general passenger agent of the old Ulster & Delaware railroad, died in his home on West Chester street. Mr. Sims was connected with the former U. & D. road for many years, and was one of the best known railroad men in this section of the state.

In the days at the turn of the century one of the best known confectionery stores on Wall street was that of C. Roscoe Banta who on February 10, 1908, sold the business to Frederick Lynes.

It is also interesting to recall that on January 17, 1928, Charles B. Everett, owner of the building at 318-320 Wall street, leased it to the J. C. Penney Co., operator of a group of chain stores. The building was remodeled that year and still houses the Penney Co. Store.

Kingston's Chamber of Commerce was still active in the 1920's and at the annual meeting in January, 1908, E. Frank Flanagan, Wall street clothier, was re-elected president. The other officers elected were James A. Dwyer as first vice president, Lewis Brown as second vice president; Morris Samter as treasurer, and Louis S. Coe was re-elected as the paid secretary of the organization.

Horse lovers of Kingston will recall Demarest, the trotter owned by Dr. B. W. Maben, and may recall that the animal dropped dead on Flatbush avenue on February 11, 1918. Demarest had a record of 2:06 ¼ made at Syracuse.

Older readers will recall the many fast horse races that used to be staged on the ice in the Rondout creek in the winters of not so long ago. Albany avenue was also used as a racing field during the winters when there was good sleighing.

And speaking of high prices I recall that in January, 1908, eggs were selling for 21 cents a dozen; lard for 12 cents a pound and butter for 23 cents a pound. Today prices on those products have doubled.

A DIME YOU'LL NEVER MISS MAY SAVE A SOLDIER'S LIFE!

It's a fact that a single 10-cent piece can be the means of saving a soldier's life—because the five cartridges it buys can make the difference between victory and defeat for one of our boys. Think then what more money will do, if put regularly into U. S. War Savings Stamps! Order them delivered to your home, week after week, by your newspaper carrier boy. This coupon, filled in, will be all the authorization he needs. Hand it to him next time he stops!

I would like to have ...... 10-cent War Savings Stamps delivered to my home each week until further notice.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 17—When a member of the House naval affairs committee who happens to be a Marine colonel comes back from the Pacific and says we are "losing the war" out there, the other members of Congress feel inclined to attach considerable weight to his report. That's why impetus has been given to a movement led by Minority Leader Martin for a congressional committee of both parties to have a voice in the conduct of the war.

But it would be a mistake if hasty action were taken in Congress either condemning or urging the proposal, because it raises some very important questions of policy that ought to be frankly explored so that even a well-intentioned suggestion does not in the end actually result in a disservice to the management of the war.

If all that were involved were merely the set of firsthand observations brought back by Representative Maas, of Minnesota, these could easily be verified or disproved or put into proper perspective. But there is back of this movement something deeper and more significant, and perhaps the best way to correct it is to apply the treatment of healthy exposure to the free air of analysis.

To put it simply, there are many members of Congress who are so bitter against and distrustful of the administration's method of handling public authority that they openly talk of Mr. Roosevelt's alleged ambitions for a fourth term in 1944.

But who suffers from that sort of attack? Not Mr. Roosevelt—who goes on with the New Deal and his New Deal henchmen regardless of how the majority of the voters protested at the polls a couple weeks ago—but the military and naval men to whom politics is an anathema and upon whom the responsibility for winning the war has really been placed.

It is most unfortunate that Mr. Roosevelt is just as vehement against his critics and distrustful of his opponents as they are concerning him. He, however, has had opportunity after opportunity to rise above such polemics and break the vicious circle of accusation and counter-accusation, as befits a man who has been given three terms and presumably can forego further ambition. But Mr. Roosevelt, even during this fateful emergency, has been reluctant to concede that the New Deal scheme of socialization must be sacrificed to win the war. To interrogations about a lengthier work-week, for example, the President still replied with the statement either that we do not have a 40-hour week in America or that we are already working a 48-hour week, as if the economic problem involved in the straitjacket of the wage and hour law and the issue of overtime and increased manpower were as simple as that comment implies.

The American people must evidently continue to bear the burden of a class war inside this country at the same time that their sons are fighting a global war. All this puts politics to the fore and makes the Army and Navy command the target of criticism that is really aimed at Mr. Roosevelt.

Nothing could be further from the truth than the assumption that Admiral King, for instance, would allow political considerations or the behind-the-scenes jealousies of General MacArthur in Army circles to influence the strategy used. Admiral King is an independent, high-minded naval officer who is fighting a two-ocean war with a one-ocean navy, and he had nothing to do with the evolution of the Allied diplomacy that failed to keep Japan out of a Pacific ocean war till Hitler could be defeated. Admiral King must fight with the weapons and ships allotted to him, and it does no good at this late date to bemoan our earlier misfortunes in the Pacific, for we are correcting their ill effects.

Admiral King hasn't confided his strategy to Representative Maas or anyone else outside of his official circle, and it may well be inferred that the Minnesota Marine-congressman knows only a portion of the story of all the global problems involved. There isn't any political subservience or sycophancy in Admiral King's makeup, and members of Congress would do well to let the Army and Navy high command alone and concentrate their attention on the economic blunders being made on the home front, rather than to demand a voice in the making of the strategic policies of the war abroad.

"News Is a Weapon," by Matthew Gordon.

The effort to find a good title for a different sort of war book may produce some confusion. It does in the case of Matthew Gordon's "News Is a Weapon." What Mr. Gordon means by the phrase is that the press releases of our enemies have been used as a weapon. News is truth, and there has been only enough newspapers and the radio to use a certain percentage of them.

This is the first book that I have seen in which the attempt to use innocent press associations and innocent newspapers and innocent radio chains to do murder has been accurately explained. It is true that Mr. Gordon has no answer—the United States and Britain operate on the theory that in the end the public will be intelligent enough to catch on. Whether the theory is right or wrong can be debated, but under our present system we can only check, not eliminate, the brutal assault of the enemy. It's too bad, but it's true. An example—

When Germany was about ready for the assault on France Hitler began a careful campaign of bewilderment. The world knew Hitler was going somewhere. Hints came from Berlin that it would be to the South, the East, the West. The result was that the Allies were forced to guard every possible sore spot as carefully as they could. But then, when it was obvious that Hitler was going west, something else cropped up in the news—the Schlieffen plan. This was subtly introduced in such a way that the Allies were supposed to believe it would be followed in this war. But the Germans used only part of it, and caught the Allies off center.

By dropping a few empty parachutes and publicizing them cleverly, the Nazis kept Britain in a dither for days, and time was lost. Berlin's claims often bore no relation to truth, but were made to direct action down a wanted channel. Neutral capitals were fed stories so they might be denied in Berlin, and time-wasting controversy begun. Distorted pictures were produced by requiring radio and newsmen to use the statements of the German high command as fact, although this usually could be tempered by the home offices. It is a vast and clever scheme that grows more difficult from day to day, but still operates. And Mr. Gordon has explained it neatly and without many extra words.

YERBA MATE FOR TEA

San Francisco (AP)—With war interfering with tea imports, the Retail Grocers Advocate has directed merchants' attention to yerba mate, widely drunk in South America and available from that source. Mate consists of dried leaves which are steeped like tea, and already has a limited market in the United States.

When a compressed air cylinder exploded in a garage in Klerksdorp, South Africa, it went through the roof, over a church steeple, and landed in Church street three blocks away.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—"Mystery men" in Washington are about as common as tumbleweeds in Texas and usually just as important in the national scheme of things.

Generally, they are fellows with some sort of title or "important contacts" who look wise, say little, spend money, and by innuendo and rumor create the impression that they are riding very firmly on the coattails of the inner circle.

If you read or hear that Ferdinand Eberstadt is Washington's No. 1 "mystery man" — and you probably will — don't get the wrong impression. He doesn't belong to that outfit.

In the first place his title isn't "some sort of." He's vice chairman of the War Production Board and head of the newly created Facility Clearance Board. At the moment, he has more say-so about what goes into military and what into civilian production than any person in Washington. In his capacity as head of FCB, he's taking a look-see at present and planned construction projects with a view to eliminating waste.

As for "contacts"— hold your breath. It was Under Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal who brought Eberstadt to Washington nearly two years ago to get the Army-Navy Munitions board into line as a going business institution. But, and this is important, probably his closest friend here is Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, a sidekick in World War I.

His other "contacts" include those he made at Princeton, where he picked up a Phi Beta Kappa key; on the Mexican border where he was a member of one of those snappy Park Avenue cavalry regiments; in France where he rose to captain in field artillery; as a member of the law firm of McAdoo-Cotton-Franklin; and as Wall Street investment banker.

His only resemblance to these other "mystery men" is that he doesn't talk much. When he does, it's in snapped-off sentences and the word he uses most frequently is "No." When it comes to publicity, he's a Hollywood starlet in reverse.

From this, it should be apparent that "innuendo" is too long a route for dynamic Mr. Eberstadt to travel and if he has ever bothered with a "rumor" I haven't heard of it. As for spending money, he could, but he doesn't.

In a recent weekly magazine article, Eberstadt was referred to as an "energetic icicle." Employes and the newsmen who are on his run are generally less picturesque. They just say he's "tough".

That crack isn't really uncomplimentary. His position in WPB and his connection with the Army, as well as the Navy, places him in what could be the most powerful job in the country so far as production is concerned.

Some observers think (and the ranks are growing every day) that he has that quality of toughness which may iron out our production kinks—may even result in his superseding Donald Nelson, in authority, if not in title.

Halsey, One of Toughest Men Afloat, Also Is Air-Minded And Throws Rules to Winds

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—U. S. Naval forces which smashed the Japanese fleet in the Solomons were led by one of the toughest men we have afloat.

Vice-Admiral William Frederick Halsey, Jr., commander of United States naval forces in the southern Pacific, symbolizes America's answer to the boast of Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto that he would dictate peace in the White House.

Armiral Yamamoto now has other things than peace to think about. One of them is how to stop "Pudge" Halsey.

The naval record shows that Halsey had Tokyo's number even before the war began. On November 28, ten days before Pearl Harbor, a carrier task force set out for Wake Island to deliver planes under absolute war conditions. Tokyo was making fancy passes at Thailand (Siam) in those days, you remember.

Halsey wasn't fooled. His orders to the carrier force were to blow any Jap ship out of the water and shoot any planes out of the sky.

Halsey is, among other things, one of our most air-minded admirals. He learned to fly at 52.

He knows he still can learn and that the more you learn the better you fight.

He is furthermore our most experienced carrier task-force commander, and, to Tokyo's misfortune, most of this experience has been in the Pacific: In the raids in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands; in the vengeance blow at Wake and Marcus Island.

Halsey took over in the Solomons area on October 17, just when it looked as though a huge Japanese fleet might cut off our Marines there. "Pudge" Halsey went in slugging with a carrier task-force, and in the battle of October 26 made the Nipponese armada turn tail for cover a thousand miles to the north.

Two Japanese carriers, a battleship, and five cruisers were seriously damaged, perhaps sunk, and 100 planes downed with another 50 probably destroyed.

Prelude to Recent Action

This was just a prelude to the smashing victory the U. S. forces under Halsey scored over a vast Japanese armada in the Solomons battle just ended in which the Japs lost 23 ships including one battleship and five cruisers. In addition five destroyers and eight transports were sunk, and four other transports destroyed after being beached.

Halsey is an unorthodox fighter and makes his rules as he goes along. Naval academy classmates say he always did his own thinking on strategy and followed the course that was most logical under the circumstances, rules or no rules.

Of his successes in the Pacific he explains:

"We do the exact opposite of what they expect us to do.

"We deliberately put ourselves under fire of enemy batteries. We expose ourselves to shore-based planes. We do not stay behind the battle with our carriers.

"Most important: Whatever we do, we do fast."

Admiral Halsey's tactic of putting his carriers well ahead in the battle gives his task forces terrific striking power.

In the raid on the Marshall and Gilbert Islands this "brilliant and audacious attack" hit the jackpot for 16 enemy ships and Halsey lost only two planes.

Since his navy-captain father cut off his golden curls at the age of three, "Pudge" Halsey has been fighting it out.

When a boy in Elizabeth, N. J., where he was born, laid his scalp open with a baseball bat, "Pudge" wouldn't tell his mother who did it.

"Never mind," he said, "I'll take care of that guy myself."

"Pudge" entered Annapolis at 18 and had graduated by 1904. He commanded destroyers from 1911 through the World War, got the Navy Cross for Distinguished Service on convoy duty, and then went to Berlin, Copenhagen and Stockholm as naval attache.

There followed years of routine service with battleships, destroyer squadrons, and at Annapolis. He picked up new courses at the Navy War College—and at the Army War College.

But by 1934 he saw war in the air coming, and went to Pensacola to learn to fly—at 52 years of age. In 1935 he commanded the carrier Saratoga, and in June, 1938, after a year as commandant of the Pensacola Naval Air Station, became commander of an aircraft carrier division.

He was made vice-admiral last June.

His 83-year-old mother says he gets very angry that the navy won't let him take the risk of flying now.

Major Operation

Santa Ana, Calif.—Seventeen-year-old Harry Hurd read that a sudden shock might cure stuttering.

So Harry took a light rifle, a police report said, and shot himself in the shoulder.

Help Win the War

London (AP)—Said a Midland production manager: "Get a gang of women together where they can chin-wag and you get output. Isolate them and the pace is distinctly slowed." He explains it this way: "Sooner or later there will be squabbling, which results in hard eyes, tight lips, and a blistering silence. Strange to say, this also increases the rate of work. The great thing for output is to get them together."

Jailers Make a Jail Break

Clarksburg, W. Va. (AP)—Jailers had to "break" a willing prisoner out of the city lockup recently. The man in the cell was due to get out but the key wouldn't work. Sergeant E. F. Armsler, Jr., with a firm grip on the hammer, pounded at the lock. The city's scrap pile was increased with a half-pound of battered brass.

A diamond valued at $1,400 was unearthed recently on a lonely farm near Potchefstroom, South Africa.

Girl Scouts Work on Christmas Seals

Active preparation for the annual Christmas Seal sale of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Association is well under way today at the office of the organization. Girl Scouts, girls of the Kingston Colony, nurses and other volunteer workers have been folding, sticking and putting seals into envelopes for delivery on November 23. Girl Scouts, taking part in this important defense job are shown above with their county commissioner, Mrs. Parker K. Brinnier and Katherine M. Murphy, executive secretary and nurse of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association. Troop 3, St. Mary's Church; Troop 4, No. 7 School; Troop 7, St. John's Church; Troop 8, St. Joseph's Church; Troop 9, No. 5 School; and Troop 11, Senior Service Scouts of St. John's Church, are shown.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press

Double Trouble

Middletown, Ind.—Carl Clinger owned two automobiles — a "Jalopy" he drove to work and a new sedan, his "Sunday Best."

While he was driving the sedan, it stalled, so he went back for the "Jalopy" and with another man started to push the sedan home.

Then the old car stalled at a railroad crossing with half of each car squarely on the tracks. Clinger and his helper jumped to safety as a train demolished both cars.

Premature

Philadelphia—At 10:20 a. m. air raid sirens screamed throughout Philadelphia for a surprise drill.

At 10:21 a. m. a man telephoned the Municipal Electrical Bureau and asked excitedly:

"Is the war over?"

Fast Flier

Denver—Those new airplanes are fast all right, but there's something faster.

Lt. Glen H. Hutchinson whizzed in from his Roswell, N. M., base, but found he had come in second. The stork arrived first.

Lively Antique

Kansas City—Singer James Melton, who collects antique automobiles, heard about the 1922 model electric that Mrs. Sidney J. Montgomery drives about Kansas City streets. He decided he wanted it.

Snapped Mrs. Montgomery: "My car is not an antique. I would like Mr. Melton to know that."

It can still do a snappy 25 miles an hour. "And that's too fast for me."

Oil Burner

New York—Mrs. Bert Turnell answered a summons given her husband for driving his car while the exhaust laid down a heavy smoke screen.

Magistrate William E. Ringel began lecturing her on the waste of gasoline in these times.

"But, your honor," she interrupted, "We don't use gasoline. We use fuel oil."

Gun Shy

Camp Gruber, Okla.—Private Bud Chapman of Chillicothe, Mo., a rifle range instructor, has shot an old legend full of holes.

He has some Tennessee mountain boys in his classes. Many of them never have fired a gun before.

Very Ducky

Denver—The helping-hand policy:

Six Denver residents were duck hunting. They reached their favorite spot, took a gander at a Neighboring field, and saw that farmer Eldon Waggner needed help.

They put their shotguns aside, pitched in and helped harvest 15 tons of beets.

Serial Story

Dallas—The Dallas city waterworks is changing to a bimonthly billing system. This month it sent out blank forms, on which were printed only the serial number, explaining that a double bill will arrive in December.

But the confused customers are sending in checks to correspond with the serial numbers.

One banker, who made out a check for $17.20, complained: "Please check my meters. This seems a little high."

"A Bird in the Hand—"

Royal, Ill.—George Carl had a run of bad luck after he shot a pheasant near here.

After carrying the bird half a mile, he tore his clothing trying to climb a fence. He laid the pheasant on the ground, tried to untangle himself from the fence, cut his hand.

Just as he reached for it, the "Dead" bird flew away.

Safe homemade toys will not have poor paint, sharp edges and corners, breakable materials, or rough surfaces.

Harvest Festival Is Planned by C. E.

The Christian Endeavor of the Ponckhockie Congregational Church will hold a Harvest Festival in the church basement, Friday, starting at 7 p. m. Members of the congregation and friends are invited to attend, and to loan quilts, crocheted articles, antiques, sewing or other hobby articles for display, also jellies, jams, canned goods, pies, cakes or vegetables for display or to be sold. All articles should be left at the church by November 19. Moving pictures will be shown.

Money received will be used toward the Christian Endeavor's pledge to the church and for a gift to each of the boys from the church in the armed service.

All members of the society are assisting in arranging for the festival under the leadership of John Winters, president, and Mrs. Charles McGinnis, advisor.

DeMicco-Scanlon

Miss Dolores Scanlon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Scanlon of 650 Delaware avenue, became the bride of Roy DeMicco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo DeMicco of Delaware avenue, Sunday, November 15, at 2 p. m., in St. Mary's Church. The Rev. Benjamin C. Roth officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with long veil and carried white chrysanthemums. She was given in marriage by her father. The attendants were Miss Anne DeMicco, sister of the bridegroom, who wore a blue taffeta gown with matching hat and carried yellow chrysanthemums; and Miss Eileen O'Neil, cousin of the bride, who wore a peach taffeta gown and carried orchid chrysanthemums. Attendants for the bridegroom were his brother, Angelo DeMicco and Lawrence Scanlon, brother of the bride. James O'Neil and Anthony Alecco acted as ushers.

A reception for 100 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents, following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. DeMicco will make their home at 650 Delaware avenue. Mr. DeMicco is employed at the Newburgh airport.

Booker T. Washington Is Reviewed By Sorosis

Sorosis met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Perley, 139 Wall street. Reports of the recent Federated Women's Club State Convention held at Syracuse were given by Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen.

The paper of the day on a Southern Personality was a short biographical account of Booker T. Washington given by Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman. He was born in obscurity as a slave and as a boy had a great yearning for knowledge. Inspired by this he worked his way through school and later through Hampton Institute. This training resulted in his founding Tuskegee Institute, a normal and industrial school for colored people in Alabama. Mr. Washington was also the first negro to make public lecturing appearances. Through his efforts, the standard of life among the negroes was raised and a memorial to him is placed at Tuskegee Institute.

The next meeting of the club will be at the home of Mrs. Lorraine Wood of 82 Highland avenue. Mrs. Grover Lasher will have the paper of the day.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personally of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

What Will People Say If A Young Woman Sees Her Boy-Friend Off When He Sails Overseas.

That continually repeated question of whether a girl may go to see her best boy-friend who is waiting to embark, is this time sent me by a girl's mother. Her letter says: "We live in the midwest. My daughter who is not yet twenty-one, has a particular boy-friend in the Navy, and he is stationed near New York. He is soon to have leave but not for long enough to come home. He wants my daughter to come to New York so they can spend his leave-times with her. Her father and I have no objection on the grounds of not trusting them both—which we do implicity. But we feel that it may be considered very irregular for her to go alone and stay in a hotel in New York. We don't want to let her make a mistake which may take a long time to live down in the minds of the gossips. A word from you would help.

I can answer easily enough that in New York there are several hotels run especially for young women alone, (where house-rules serve as chaperones). About the gossips I can't answer, further than that their disapproval is at least not likely to be directed toward the girl whom they like, and of whom they have always approved.

Who Is Called "Miss Ruth"?

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it wrong to call a young woman "Miss Ruth" instead of the formal "Miss Jones" or at the other extreme "Ruth"?

Answer: In dressmaking establishments and beauty parlors, saleswomen are always called "Miss Ruth". Socially "Miss Ruth" is used in the South, often even after she is married. Elsewhere "Miss Ruth" is seldom used except as a somewhat affectionate name for a maiden lady who is quite old and "Miss Ruth" seems more friendly than "Miss Johnson."

Brother Arriving Home With Commission

Dear Mrs. Post: My brother will be coming home soon and when he comes he will in all likelihood be a commissioned officer. We would like to send out cards inviting everyone we know to an "at home" for him, and we think it will be a good time to announce that he has received this commission. May we write "at home for Lieut. Smith" on the invitation, or how should we do it.

Answer: I'm sorry but you really should not word the invitations like that. You may of coure send out cards saying that you will be at home. And you may tell people that you expect him home and are giving the party for that reason. But I would not if I were you say anything about his commission, until he has received it. To see him in his uniform is the best way to be told the news.

Works of Verdi Studied At Olympian Club Meeting

Last evening the Olympian Club met with Miss Lucinda Healy at her home, 81 O'Neil street. The paper for the evening was given by Miss Winifred Sullivan.

She spoke first of the life of Guiseppe Verdi, Italian opera composer. His first work was given in Milan in 1839 and he wrote a number of operas. Miss Sullivan spoke in particular of "Aida." Verdi's success was due largely with his ability to keep abreast of the changes taking place in the dramatic art. In addition to the paper several records of music from "Aida" were greatly enjoyed by the members of the club.

The next meeting will be November 30 at the home of Mrs. James Murphy, Jr., 255 Pearl street.

Liver for Iron

Go strong on vitamins that are needed to strengthen your nervous system. Liver, whole wheat bread, browned pork chops, baked beans and peanuts are good sources of B-1.

Economical Cold Weather Dinner (Serving 3 or 4)

Smothered Liver and Vegetables
Raisin Rolls Butter
Fruit Salad French Dressing
Coffee

Smothered Liver and Vegetables Laden with Vitamins and Minerals

- 1 pound beef or pork liver
- ¼ cup flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon celery seed
- ⅛ teaspoon poultry seasoning
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1½ cups boiled rice
- 1 cup cooked diced carrots
- 1 cup tomatoes
- ¼ cup finely chopped onions
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 4 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine, melted.

Cover liver for 10 minutes with boiling water. Drain and wipe dry. Roll liver in flour with seasonings added. Place it in shallow, buttered baking dish. Cover with rice and carrots. Add rest of ingredients, blended. Cover and bake an hour in moderate oven. Uncover last 10 minutes to brown the top. Serve in baking dish.

Raisin Rolls (Appetizing Quick Bread)

- 2 cups enriched flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/3 teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons shortening
- 2/3 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup sugar (brown preferred)
- 2/3 cup raisins or currants
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Mix together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening and slowly add milk. When soft dough forms pat it out until about 1/3 inch thick. Spread with rest of ingredients, combined. Roll up quickly and cut off ½ inch slices. Place the slices next to each other on a slightly greased pan. Bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

Colds Cause Absences In U. S. War Industries

Since Pearl Harbor colds and complications have cost war workers $250,000,000 in lost wages and have caused absences in war industries totalling 40,000,000 workdays, time sufficient to build 900 Flying Fortresses, 8,000 fighter planes, 8,000 tanks, or 35,000 jeeps, according to the Health Bulletin, published by the Vick Chemical Company.

Respiratory diseases now cause more lost work time in war industries than almost all other illnesses, the report states, and a progressive increase in time-loss from colds is predicted "unless vigorous and determined efforts are started at once to prevent colds from spreading and to treat all colds promptly."

Giving common-sense health rules that "may help you avoid many colds," a section of the Bulletin addressed to war workers says: "Live normally, avoid excesses. Eat simple food, drink plenty of water, and keep elimination regular. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

"Keep reminding yourself that colds are catching! Stay clear of careless coughers and sneezers. Don't share drinking cups, towels—even a half-eaten apple, a piece of candy or a 'drag' on a cigarette—with anyone.

"If you catch a cold, start care and treatment at once. A neglected cold may reduce your resistance and open the way to development of serious ailments."

B. P. W. Honors Donald Murphy

Freeman Photo

Approximately 75 members of the Board of Public Works attended a farewell party last evening at Jack Haber's Grill on Grand street in honor of Donald J. Murphy who leaves this city today with the local contingent of draftees for Camp Upton to begin his service in the United States Army. Mr. Murphy, as all the speakers remarked last evening, was one of the most popular workers on the Board of Public Works. He has been a faithful and conscientious worker for that department for the last 15 years. Following a delicious roast beef supper, Max Oppenheimer, superintendent of the department, acted as toastmaster and said a few words about Don's departure for a new way of life but in one which he was positive that the new soldier would be a success. Mr. Oppenheimer then introduced Edward Vogt, John Prucenal and Alfred Thomas, who also made brief speeches paying tribute to the new draftee. Last night's function was all the more timely as the hall was completely decorated in patriotic colors. The committee arranging the farewell party for Mr. Murphy included Robert Dederick, chairman, who also spoke; Noah Burger, Walter Tammany and Robert Brizee. In the above photo, Max Oppenheimer is shown presenting the draftee with a "purse." Others in the photo are (kneeling in front row), John Prucenal and John Carpino. Standing in the second row from left to right are Alfred Thomas, Max Oppenheimer, Donald Murphy and Robert Dederick. In the usual order in the back row are Harry Zeller, Robert Brizee, Walter Tammany and Noah Burger.

Nazi Germany Is At Crossroads of War; Outlook Grim

der is generally less, meaning that there is likely to be extensive livestock slaughter. The Nazis are claiming nothing from the Russian Ukraine this year. Finland, Poland, Belgium, Norway and Greece are Europe's black spots, with young and old sinking under food deficiencies and diseases.

Economically Germany is hitting an all-time low. Most of the deterioration is traceable to manpower shortage and transportation knots. And Hitler still does not have the oil and rubber he covets.

In Russia, the war has proved a tremendous drain of economic resources for Germany and blockaded Europe, instead of filling the reservoir as had been hoped.

The North African occupation has cut Germany's access to phosphates—irreplaceable as fertilizer—cobalt, vegetable oils, manganese, antimony, wool, cotton, fresh fruits and vegetables. Besides, it has closed a leak in the blockade through which Hitler was getting Far Eastern supplies such as rubber.

Hitler has exhausted his own labor. Six million foreigners — one in every four workmen—are engaged in Germany, but they are mostly of low efficiency. The skilled hands he needs are in France where Frenchmen have declined to help the Nazis.

Meanwhile, the growing strain of long hours, R. A. F. raids and war conditions on the health and stamina of the industrious German workers is beginning to tell in declining productivity per man.

An iron and steel shortage is becoming a bottleneck. As a result machinery in plants closed down, because of wartime transfers, is being scrapped. Air raids on the Ruhr district are estimated to have caused a drop of 1,250,000 tons in Germany's steel production.

To stretch the supply of steel, the quality is being diluted. After four years of high speed war production, machinery is beginning to balk, due to normal wear and tear and inability to make replacements.

It is estimated that only 20 per cent of Germany's present production is for civilian needs.

Anti-war talk, especially among soldiers, appears to be spreading. A German anti-Nazi station said "Hitler can no longer win the war. He can only prolong it—and prolongation spells ruin for us Germans."

On the home front the inflation bugbear is more threatening. Blackout crimes are soaring. Clothing coupons issued originally for 15 months have been extended over a longer period. Household goods destroyed in air raids or just wearing out can be replaced only with the greatest difficulty.

Barely able to keep their households running, hausfraus are beginning to defy compulsory billeting of bombed-out persons. On top of that is the deadly monotony of poor diet. The German radio took note of complaints that the "bread sticks obstinately to knives" with assurances that "no chemical substitutes are being used."

In Coast Guard

ROBERT A. JONES

Robert A. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Addison Jones of 334 Foxhall avenue, is now stationed at Manhattan Beach in Brooklyn with the United States Coast Guard. He enlisted about six weeks ago but did not report to the training center until about a week ago. Bob, being a member of the never-ending bowling family of Joneses, was well-known in this city for his participation in the sport and was one of the best young keglers of the city. He and his father, Ad Jones, have appeared together many times with a bowling outfit and many say that they formed one of the best father and son bowling duos in these parts. Although local bowling circles will miss another fine participant, all of his friends are sure that Bob will have the same success in this new adventure as he did in the sport of bowling.

Destroyer Smith Performed Task, Skipper Declares

Pearl Harbor, Nov. 17 (AP) — A fighting story of how the U. S. Destroyer Smith carried out its assigned mission through an inferno of flames and exploding ammunition came from the south Pacific today.

"I cannot say enough in praise of our type of sailors," declared Lieut. Commander Hunter Wood, Jr., skipper of the sturdy destroyer that survived a direct hit by a blazing Jap torpedo plane while protecting a task force aircraft carrier the morning of October 26 off Santa Cruz Island in the Solomons.

Commander Wood said the destroyer had taken part in fighting off one wave of Jap torpedo planes and was battling a second wave when the Jap torpedo plane, apparently set aflame by gunfire, fell on the Smith, hitting the No. 2 gun, in front of the bridge, and crashing to the deck between the No. 2 and No. 1 guns.

"I never saw it coming. I heard a swish and there was a flash of red flame," said Wood, whose home is Hopkinsville, Ky., but whose wife and four children are staying in San Francisco.

He gave this account:

All the forepart of the destroyer immediately became an inferno, with blazing gasoline from the plane wreckage exploding the destroyer's ready ammunition. Then, about 6 or 8 minutes after the plane crashed to the deck, its torpedo exploded, causing additional death and destruction.

Despite the fire, the destroyer maintained its place in the carrier's protecting screen and participated with what guns still were functioning in fighting off a third wave of Japanese torpedo planes.

"We kept right in formation, except for slight deviations to get away from the smoke."

Three sailors fighting the flames "went right into a compartment where the ammunition boxes were so hot they couldn't handle them. The men had no fear of anything. They walked right into the fire." An hour and a half later the flames were in control.

Binnewater Ice Company Loses Seventh Employe

Members of the force at the plant of the Binnewater Lake Ice Co. gave a farewell party for Carlton W. Wells, who has been employed as one of the engineers at the plant for the past two years and who left today for induction into the armed forces. There was a speech by President Edgar T. Shultis and Wells was presented with a completely equipped kit. He makes the seventh member of the force of the Binnewater Lake Ice Co. to enter the service.

was added the $2,000 appropriation. The total expenditures have been $2,238.12, leaving a balance of $75.73. Refunds in the sum of $95 were received. The report was referred to committee on county judge and district attorney.

County Judge J. Edward Conway also submitted his annual report on Children's Court work, showing of the disposition of some 163 cases. In his report he pointed out the increasing juvenile delinquency, which he attributed to lack of home supervision and to the normal upswing which is evidenced during a period of war. Judge Conway also reported on the Pistol Permit Bureau Fund and asked that $600 be appropriated for the ensuing year. Referred to committee on county judge and to the committee on appropriations.

Supervisor Rifenbary moved that since Supervisor Edwin W. Ashby of the fifth ward and Supervisor James J. Costello of the eighth ward were now in service that the board pay them their salary for the time they served. The amount due Mr. Ashby is $214.86 and Mr. Costello $292.64.

Clerk James J. Simpson asked for a meeting of the equalization committee on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All supervisors were asked to get in their bonded indebtedness figures by next meeting night and also their grand jury lists. The board then recessed until 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night.

West Point Field Artillery Cagers May Meet Recreations

U. S. O. Benefit Is Planned for Local Court December 9

All-American From West Virginia Is Member of Point Basketeers; Game Announced Today

The Field Artillery Detachment of the United States Military Academy at West Point, under Master Sergeant James M. McCabe, who was the sergeant instructor for the 156th Field Artillery in this city, will be brought here for a basketball game against the Kingston Recreations Wednesday night, December 9 in a special U.S.O. benefit contest.

Committee Under Way

County Judge J. Edward Conway announced today that District Attorney N. LeVan Haver will announce at a future date further appointments to the basketball committee of which he is chairman. The special committee is expected to work hand in hand with the regular Recreation committee for this attraction.

According to present plans, this is the first in a series of basketball engagements which will be booked throughout the present season with service teams. Others will be listed during the year from time to time.

Great Stars Listed

Judging from the advance press information released yesterday the Recreations, now composed of some of the best players in professional basketball, will come up against one of the toughest opponents that they will meet this year. A former All-American player heads the list. He is Captain H. H. Gist, former All-American at West Virginia. He stands six feet, two inches in height and plays forward. Gist is attached to the medical corps.

Another forward on the West Point squad is Dick Gelman, five feet, 11 inches tall, who was labeled all-Westchester City forward. George Gray, Croton-on-Hudson High School star, is a six-footer. Pat Tortorello rounds out the forwards. He was former New Jersey all-state forward and is five feet, eight inches in height.

The center position finds George Snow, a six-foot one inch ace who played on the Rockland City championship club in 1941. Godfrey Casaella, a member of the St. Mary's Club in Jersey City, N. J., also is listed for pivot duty.

The Field Artillery club has Lew Panzanaro, a six-foot, one inch guard who is perhaps one of the best players on the star-studded roster. He was one of the Peekskill Big Five and has played against such clubs as the Olsen Swedes, House of David and Kate Smith's Celtics. Charlie Adanaski, another guard, received his athletic letter from the U. S. Army in the Hawaiian Islands in 1939. The other guard is Frankie Friedman, Yorktown Heights High School ace who was chosen on the all-star league outfit.

Recs Stand Pat

Opposing this list of outstanding basketball talent Manager "Turk" Karam will have his regular Recreation line-up in force with Howie Bollerman, Visitation and local star; Nick Shaback, Hagen Anderson of last year's team; Ace Goldstein, New York Jewel star; Irv "Porky" Rosen, Glens Falls State League player; Jim Naughton, Orhback and Glens Falls player; and Herb Gerhson another veteran pro star.

New N.Y.U. Runner Tabbed as Another Leslie MacMitchell

Frank Dixon Scores Win in 34th Cross Country Event; 100 - Yard Lead at Finish

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Frank Dixon is only a freshman at New York University but in eastern track circles today he was being compared to Leslie MacMitchell, the Violets' great distance runner of the past three years, who now is an ensign in the navy.

Dixon scored a decisive triumph yesterday in the 34th inter-collegiate A.A.A.A. cross country race, finishing a hundred yards ahead of his closest rival, Yale's Leroy Schwartzkopf. MacMitchell had won the same race three years in a row, but never in more decisive fashion.

The freshman star, competing in the varsity event under a wartime ruling making first-year men eligible, took the lead at the start and stretched it steadily as he wound his way over the hilly, five-mile course.

He finished the distance in 27 minutes, 8.4 seconds, nearly 17 seconds better than Schwartzkopf's time of 27:25. The Yale runner came in another hundred yards ahead of two members of the Rhode Island State quintet which captured the team title for the third straight year.

Kenneth Taylor finished third, Lawrence Barrett was fourth, and Bob Nichols was sixth to account for the low numbers in Rhode Island's total of 55 points.

Penn State finished second in the team scoring with 79 points, followed by N. Y. U., 83; Manhattan, 135; Yale, 150; Michigan State, 168; Maine, 211; Fordham, 229; Cornell, 252; and New Hampshire, 269.

Fund Report Given

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—The United States Golf Association, compiling a "war service record" of the nation's 5,200 courses, has received replies from 430 of them showing that a total of $116,376 has been raised for war relief and recreation funds and that $906,767 worth of War Bonds and Stamps have been sold.

Two More In Service

Chicago — John Chickerneo, New York Giants quarterback, and Don Eliason, Brooklyn Dodger end, have joined the armed forces, bringing the total of National Football League players in service to 229. Eighteen have entered since the start of the present season.

Jim Thomson Enlists

Long Beach, Calif., Nov. 17 (AP)—Jimmy Thomson, 34-year-old pro who for years has been one of golf's longest hitters, enlisted in the Coast Guard yesterday.

He expects to report for service in two or three weeks.

Hunters Get 175 Pound Buck

Freeman Photo

Two lucky hunters shot a 175 pound deer on South Mountain as the season opened yesterday. Donald Arallore, of Tarrytown, left, brought down the buck, and was accompanied by Ralph Bradford of Eddyville.

Big Turnout Expected For Rec-Hartford Game

First 1942-43 Cage Tilt Slated for Auditorium Wednesday Night at 9:15 o'Clock

Professional basketball will be tested Wednesday night at the municipal auditorium by the newly-organized Kingston Recreations under the tutelage of Manager "Turk" Karam. The first opponent for the 1942-43 campaign will be Honey Russell's Hartford Gems, new entry in the American Professional Basketball League. Wednesday's opener is slated to start at 9:15 o'clock. A prelim is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Officials of the Recreations were anticipating a large turnout at Wednesday's opener in view of the recent upswing of requests for reserved seats. When the first announcement came about the start of another basketball season, holders of tickets last year were a little hesitant before applying for reservations again. However, as soon as the fans saw the type of players being brought in for the team this season, they responded with phone calls to the [illegible] department for their requests.

Gems Are Strong

Starting off with the Hartford Gems Wednesday night gives the Recreations a big menu to think about. With players such as Phil Rabin, Allie Esposito, Herman Knuppel, Bobby Holm, Jimmy White, Russell himself and Jack McGuirk of last year's Kingston squad, the Gems should be a "natural" to open the new festivities. Karam himself praises Honey Russell's choices but comes back with a prediction, that Kingston should be able to handle itself against the Nutmeg State representatives.

After breezing through the Hartford lineup recently, Karam declared "Kingston fans will be in for a big surprise Wednesday night. These two boys, Nick Shaback and Herb Gershon, in my opinion, will give the club one of the fastest and potent passing attacks seen around in years." Shaback proved to be a big favorite last year. Karam also mentioned Howie Bollerman who has regained his 1940-41 form.

Although the Recreation schedule is limited at this time due to the difficulty of booking many games in advance, it is believed that the club will endeavor to get the outstanding Philadelphia Sphas of the American League here for the Thanksgiving Night contest at the auditorium. Fans also are requested to keep the tentative date of Wednesday, December 9, in mind when the Recreations are scheduled to oppose the Field Artillery of the United States Military Academy at the auditorium. This game will be played for the U.S.O.

Durocher to Meet Rickey Today for Contract Signing

New Brooklyn President Says He Prefers Early Decision on Pilot of Flatbushers

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Leo Durocher went to see a man about a job today.

Durocher, who has managed the Brooklyn Dodgers for four seasons and is more than slightly interested in continuing in that capacity, was scheduled to talk over the situation with the new president of the National League baseball club, Branch Rickey.

Leo arrived in town last night, shortly after Rickey disclosed he had wired the manager in St. Louis that he "would like to see him at his earliest convenience."

Rickey arranged to meet with Durocher today, but declined to discuss the conference in advance. He indicated, however, that he would prefer an early decision on the managerial question.

"This uncertainty is not my way of doing things," Rickey declared. "I want to settle this matter at the earliest possible moment and then I will be able to attack my other problems with more energy and delight."

Book Home Games

Bartlesville, Okla., Nov. 17 (AP)—The Phillips "66" basketball team, which used to travel from coast to coast each year, no longer has the wanderlust.

The team will play only home games this season.

Brother Against Brother

Columbus, O., Nov. 17 (AP)—Brother may play against brother when Michigan meets Ohio State Saturday.

Paul White is a stellar halfback for the Wolverine football team while his brother, John, is second string left end for Ohio State. They live in River Rouge, Mich.

Family Dogs May Get Along on Mixed Foods

Ithaca — Fido, the family pup, need not go hungry even when meat rationing cuts out all his share of fresh meat, says Prof. C. M. McCay of the school nutrition at Cornell University.

Dry mixed dog foods, either in pellets or meal, which contain some dry meat and bone meal, will keep the dogs healthy and growing he says, without as much as a smell of fresh meat. They don't even need a real bone to chew on, so the bones from the meat ration can go into the family stew pot for added flavor.

"We have reared puppies from the time they were weaned, on dry mixed feeds," says Dr. McCay. "These puppies grew into excellent dogs with fine bones and teeth. One litter of puppies was offered its first fresh meat when the pups were six months old. They played around the meat for a day before they decided it was good to eat."

The fifteen million dogs in America, like the people, says McCay, will learn in wartime to eat some foods that are new to them. Both the dogs and their owners will be healthier for the change.

Rare Bird Bagged

Chicago — A rare game bird was bagged in a recent hunt by C. E. Beeman of Chicago. It was an almost perfect albino cock pheasant. The plumage was perfectly white except for a few scattered spots of dark brown on the head, back and wings.

Georgia Holds Top Position in Grid Poll for Colleges

Writers Switch Votes to Boston College; Team Still in Third Place Despite Change

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Georgia clung to first place in the Associated Press' poll to determine the nation's best college football team although its share of the first place votes slumped from 76 per cent a week ago to 54 per cent in today's tabulation.

Much of the favoritism formerly shown the southern powerhouse switched to Boston College but the Eagles were unable to better their third place rating behind Georgia and Georgia Tech.

Sixty-nine of the 126 voting experts figured the Bulldogs were the best although 85 of the 112 had that opinion a week ago before the men of Wally Butts buried Chattanooga, 40 to 0.

More 1st Place Votes

However, the 56 to 6 pasting the Bostonians applied to Fordham brought them 37 first place votes in contrast with the 10 of a week ago. And Georgia Tech, which cleared one of the toughest hurdles in downing Alabama, gained points and respect but also lost first place votes in the general swing to the Eagles.

All three of the top clubs are barging along unbeaten and untied, a situation that may last until the two Georgia elevens collide in Atlanta and Boston College meets its arch foe, Holy Cross. The winner of the southern battle and the Eagles have been labeled as prospective foes in the Jan. 1 Sugar Bowl contest.

Michigan, which lived up to early season billing by downing Notre Dame, vaulted from sixth to fourth place while the Irish skidded from fourth to eighth.

Three other big ten clubs in addition to the Wolverines gained rankings in the first ten, Ohio State grabbing fifth place, Wisconsin seventh and Minnesota tenth.

Tulsa into Sixth

Tulsa, also unbeaten and untied, swirled into sixth place on the strength of its 24 to 0 victory over highly rated Baylor of the southwest conference last Saturday.

Although the one-two race of the two Georgia elevens is likely to continue until the final November poll, the struggle for fourth place between Michigan and Ohio State will be decided this Saturday when the two meet at Columbus. Similarly, Wisconsin and Minnesota are rivals this week-end.

Jim Dykes Happy; Sees Problems in Re-Building Sox

White Sox Manager Has Lost 18 Players to Armed Forces; Is Still Very Proud

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP)—Jimmy Dykes, pugnacious Chicago White Sox manager, shifted the ever-present cigar in his mouth which signalled that he had something to say.

"I'm happy—and it's a funny feeling being that way when you got so many troubles," he said. "Two more of my lads enlisted yesterday and that makes 18 in all to answer Uncle Sam's call. Of that I'm happy and proud.

"But, boy, have I got troubles! I nearly have to rebuild my whole baseball team for next year,"—and with that he viciously sank his teeth into the cigar.

Dykes had just received word from Len Perme, the left handed pitcher brought up from Waterloo, Ia., of the Three Eye League last September, that he had joined the Navy. Earlier in the day, Myril Hoag sent in the tidings of his enlistment in the Army Air Forces at Mather Field, Sacramento, Cal.

That placed 18 stars on the Sox service flag, one of gold in memory of Gene Stack, the first major leaguer to be drafted, who died last June.

With Hoag gone, most of Dykes' troubles are spotted in the outfield. Wally Moses, 31, is the only veteran fly chaser left. Taft Wright and Sam West preceded Hoag by several months. Two outfield rookies, Bill Mueller and Val Heim, called up from Waterloo late in the season, are in the Navy. Dave Philley, another prospect, who was in last spring's training camp, is in the Army.

Other White Sox players in military service are Ted Lyons, veteran pitcher; Walter Navie, John Rigney, Leo Wells, George Dickey, Stanley Goletz, Chester Hajduk, Murrell Jones, Bob Kennedy, and Doyle Lade, who was bought in midseason from Shreveport.

Odd But Science

Life From Lava?

By H. W. BLAKESLEE
(Wide World Science Editor)

New York—A. L. Herrera, Mexican biologist, reports some evidence in laboratory experiments that life, at least on the scale of bacteria, may have originated in volcanoes, and may still be coming from eruptions.

His experiments have covered 10 years. He has mixed chemicals containing formaldehyde, ammonia, sulphur and cyanogen. From the mixtures have come about 6,000 different microscopic forms, all of them showing some of the properties of living micro-organisms.

He does not claim that these test tube things are alive. But they act variously like ameba, spores and chromosomes which are the particles which fix heredity. In fact he says they imitate the whole microscopic world.

In addition, chemical analysis shows that they produce certain reactions. From these reactions come vestiges of starch, amino-acids which are the parts of proteins and globules of green, red and yellow pigments. All these are ordinary products of living micro-organisms.

Volcanoes, he points out, contain in their emanations sulphur, cyanogen and ammonia, which may be the basis of continual synthesis, or creation, of life from inorganic matter.

As supporting evidence that life can originate in inert matter he refers to experiments of a few years ago in the United States, in which mixtures of olive oil and gasoline produced microscopic things which, though presumably not alive, imitated much that happens in a cell of living tissue.

Nimitz Tells How Japanese Swept South Toward Disaster

light cruisers and six destroyers.)

Nimitz estimated between 20,000 and 40,000 Jap troops went down on the sunken transports, which he described as "jammed full."

If he were a Jap commander, he said, "I'd be sweating and bleeding if I had to explain such a loss."

The action cost the life of Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, former naval aide to President Roosevelt, during an opening phase in which the flagship he was commanding received several 14-inch shell hits from an enemy battleship which wrecked the bridge and superstructure.

Brush Estate Is Set At $1,973,770 by Appraisal

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Matthew C. Brush, industrialist and a Republican presidential elector from Connecticut until his death in Norwalk on October 15, 1940, left a net estate of $1,973,770, it was disclosed with the filing of an estate tax appraisal yesterday.

He left bequests of $100,000 each to his widow, Elizabeth Hunger Brush, of South Norwalk, Conn., and a brother, George S. Brush of Brookline, Mass. Bequests of $50,000 each were left to Donald G. Miller of Larchmont, N. Y.; a nephew, George S. Brush, Jr., of Yonkers, N. Y., and Mlle. Chiqueta Wilhelmy of New York city. Three per cent of the residuary estate goes to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Legion Auxiliary Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary will be held in the rooms on West O'Reilly street, Friday, November 20, at 8 o'clock. The president, Mrs. Culver Ten Broeck, will preside. This is the first meeting over which the new officers will have complete control. Demands such as we have never had before are coming up daily and we need the help of every member. Reports from the Albany conference will be given. "Empire State News" has a new editor, Ida Ashby. Its appearance has been changed and its size enlarged. This year it will carry outlines of the work for each committee instead of having separate bulletins issued. This will be a great saving and will keep us up to date on all issues. Dues are payable at anytime now. The Third District Membership Chairman, Mrs. Stanley Matthews, is one of our members; therefore we must not lag.

Women's Group Meets

A regular monthly meeting of the Women's Group of the Congregation of Agudas Achim will be held Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the social hall. All members are urged to attend as matters of importance will be discussed. A social hour will follow.

Fire Destroys Frame Building

Schoonmaker Property Is Lost in Blaze

Fire, of unknown origin, destroyed a frame building owned by Contractor Lyman T. Schoonmaker, just outside the city line on Lucas avenue extension, at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. The building contained considerable building materials and equipment, including a truck and an automobile.

The building stood between a garage and a barn, and the wind carried some of the sparks to the roof of the barn, which was damaged slightly.

Owing to the fact that the building stood several hundred feet outside the city line it was necessary to use long stretches of hose and Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said that to increase the pressure two pumps were employed.

The fire had gained such headway before it was discovered that the fire department was unable to save it from destruction. Mr. Schoonmaker had been in the building about an hour before the fire broke out and at that time there was no evidence of any fire.

How to cut the cost of Heating Your Home

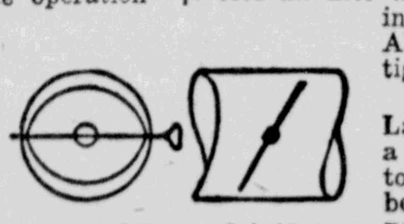
BY John Barclay

AMERICA'S HOME HEATING EXPERT

Chimney Loss

CHIMNEY loss is identified as such because it is the loss of heat up the chimney. Little attention is paid to it because it is in the form of heated gas which is impossible to see. This chimney loss amounts to from 10 to 20 per cent and sometimes more in inefficient furnace operation and is usually indicated by an overheated smokepipe.

Here are some of the causes of and remedies for chimney loss: No Turn Damper — Without this baffle in the smoke pipe, the heated gases do not stay long enough inside the furnace to give up their heat and as a result they flow up into the chimney.



Sectional View Turn Damper in Smoke Pipe / Side View

Turn Damper Located in Wrong Place—If the turn damper is located on the chimney side of the check damper, it is automatically open too wide. Always place the turn damper on the boiler side.

Cracks Around Doors — Loose fitting or warped doors will pull cold air into the furnace, diluting the hot gases. All doors should fit tightly.

Size of Coal Too Large — Too large a size of coal forms too large air spaces between the coal particles. The air used for combustion rushes through too rapidly, carrying useful heat away with it.

Fuel Beds Too Thin—Thin fuel beds permit the air to pass through too quickly, wiping away heat as it does so. (14)

Sheffield Farms Hearing Continues at Cobleskill

Cobleskill, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—The hearing of the Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., facing charges of dominating the Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc., and thereby engaging in unfair competitive practices, continues today.

Dr. K. A. Shaul, Cobleskill, president of the Schoharie County Cooperative Dairies, Inc., first witness at the reopening of the hearing yesterday, told Andrew Duval, Federal Trade Commission trial examiner, the Sheffield Farms paid the cooperative direct for their milk.

Dr. Shaul testified that the farms sent milk checks direct to producer members of the cooperative and that the farms checked milk weights and made the tests, rather than the cooperative.

The hearing resumed here after an adjournment since October 14 at Syracuse. The Eastern Cooperative claims 8,000 members in New York, Vermont and Pennsylvania.

Prince Ucon Objected To Removing His Religion

A man who gave his name as Prince Ucon and his address as Wash, Calif., was booked at the Ulster county jail Monday evening for a five days' stay, that sentence having been imposed by Justice Walter Seaman on a public intoxication charge. He and Morris Peterson, 27, of Marlborough, who received the same sentence, were arrested at Highland by Sergeant E. J. Hulse of the State Police Peterson being charged with disorderly conduct.

According to the booking the Prince was born in North Africa, is a Mohammedan, has a college education and is by profession a "book writer." He said that he was a naturalized citizen and admitted 48 previous arrests.

The prince objected strenuously when Night Jailer Lyman Ellsworth insisted on his removing a long turban which he wore. He finally did so, objecting that he was being made to "remove his religion," but lost no time in replacing it as soon as possible.

FAT SALVAGE

The fat salvage campaign is not one that will run a week or a month but for the duration of the war.

What are you doing to keep the homemakers of your community alive to the continued need for saving waste kitchen fats?

Waste kitchen fats are in the spotlight. This country, which never fully realized its importance to peacetime life and progress, must now learn to think of it as a basic, indispensable material in war.

So homemakers "Get in the Scrap, Save Waste Fat." The campaign for salvaging of waste fats is lagging. Are we falling down on a job given to us to do? You are not selling our country short, are you? Well, are you? Have you made use of every little bit of meat drippings, meat scraps and oils? Honestly, have you saved fats that you cannot use at home and taken them to your butcher?

Sure, it's a piddling job. No medals are being awarded. No over time is being paid. No one may even thank you for your efforts. But whose war is this? It doesn't make any difference how the job is done just so we go to work or do what is asked of us.

To you it means only a little of your time and effort. Won't you start saving waste kitchen fats today?

Nuzzo Supporters Hold Election

His Opponents Challenge Legality of Voting

A new subject for controversy was injected into the troubled affairs of Local 17, International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union, when, at an election held in Newburgh, Nuzzo and his entire slate of candidates were elected. The supporters of Samuel Nuzzo, deposed business agent of the Local, were said to have been the exclusive participants in the election.

The executive committee of the Local, at a meeting Saturday, voted to postpone the election to Sunday, November 29, but the election committee, named at a nominating meeting here two weeks ago, held that the executive committee had no power to postpone the election. The designated polling places in the Local territory were not opened, but Nuzzo supporters hired a hall in Newburgh and the election was held under direction of the elections committee. It is stated that only a few of the supporters of Frederick W. Dusing of Kerhonkson, who defeated Nuzzo last February, took part in the balloting.

The Dusing group, which has been known as "the rank and file" portion of the Local's membership, had challenged Nuzzo's right to run for the office on the ground that when he was last employed, it had been as a member of another craft.

The challenge was put up to Joseph V. Moreschi, international president, who ruled that it was a matter for the Local to decide. The Dusing people claim that Moreschi's decision is a reversal of action he took some time ago in reference to eligibility of two of their members for office.

Nuzzo is at present facing charges of having, during his tenure of office, misappropriated some $35,000 of Union funds. His attorney, Henry Hirschberg, who resigned as district attorney of Orange county, on Friday, appeared before the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn and asked for a postponement of the trial. The move for a postponement is being opposed by Assistant Attorney General Edward G. O'Neil, who is representing the Attorney General's office in the proceedings.

OFFICE CAT

TRADE MARK REG.

By Junius

On the days when we seem to have the most sense, we also seem to do the least worrying about things we can't help.

A recruit failed to salute a captain. The captain followed him inside the barracks and demanded:

Captain — Don't you recognize the uniform?

Acute Wool Shortage

Our wood supply has been cut down, as everybody knows;
And we've been warned for months to save our last-year's woolen clothes.
And, since you know me anyway, right here I'll just confess:
My stock of last year's things to save was one cheap woolen dress.
But one was all that I could wear, so I refused to worry.
I knew I'd get it out some day, and saw no need to hurry.
And so, today, when cold winds blew, I said: "Right now I'll get it";
But, oh, I'd waited much too long —some hungry moths have et it!

Wife—Oh, George, do you realize it's almost a year since our honeymoon, and that glorious day we spent on the sands. I wonder how we'll spend this one?

Husband—On the rocks.

EXPERIENCE . . . Most of us believe that experience is what happens to a man . . . That isn't so . . . It is what a man does with what happens to him . . . This is why experience is classed as the greatest of all teachers—if we but have the wisdom to be guided by its lessons.

Office Manager—I suppose you are laying something aside for a rainy day?

Bookkeeper—Well, I'll admit I'm trying to accumulate enough for a wet evening.

Time was when we could take our time to do our tasks well. But that time has passed. We must do things as well, but must comply with schedules—it's our time no longer. We are in an all-out war.

We are parts of a great machine, and parts must work together in order that this machine give maximum production on time.

Whether we work on the farm or in the shop, in the mines, in the mills, or in transportation of products, all of us are giving our time for VICTORY.

Our time thus becomes the nation's time.

Late one evening when Pat was working in the yard, his wife called to him loud enough for all the neighbors to hear.

Wife — Come to supper—steak and potatoes and hot rolls and coffee!

Pat (coming in with his mouth watering)—Nora, you're kidding me, aren't you?

Tempus Fugit

A glance at this year's calendar
Should set your feet a-hopping;
Great guns! There's only five more weeks
To do your Christmas shopping!

Little Betty (watching the farm hands spreading out a stack of hay to dry, could contain her curiosity no longer, so she politely said—Is it a needle you're looking for?

Departing Guest—You've got a swell place here, Frank, but it looks a little bare yet.

Host—Oh, it's only because the trees are still a little young. I hope they'll have grown to a good size before you come again.

Everyone has work in which to carry on—duties to perform, influences to exert, which are peculiarly his, and which no conscience but his own can teach.

A mushroom measuring 17 inches across was found recently in Middleton-in-Teesdale, England.

Farm Fire Hazards Are Shown by Inspections

Cortland, —An inspection of 129 Cortland County farms for fire hazards this fall showed that no farm is completely free from the threat of serious damage by fire; the average number of serious fire hazards on a farm is more than five.

Farm fire inspection reports turned in by 4-H club members were the source of the facts on fire hazards that still remain on an ordinary New York State farm.

The Cortland County farmers in the survey are alert to the danger of chimney fires, for the figures show that nearly all clean their chimneys each year, and maintain a safe distance between stovepipes and walls or woodwork. Alertness is needed, however, because more than a third of all the chimneys have no fire clay lining.

Nearly all farms have stovepipes that run through ceilings or partitions, though practically all have ventilator collars around the pipes to lessen danger of fire.

On the score of early fire control, many farms lack enough safeguards. Twenty-nine of the 129 farm homes have neither running water nor pump in the house; 67 homes have no fire extinguisher, and only a few farms have fire extinguishers in the barn.

Storage of kerosene or gasoline in house or barn is one of the most serious fire hazards on these farms; 63 or about half of the farms report such storage. Thirty-six families still risk their lives by using kerosene to quicken fires in stoves. Nearly half the farmers invite serious fires by storing autos on inflammable floors, or housing auto, truck, or tractor, in a main building.

A few buildings have old curled wooden shingles that catch sparks easily, but practically all farms have ladders to use in mounting to a roof speedily.

About one-fifth of farm homes still have inflammable masses of old paper, furniture, and cloth in attic or cellar.

Few farmers have stored wet hay in their barns, but leaky roofs on 23 of the 129 farms have made wet spots in the hay mows, which may cause spontaneous combustion as easily as improperly cured hay.

Two other fire hazards common on the farms are unprotected electric extension cords running under rugs, over doors, and through partitions; and threshing machines on which the separator is not grounded while the machine is in operation, for protection against sparks of static electricity.

Brooklyn Hears Talk Of Quitting New York

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Shades of 1860! There is talk of secession—in Brooklyn.

Assemblyman Fred G. Moritt (Dem.) recommended yesterday that the borough of baseball and baby carriages secede from the city of New York and become a "local autonomy."

"We", he told 200 residents of his home district yesterday, "are the stepchild of Manhattan. There are too many homes boarded up and factories closed in Brooklyn."

He told his listeners to think it over and that if they felt the same way about it, he would take the matter up at the state legislature.

Wounded Deer Is Sought

Investigating a report by DeForest Bishop that a wounded deer had been seen on Route 209, near the Kripplebush road intersection, Inspector Fred DeWitt of the Conservation Department was told that the animal was last seen making its way across the fields. He was unable to find any trace of it last night. This morning Game Protector Gillen went out to make a further search for the animal.

Allies Point Two Spearheads

can reconnaissance planes patroled the desert without encountering the enemy. British reports also suggested that Field Marshal Rommel's withdrawal had outdistanced the British Eighth Army in pursuit across the hump of Cirenaica.

Military sources in London said that what was left of Rommel's force had been able to delay pursuit enough by rear guard action and mines to prevent General Montgomery from delivering the coupe de grace.

Reports that the Germans had landed 12-ton tanks by air in Tunisia suggested to London observers that the first of two newly organized Nazi panzer airborne divisions were being thrown into the Tunisian test. One of these divisions numbers some 7,500 fighting troops, 2,500 service troops, and more than 200 tanks.

In the air and, to a lesser extent, at sea the battle already was joined as Malta-based planes of the R. A. F. continued to batter at the Axis-held airport near Tunis, but a spokesman at Allied headquarters in North Africa said last night reports of fighting between Allied and Axis troops at Bizerte were premature.

Both Radio Morocco, in Allied controlled Morocco, and Axis stations had reported contact between the opposing forces, readying for a clash which will determine the success of the Allied operation in North Africa and probably settle the future of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's bedraggled Africa Corps, retreating westward in the Libyan desert.

The London Daily Express also said the British and American troops in Tunisia were "reported to be fighting a fierce battle with the Germans near Tunis," but there was no confirmation for the report.

Certain it was that the clash could not be long delayed with the Allied forces moving steadily toward the disputed area between Tunis and Bizerte and the Axis showing no abatement in preparations for the battle.

French forces in Tunisia already were fighting the Germans and Italians. The American consul at Tunis, who managed to make his way out of the Axis-held city and reach Algeria, said that French troops near Tunis had thrown back German patrols and "the French population is eagerly awaiting the arrival of the Americans."

The consul added that "the large Italian settlement is frightened to death."

French troops apparently were joining the British and American columns speeding to battle as they passed through the Tunisian countryside, a communique from Allied headquarters reporting that "small French military units have begun to cooperate with the eastern and center task forces."

At Oran, a French force joined United States troops at their Algerian stations, the communique said.

While the activities at sea were clouded in secrecy, the British navy unquestionably was contesting any Axis effort to reinforce the Nazi garrisons in Tunisia by sea and a communique said "the Royal Navy maintains control of the western Mediterranean and its approaches."

"This naval force has sustained losses," the communique added, "but these have been small in proportion to the size of operations and casualties on the whole have been light."

The capture of the officer and crew of an Axis submarine sunk off the North African coast was reported.

The American consul at Tunis on arriving in Algeria said he believed the Germans and Italians were trying to keep the ports of Tunis and Bizerte open to support Marshal Rommel's retreating forces, last reported in the neighborhood of El Agheila, Libya, some 400 miles from his main base at Tripoli.

Christmas Bonuses Can Be Given Out

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP).—You still get (or give) that traditional Christmas bonus, and Federal approval isn't necessary.

But note that it must be traditional! In other words, this is not the year to start a bonus custom, just because business is good. It is not the year to increase it, either. Of course, if bonuses have been based on a percentage of salary, and the salary has increased, then the amount of bonus also increases, but not the percentage. But if the bonus has been a fixed amount, it cannot be increased above the sum given in the last bonus year.

Mrs. Tierney Is Burned

While attempting to remove a parcel from a closet in the kitchen of her home, 6 Hudson street, at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, Mrs. Rose Tierney was burned slightly about the face and hands in a fire that did considerable damage to the kitchen. According to the fire department an electric iron had been left plugged in and had ignited the ironing board, the fire communicating to the floor and walls.

Two Contingents Are Sent to Army Induction, Camp

morning the crowd was swelled by hundreds of others who had gathered to bid good bye to the boys leaving for Camp Upton.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy served as grand marshal of the parade which was headed by the Sons of the Legion Drum Corps, Mayor William F. Edelmuth, a large number of army and navy men already in service and home on furloughs, members of Kingston Post of the American Legion, and of Joyce Schirick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. There were also squads of police and firemen in the parade.

Hundreds View Parade

The sidewalks on Broadway from the draft office in the central post office building to the West Shore railroad was lined by hundreds of relatives and friends of the boys who left for camp, while at the railroad station hundreds of others had assembled for their last glimpse of the boys as the train pulled out at noon.

Bringing up the rear of the parade this morning were the 88 men and clinging to their arms and marching with them in the parade were their mothers, wives and sweethearts.

Each member of the contingent was presented with a package containing candy, chewing gum and cigarettes by the mayor's committee to arrange gifts for the boys leaving for camp. The gifts were distributed by a group of Senior Girl Scouts.

Chief of Police Charles Phinney had detailed several policemen to serve as traffic officers and they directed traffic on Broadway while the parade was forming and during the march to the railroad station.

The squad of police in the parade was in charge of Captain James V. Simpson, while the platoon of firemen was led by Deputy Fire Chief Fred M. Leverich and Deputy Fire Chief Harold Sanford.

This was the first time since our country entered the second world war that two contingents have been sent away on the same day.

Since the first of the month all men inducted into the U. S. Army are granted but one week's furlough, instead of the usual two weeks.

Three Are Indicted

Detroit, Nov. 17 (AP)—Two priests of the Rumanian Orthodox Church, one of whom investigators said had sought to arrange entrance into the United States for former King Carol and Magda Lupescu, were indicted along with an editor of Rumanian publications by a Federal Grand Jury today on charges of espionage.

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, Nov. 17—Robert Dever who has been doing his cadet teaching at Red Hook Central school, has returned to his regular classes at New Paltz State Teachers college. A group from the New Paltz State Teachers college Forum took part in a discussion on the subject "Problems of Post War Reconstruction" at the Walden Study Club on November 16.

Mrs. DeWitt C. Seward will entertain the Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church at the regular meeting, Friday, November 20, at her home on Huguenot street.

Pvt. Robert Bresnan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bresnan was inducted into the United States army on November 1.

The Rev. and Mrs. St. Clair Vannix entertained Miss Dorothy Clapper of Balmville at the Episcopal rectory over the week-end.

Alexander Thomson is a patient at the Benedictine Hospital.

Roland Turner has been spending a week's furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Turner. His address is Roland Turner, U.S.S. Radford, Care of Postmaster, New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Elting Harp, Jr., of New Rochelle are the parents of a son, Walter Warren Harp, born November 6. Mr. Harp is a former resident of New Paltz.

Mrs. Nelson Clarkson was given a surprise stork shower by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Atkinson on Tuesday afternoon, November 3. Those attending were: Mrs. Lloyd Smith, Mrs. William Kaiser, Mrs. George Barteld, Mrs. Herman Glanz, Mrs. John Mergott, and Mrs. Frederick Heinsohn.

Mrs. Mabel I. Schneider entertained Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Brown and two children of Walden, on Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Lawrence Osterhoudt, Mrs. Jacob Deyo, Mrs. Faye LeFevre, Mrs. June Bliss, Miss Cornelia DuBois, John LeFevre and Mr. and Mrs. John Mosser were guests of Mrs. Perry Deyo at a birthday dinner at her home Saturday evening.

Pvt. Joseph O. Hasbrouck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Hasbrouck of Modena, has graduated from the parent radio school of the Air Forces Technical Training command, according to an announcement made by Col. Wolcott P. Hayes, post commander. Mrs. Hasbrouck received instruction in radio operation and mechanics and is now qualified for duty as a member of a fighting bomber crew.

Germany is trying to increase the yield of potato plants by treating seed potatoes with natural gas or ethylene.

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Stocks generally ignored the good war news today although scattered market leaders managed to recover fractions on Monday's losses.

Advances were the rule at the start. Dealings soon dwindled, however, and many issues backed away from the best. Near the fourth hour trends were slightly uneven.

Brokers appeared disappointed that the smashing U. S. naval defeat of the Japanese in the Solomons did not touch off more of a rally. Secretary Knox's warning that the latest victory was not decisive served to restrain some buyers. Light tax selling persisted as a handicap.

Dollar loans of captive European countries continued their rise. Commodities were uneven.

Among stocks U. S. Rubber Preferred touched a new year's top. Supported at intervals were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Great Northern, International Telephone, Westinghouse, United Aircraft and International Harvester. Occasional losers included Chrysler, Baltimore & Ohio, Western Union, Anaconda, American Can, Union Carbide, Goodyear, Dow Chemical and du Pont.

In a spotty curb resistance was shown by Humble Oil, Pantepec, Cities Service and Wright Hargreaves. On the offside at Times were American Cyanamid "B", Gulf Oil, Great Atlantic & Pacific and Pennroad.

2 More Ranking Naval Officers Killed in Action

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Rear Admiral Norman Scott of Kirkland, Mo., 53, and Captain Casin Young, 48, of Coronada, Calif., were killed in the furious night naval battle in the Solomon Islands on November 13, the Navy Department announced today.

Rear Admiral Scott was in command of a naval unit in the engagement and Captain Young, holder of the medal of honor for heroism at Pearl Harbor December 7, was commander of Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan's flagship. The death of Callaghan was reported by the navy yesterday shortly before announcement that American naval forces had scored a major victory over the Japanese armada.

Rear Admiral Scott, a native of Indianapolis, usually made his home at 135 West Bodley avenue, Kirkland.

He had been in command of a naval unit at sea since June of this year.

Captain Young, a native of Washington, D. C., had made his home at 560 B avenue, Coronado. His home address prior to that, the navy said, was 6401 Overbrook avenue, Philadelphia.

The best way to make sure that the child will like all vegetables when he grows up is to let him know their flavors when he is young.

Correction Is Made

The Albany avenue Socony Service Station, which has been designated by the Kingston ration board as one of the official inspection stations and registration points for the tire and gas rationing on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, is located at 550 Albany avenue and not 124 Albany avenue as previously reported in the list supplied by the ration board.

Shortage of wagon and harness makers and horseshoeing facilities is impeding increased use of horse-drawn vehicles, the Department of Commerce says.

Three Towns Give Health Report at '42 Annual Meeting

Reports from the towns of Hurley, Kingston and Shawangunk were made at the county Public Health Nursing Committee meeting, Wednesday, October 28, at the Stuyvesant Hotel. These reports in full follow:

TOWN OF HURLEY

Public Health Nursing Committee

We are young but growing and in good health for a baby not quite eight months old.

Our Committee got its start in Hurley last April; our first duties being the pre-school children's census, and this will be done again this Fall.

The committee also assisted at an immunization clinic for children, taking care of transportation as well.

A group within our organization has been meeting monthly making obstetrical bundles, and are sponsoring our Home Nursing class of 24 with Miss Anne Cassidy as our teacher. Mrs. Harold Davis is the able chairman of this group and Mrs. Edmund Bower is secretary.

Our Home Nursing class is meeting every week on Tuesday evenings, and our next sewing meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. John Gill on November 17th.

We are trying out the idea for cold winter days of serving tea after the business meeting.

May we take this opportunity to thank Miss Cassidy, not only for her instructions, but also for her patience in helping us to get started in Home Nursing and Health work.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. William A. Warren
Hurley, New York

Public Health Nursing Committee

I am very happy to report a very cooperative committee in Sawkill, as this is a small community. It is with pride, I am privileged to report a Home Nursing Class of 17, completed earlier in the year. Everyone very much interested and most willing to do their part for the benefit of our fellow-men. We were all very happy to have had Miss Anne Cassidy, as our instructress.

Mrs. Harry Hulsair completed a survey of pre-school children in our district.

Although we have no loan closet, we have a list of sick room supplies which are available, at any time, in case of emergency.

There has also been offered, by residents of our district, six cots or single beds with woolen blankets, if, and when, needed; a station wagon to be used as an ambulance and, the Church hall for a hospital by Reverend Father Hughes, for which we are truly grateful.

We, in Sawkill, are ready and willing to do our part when we are needed,

Respectfully,
Mrs. Ellen Beecher

TOWN OF SHAWANGUNK

Public Health Nursing Committee

The Public Health Committee of the Town of Shawangunk held six meetings during the year.

This committee continued to maintain the clinic rooms: payed for the janitor service, for painting of furniture and furnished wood for the stoves.

We purchased a sterilizer for the loan closet.

We purchased cod liver oil for distribution by the health nurse. Paid for one tonsilectomy.

We sponsored a class in home nursing in the health center rooms.

Provided necessary aid for the State Dental Trailer. Made three wool comforters to put in loan closet.

Several of the new members visited the tubercular hospital at Kingston.

We had Miss E. Meiers, County Agent for the Department of Social Welfare as a guest speaker.

Assisted with dental clinic transportation and provided hostesses for same.

Respectfully submitted
Mrs. De Witt Crowell
President
Shawangunk Public Health Nursing Committee

GRANGE NEWS

Ulster Grange, No. 969, of Ulster Park will hold its regular meeting in the hall Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock.

At the meeting November 4, the annual election of officers was held with the following officers elected for 1943:

On Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock the Grange will sponsor its fourth annual union Thanksgiving and Go-To-Church-Sunday service in the Ulster Park Reformed Church. The pastors of the Port Ewen M. E. Church, the Esopus M. E. Church, the West Park Episcopal Church, the Union Center Chapel and the Port Ewen Reformed Church will assist in the service. The guest speaker will be the Rev. Clarance E. Brown of Kingston. The music will be in charge of Mrs. J. Hudson Cole, organist of the church, assisted by Miss Mary Polhemus.

The offering will be devoted to war activities.

Montgomery Ward's Reply to the NATIONAL WAR LABOR BOARD

November 13, 1942
National War Labor Board
Department of Labor Buildings
Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen:

We have the National War Labor Board's order of November 5.*

In this order the board demands that Montgomery Ward & Company enter into contract establishing a form of closed shop called "Maintenance of Membership," together with a check-off of union dues from wages. Under this form of closed shop, the employes who are members of the union would not be free to resign from the union without being discharged, and Wards would not be free to retain a competent worker who had resigned from the union. This making of union membership a condition of employment is the essence of the closed shop, whatever form it may take. "Maintenance of membership" is the starting phase which inevitably leads to the full closed shop.

The President of the United States is quoted as having said, on November 14, 1941: "The government of the United States will not order, nor will congress pass legislation ordering, the so-called closed shop." Wards is in agreement with this statement and believes that the board's order is not in accordance with the President's principles.

Wards believes that the board's demand not only violates the fundamental principles of liberty, but are economically unsound and are illegal under the terms of the National Labor Relations Act.

If the board's order against Wards is enforced, the pattern will be established by which all unions in all industries can secure a form of closed shop and check-off merely by appeals to the War Labor Board.

The board further ordered a form of compulsory arbitration for Wards. Wards is not opposed to voluntary arbitration. However, Wards' management should not, as demanded by the board, abandon responsibilities which have been vested in it by the owners of the corporation, and so surrender to outside arbitrators the final decision on all matters which the union may wish to treat as grievances.

The board further ordered that Wards guarantee its wages and other working conditions for a one-year period. Wards believes that a fixed duration of one year is unsound in these uncertain times.

Wards operates in a highly competitive field composed of one million seven hundred fifty thousand retail establishments. It is unfair to impose burdens upon Wards and not upon those with whom it is in competition. Ward's efforts to preserve the essential freedoms between itself and its employes have not been prompted by any feeling of anti-unionism. The report of the mediation panel expressly recognizes this fact. Wards policy has been to obey the law. Wards has twenty-nine union contracts with both A. F. of L and C. I. O. Unions.

Wards has already given its employes the increases in wages previously recommended by the board. Wards did this even though its wages were already as high as or higher than those prevailing in the industry and had been increased an average of over 21% since January, 1941. Wards is willing to include these increases in a contract with the union. There is no issue over wages.

The War Labor Board was created by the President to replace the old defense mediation board. The mediation board was destroyed by the resignation of the union members following the board's vote of nine to two against a closed shop in the Captive Coal Mine case. The War Labor Board, in name only, is composed of representatives of the unions, of industry, and of the public. The union representatives are men chosen for leadership by the unions, and have actually protected the interests of the unions. On the other hand, neither industry nor the public have had any voice in the selection of those who presumably represent them. By their decisions, the supposed representatives of industry and of the public have because of inexperience, prejudice or lack of understanding, abandoned the interests of those whom they were appointed to represent.

Under the constitution, congress is the sole law-making authority. If closed shops and compulsory arbitration are to become requirements upon employers, it is congress and not the War Labor Board which should make them so. Congress has not empowered the board to order any employer to do any of the things it demands of Wards. Accordingly, Wards rejects the orders of the board. If congress imposes closed shops, compulsory arbitration or contracts for a year's duration on employers, or if the President of the United States, as commander-in-chief in time of war, directs that Ward accept the board's rulings, which we earnestly believe are illegal and uneconomic, we will respectfully obey.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) SEWELL AVERY,
President.

Halsey, One of Toughest Men Afloat, Also Is Air-Minded And Throws Rules to Winds

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—U. S. Naval forces which smashed the Japanese fleet in the Solomons were led by one of the toughest men we have afloat.

Vice-Admiral William Frederick Halsey, Jr., commander of United States naval forces in the southern Pacific, symbolizes America's answer to the boast of Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto that he would dictate peace in the White House.

Armiral Yamamoto now has other things than peace to think about. One of them is how to stop "Pudge" Halsey.

The naval record shows that Halsey had Tokyo's number even before the war began. On November 28, ten days before Pearl Harbor, a carrier task force set out for Wake Island to deliver planes under absolute war conditions. Tokyo was making fancy passes at Thailand (Siam) in those days, you remember.

Halsey wasn't fooled. His orders to the carrier force were to blow any Jap ship out of the water and shoot any planes out of the sky.

Halsey is, among other things, one of our most air-minded admirals. He learned to fly at 52.

He knows he still can learn and that the more you learn the better you fight.

He is furthermore our most experienced carrier task-force commander, and, to Tokyo's misfortune, most of this experience has been in the Pacific: In the raids in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands; in the vengeance blow at Wake and Marcus Island.

Halsey took over in the Solomons area on October 17, just when it looked as though a huge Japanese fleet might cut off our Marines there. "Pudge" Halsey went in slugging with a carrier task-force, and in the battle of October 26 made the Nipponese armada turn tail for cover a thousand miles to the north.

Two Japanese carriers, a battleship, and five cruisers were seriously damaged, perhaps sunk, and 100 planes downed with another 50 probably destroyed.

Prelude to Recent Action

This was just a prelude to the smashing victory the U. S. forces under Halsey scored over a vast Japanese armada in the Solomons battle just ended in which the Japs lost 23 ships including one battleship and five cruisers. In addition five destroyers and eight transports were sunk, and four other transports destroyed after being beached.

Halsey is an unorthodox fighter and makes his rules as he goes along. Naval academy classmates say he always did his own thinking on strategy and followed the course that was most logical under the circumstances, rules or no rules.

Of his successes in the Pacific he explains:

"We do the exact opposite of what they expect us to do.

"We deliberately put ourselves under fire of enemy batteries. We expose ourselves to shore-based planes. We do not stay behind the battle with our carriers.

"Most important: Whatever we do, we do fast."

Admiral Halsey's tactic of putting his carriers well ahead in the battle gives his task forces terrific striking power.

In the raid on the Marshall and Gilbert Islands this "brilliant and audacious attack" hit the jackpot for 16 enemy ships and Halsey lost only two planes.

Since his navy-captain father cut off his golden curls at the age of three, "Pudge" Halsey has been fighting it out.

When a boy in Elizabeth, N. J., where he was born, laid his scalp open with a baseball bat, "Pudge" wouldn't tell his mother who did it.

"Never mind," he said, "I'll take care of that guy myself."

"Pudge" entered Annapolis at 18 and had graduated by 1904. He commanded destroyers from 1911 through the World War, got the Navy Cross for Distinguished Service on convoy duty, and then went to Berlin, Copenhagen and Stockholm as naval attache.

There followed years of routine service with battleships, destroyer squadrons, and at Annapolis. He picked up new courses at the Navy War College—and at the Army War College.

But by 1934 he saw war in the air coming, and went to Pensacola to learn to fly—at 52 years of age. In 1935 he commanded the carrier Saratoga, and in June, 1938, after a year as commandant of the Pensacola Naval Air Station, became commander of an aircraft carrier division.

He was made vice-admiral last June.

Major Operation

Santa Ana, Calif.—Seventeen-year-old Harry Hurd read that a sudden shock might cure stuttering.

So Harry took a light rifle, a police report said, and shot himself in the shoulder.

Help Win the War

London (AP)—Said a Midland production manager: "Get a gang of women together where they can chin-wag and you get output. Isolate them and the pace is distinctly slowed." He explains it this way: "Sooner or later there will be squabbling, which results in hard eyes, tight lips, and a blistering silence. Strange to say, this also increases the rate of work. The great thing for output is to get them together."

Jailers Make a Jail Break

Clarksburg, W. Va. (AP)—Jailers had to "break" a willing prisoner out of the city lockup recently. The man in the cell was due to get out but the key wouldn't work. Sergeant E. F. Armulet, Jr., with a firm grip on the hammer, pounded at the lock. The city's scrap pile was increased with a half-pound of battered brass.

A diamond valued at $1,400 was unearthed recently on a lonely farm near Potchefstroom, South Africa.

Active preparation for the annual Christmas Seal sale of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Association is well under way today at the office of the organization. Girl Scouts, girls of the Kingston Colony, nurses and other volunteer workers have been folding, sticking and putting seals into envelopes for delivery on November 23. Girl Scouts, taking part in this important defense job are shown above with their county commissioner, Mrs. Parker K. Brinnier and Katherine M. Murphy, executive secretary and nurse of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association. Troop 3, St. Mary's Church; Troop 4, No. 7 School; Troop 7, St. John's Church; Troop 8, St. Joseph's Church; Troop 9, No. 5 School; and Troop 11, Senior Service Scouts of St. John's Church, are shown.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press

Double Trouble

Middletown, Ind.—Carl Clinger owned two automobiles — a "Jalopy" he drove to work and a new sedan, his "Sunday Best."

While he was driving the sedan, it stalled, so he went back for the "Jalopy" and with another man started to push the sedan home.

Then the old car stalled at a railroad crossing with half of each car squarely on the tracks. Clinger and his helper jumped to safety as a train demolished both cars.

Premature

Philadelphia—At 10:20 a. m. air raid sirens screamed throughout Philadelphia for a surprise drill.

At 10:21 a. m. a man telephoned the Municipal Electrical Bureau and asked excitedly:

"Is the war over?"

Fast Flier

Denver—Those new airplanes are fast all right, but there's something faster.

Lt. Glen H. Hutchinson whizzed in from his Roswell, N. M., base, but found he had come in second. The stork arrived first.

Lively Antique

Kansas City—Singer James Melton, who collects antique automobiles, heard about the 1922 model electric that Mrs. Sidney J. Montgomery drives about Kansas City streets. He decided he wanted it.

Snapped Mrs. Montgomery: "My car is not an antique. I would like Mr. Melton to know that."

Oil Burner

New York—Mrs. Bert Turnell answered a summons given her husband for driving his car while the exhaust laid down a heavy smoke screen.

Magistrate William E. Ringel began lecturing her on the waste of gasoline in these times.

"But, your honor," she interrupted, "We don't use gasoline. We use fuel oil."

Gun/Shy

Camp Gruber, Okla.—Private Bud Chapman of Chillicothe, Mo., a rifle range instructor, has shot an old legend full of holes.

He has some Tennessee mountain boys in his classes. Many of them never have fired a gun before.

Very Ducky

Denver—The helping-hand policy:

Six Denver residents were duck hunting. They reached their favorite spot, took a gander at a Neighboring field, and saw that farmer Eldon Waggner needed help.

They put their shotguns aside, pitched in and helped harvest 15 tons of beets.

Serial Story

Dallas—The Dallas city waterworks is changing to a bimonthly billing system. This month it sent out blank forms, on which were printed only the serial number, explaining that a double bill will arrive in December.

But the confused customers are sending in checks to correspond with the serial numbers.

"A Bird in the Hand—"

Royal, Ill.—George Carl had a run of bad luck after he shot a pheasant near here.

After carrying the bird half a mile, he tore his clothing trying to climb a fence. He laid the pheasant on the ground, tried to untangle himself from the fence, cut his hand.

Just as he reached for it, the "Dead" bird flew away.

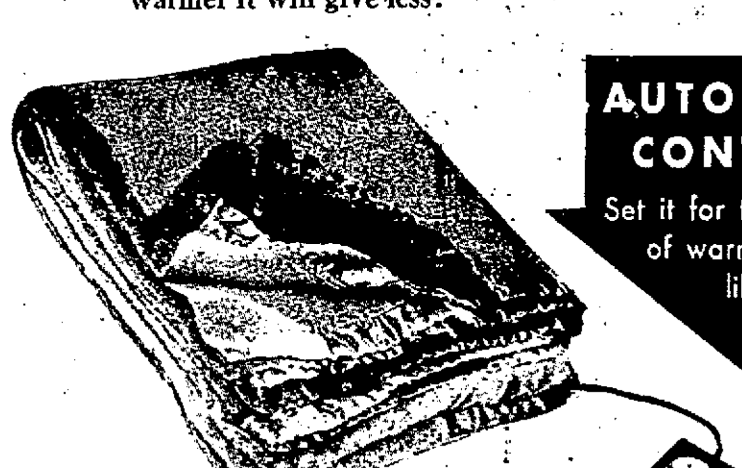
HERE'S PERFECT COMFORT . . .

The NEW ELECTRIC AUTOMATIC BLANKET!

Comfort such as you've never known before—ONE beautiful lightweight covering to keep you warm no matter how cold the night!

A little automatic control by your bedside acts as a watchman through the night. Set it to the degree of mild and constant warmth you like, slip into a bed already warm . . . a soothing, drowsy warmth which induces your body to relax and drops you gently off to sleep.

Open the windows wide and let the fresh air in—there's no need for extra blankets to weigh you down. As the bedroom grows colder the blanket will give more warmth, or if the room gets warmer it will give less!



AUTOMATIC CONTROL
Set it for the degree of warmth you like

The Last Till Victory.

Department and electrical appliance stores still have a limited number of Automatic Blankets in stock for immediate delivery . . . but when these are sold there will be no more for the duration. The manufacturers are now devoting their facilities exclusively to the production of electrically-heating flying suits, shoes, gloves and other equipment for the Armed Forces.

To Save Fuel.

With rationing of fuel oil and transportation difficulties surrounding the delivery of coal coupled with the fact that gas is made from both these fuels, we must all cooperate in the government fuel conservation program, keeping our homes at a lower temperature this winter no matter what our method of heating.

Here's a way to really save . . . by keeping bedrooms cooler than usual. Spread an Automatic Blanket on your bed—snap the switch to "on" before retiring—here's warmth like warm spring sunshine!

SEE Them At Local Stores.

While they last . . . select the colors you prefer—blue cedar, gold, green or reversible wood rose and beige. Convenient terms.

Harvest Festival Is Planned by C. E.

The Christian Endeavor of the Ponckhockie Congregational Church will hold a Harvest Festival in the church basement, Friday, starting at 7 p. m. Members of the congregation and friends are invited to attend, and to loan quilts, crocheted articles, antiques, sewing or other hobby articles for display, also jellies, jams, canned goods, pies, cakes or vegetables for display or to be sold. All articles should be left at the church by November 19. Moving pictures will be shown.

Money received will be used toward the Christian Endeavor's pledge to the church and for a gift to each of the boys from the church in the armed service.

All members of the society are assisting in arranging for the festival under the leadership of John Winters, president, and Mrs. Charles McGinnis, advisor.

DeMicco-Scanlon

Miss Dolores Scanlon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Scanlon of 650 Delaware avenue, became the bride of Roy DeMicco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo DeMicco, of Delaware avenue, Sunday, November 15, at 2 p. m., in St. Mary's Church. The Rev. Benjamin C. Roth officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with long veil and carried white chrysanthemums. She was given in marriage by her father. The attendants were Miss Anne DeMicco, sister of the bridegroom, who wore a blue taffeta gown with matching hat and carried yellow chrysanthemums; and Miss Eileen O'Neil, cousin of the bride, who wore a peach taffeta gown and carried orchid chrysanthemums. Attendants for the bridegroom were his brother, Angelo DeMicco and Lawrence Scanlon, brother of the bride. James O'Neil and Anthony Alecco acted as ushers.

A reception for 100 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents, following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. DeMicco will make their home at 650 Delaware avenue. Mr. DeMicco is employed at the Newburgh airport.

Booker T. Washington Is Reviewed By Sorosis

Sorosis met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Perley, 139 Wall street. Reports of the recent Federated Women's Club State Convention held at Syracuse were given by Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen.

The paper of the day on a Southern Personality was a short biographical account of Booker T. Washington given by Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman. He was born in obscurity as a slave and as a boy had a great yearning for knowledge. Inspired by this he worked his way through school and later through Hampton Institute. This training resulted in his founding Tuskegee Institute, a normal and industrial school for colored people in Alabama. Mr. Washington was also the first negro to make public lecturing appearances. Through his efforts, the standard of life among the negroes was raised and a memorial to him is placed at Tuskegee Institute.

The next meeting of the club will be at the home of Mrs. Lorraine Wood of 82 Highland avenue. Mrs. Grover Lasher will have the paper of the day.

Kingston Musical Society

There will be a meeting of the Musical Society at the home of Mrs. A. Noble Graham, 21 Janet street, Wednesday, November 18, at 8:15 p. m. The program arranged by Mrs. Arthur Laidlaw assisted by Miss Helen Turner and Mrs. Mortimer Downer will be presented as an interview of a former occupant of the Diamond Horseshoe entitled "Fifty Years of Opera Going."

Kingston W. C. T. U. Roll Call

Annual Roll Call day will be observed by the members of Kingston W.C.T.U. Thursday, November 19, at 2:30 p. m. at St. James Methodist Church. The devotional program will be led by Mrs. O. B. Smith and Mrs. George Shultis will present membership plans for 1943. Membership dues will be paid at this meeting.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

What Will People Say If A Young Woman Sees Her Boy-Friend Off When He Sails Overseas.

That continually repeated question of whether a girl may go to see her best boy-friend who is waiting to embark, is this time sent me by a girl's mother. Her letter says: "We live in the midwest. My daughter who is not yet twenty-one, has a particular boy-friend in the Navy, and he is stationed near New York. He is soon to have leave but not for long enough to come home. He wants my daughter to come to New York so they can spend his leave-times with her. Her father and I have no objection on the grounds of not trusting them both—which we do implicity. But we feel that it may be considered very irregular for her to go alone and stay in a hotel in New York. We don't want to let her make a mistake which may take a long time to live down in the minds of the gossips. A word from you would help.

I can answer easily enough that in New York there are several hotels run especially for young women alone, (where house-rules serve as chaperones). About the gossips I can't answer, further than that their disapproval is at least not likely to be directed toward the girl whom they like, and of whom they have always approved.

Who Is Called "Miss Ruth"?

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it wrong to call a young woman "Miss Ruth" instead of the formal "Miss Jones" or at the other extreme "Ruth"?

Answer: In dressmaking establishments and beauty parlors, saleswomen are always called "Miss Ruth". Socially "Miss Ruth" is used in the South, often even after she is married. Elsewhere "Miss Ruth" is seldom used except as a somewhat affectionate name for a maiden lady who is quite old and "Miss Ruth" seems more friendly than "Miss Johnson."

Brother Arriving Home With Commission

Dear Mrs. Post: My brother will be coming home soon and when he comes he will in all likelihood be a commissioned officer. We would like to send out cards inviting everyone we know to an "at home" for him, and we think it will be a good time to announce that he has received this commission. May we write "at home for Lieut. Smith" on the invitation, or how should we do it.

Answer: I'm sorry but you really should not word the invitations like that. You may of coure send out cards saying that you will be at home. And you may tell people that you expect him home and are giving the party for that reason. But I would not if I were you say anything about his commission, until he has received it. To see him in his uniform is the best way to be told the news.

So many requests have been for copies of my article on details concerned with training camps (behavior of visitors and presents for the men), that I have had it printed in leaflet and will be very glad to send it to anyone who sends me a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope in care of Kingston Daily Freeman. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

Olivet of Kingston, the bride being Mrs. Olivet's sister.

Club Notices

Works of Verdi Studied At Olympian Club Meeting

Last evening the Olympian Club met with Miss Lucinda Healy at her home, 81 O'Neil street. The paper for the evening was given by Miss Winifred Sullivan.

She spoke first of the life of Guiseppe Verdi, Italian opera composer. His first work was given in Milan in 1839 and he wrote a number of operas. Miss Sullivan spoke in particular of "Aida." Verdi's success was due largely with his ability to keep abreast of the changes taking place in the dramatic art. In addition to the paper several records of music from "Aida" were greatly enjoyed by the members of the club.

The next meeting will be November 30 at the home of Mrs. James Murphy, Jr., 255 Pearl street.

Economical Cold Weather Dinner
(Serving 3 or 4)

Smothered Liver and Vegetables
Raisin Rolls Butter
Fruit Salad French Dressing
Coffee

Smothered Liver and Vegetables Laden with Vitamins and Minerals

1 pound beef or pork liver
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon celery seed
⅛ teaspoon poultry seasoning
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups boiled rice
1 cup cooked diced carrots
1 cup tomatoes
¼ cup finely chopped onions
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
4 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine, melted.

Cover liver for 10 minutes with boiling water. Drain and wipe dry. Roll liver in flour with seasonings added. Place it in shallow, buttered baking dish. Cover with rice and carrots. Add rest of ingredients, blended. Cover and bake an hour in moderate oven. Uncover last 10 minutes to brown the top. Serve in baking dish.

Raisin Rolls
(Appetizing Quick Bread)

2 cups enriched flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/3 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons shortening
2/3 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup sugar (brown preferred)
2/3 cup raisins or currants
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Mix together flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening and slowly add milk. When soft dough forms pat it out until about 1/3 inch thick. Spread with rest of ingredients, combined. Roll up quickly and cut off ½ inch slices. Place the slices next to each other on a slightly greased pan. Bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

West Point Field Artillery Cagers May Meet Recreations

U. S. O. Benefit Is Planned for Local Court December 9

All-American From West Virginia Is Member of Point Basketeers; Game Announced Today

The Field Artillery Detachment of the United States Military Academy at West Point, under Master Sergeant James M. McCabe, who was the sergeant instructor for the 156th Field Artillery in this city, will be brought here for a basketball game against the Kingston Recreations Wednesday night, December 9 in a special U.S.O. benefit contest.

Committee Under Way

County Judge J. Edward Conway announced today that District Attorney N. LeVan Haver will announce at a future date further appointments to the basketball committee of which he is chairman. The special committee is expected to work hand in hand with the regular Recreation committee for this attraction.

According to present plans, this is the first in a series of basketball engagements which will be booked throughout the present season with service teams. Others will be listed during the year from time to time.

Great Stars Listed

Judging from the advance press information released yesterday the Recreations, now composed of some of the best players in professional basketball, will come up against one of the toughest opponents that they will meet this year. A former All-American player heads the list. He is Captain H. H. Gist, former All-American at West Virginia. He stands six feet, two inches in height and plays forward. Gist is attached to the medical corps.

Another forward on the West Point squad is Dick Gelman, five feet, 11 inches tall, who was labeled all-Westchester City forward. George Gray, Croton-on-Hudson High School star, is a six-footer. Pat Tortorello rounds out the forwards. He was former New Jersey all-state forward and is five feet, eight inches in height.

The center position finds George Snow, a six-foot one inch ace who played on the Rockland City championship club in 1941. Godfrey Casaella, a member of the St. Mary's Club in Jersey City, N. J., also is listed for pivot duty.

The Field Artillery club has Lew Panzanaro, a six-foot, one inch guard who is perhaps one of the best players on the star-studded roster. He was one of the Peekskill Big Five and has played against such clubs as the Olsen Swedes, House of David and Kate Smith's Celtics. Charlie Adanaski, another guard, received his athletic letter from the U. S. Army in the Hawaiian Islands in 1939. The other guard is Frankie Friedman, Yorktown Heights High School ace who was chosen on the all-star league outfit.

Recs Stand Pat

New N.Y.U. Runner Tabbed as Another Leslie MacMitchell

Frank Dixon Scores Win in 34th Cross Country Event; 100-Yard Lead at Finish

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Frank Dixon is only a freshman at New York University but in eastern track circles today he was being compared to Leslie MacMitchell, the Violets' great distance runner of the past three years, who now is an ensign in the navy.

Dixon scored a decisive triumph yesterday in the 34th inter-collegiate A.A.A.A. cross country race, finishing a hundred yards ahead of his closest rival, Yale's Leroy Schwartzkopf. MacMitchell had won the same race three years in a row, but never in more decisive fashion.

The freshman star, competing in the varsity event under a wartime ruling making first-year men eligible, took the lead at the start and stretched it steadily as he wound his way over the hilly, five-mile course.

He finished the distance in 27 minutes, 8.4 seconds, nearly 17 seconds better than Schwartzkopf's time of 27:25. The Yale runner came in another hundred yards ahead of two members of the Rhode Island State quintet which captured the team title for the third straight year.

Kenneth Taylor finished third, Lawrence Barrett was fourth, and Bob Nichols was sixth to account for the low numbers in Rhode Island's total of 55 points.

Penn State finished second in the team scoring with 79 points, followed by N. Y. U., 83; Manhattan, 135; Yale, 150; Michigan State, 168; Maine, 211; Fordham, 229; Cornell, 252; and New Hampshire, 269.

Fund Report Given

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—The United States Golf Association, compiling a "war service record" of the nation's 5,200 courses, has received replies from 430 of them showing that a total of $116,376 has been raised for war relief and recreation funds and that $906,767 worth of War Bonds and Stamps have been sold.

Two More In Service

Chicago — John Chickerneo, New York Giants quarterback, and Don Eliason, Brooklyn Dodger end, have joined the armed forces, bringing the total of National Football League players in service to 229. Eighteen have entered since the start of the present season.

Jim Thomson Enlists

Long Beach, Calif., Nov. 17 (AP)—Jimmy Thomson, 34-year-old pro who for years has been one of golf's longest hitters, enlisted in the Coast Guard yesterday.

He expects to report for service in two or three weeks.

Big Turnout Expected For Rec-Hartford Game

First 1942-43 Cage Tilt Slated for Auditorium Wednesday Night at 9:15 o'Clock

Professional basketball will be tested Wednesday night at the municipal auditorium by the newly-organized Kingston Recreations under the tutelage of Manager "Turk" Karam. The first opponent for the 1942-43 campaign will be Honey Russell's Hartford Gems, new entry in the American Professional Basketball League. Wednesday's opener is slated to start at 9:15 o'clock. A prelim is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Officials of the Recreations were anticipating a large turnout at Wednesday's opener in view of the recent upswing of requests for reserved seats. When the first announcement came about the start of another basketball season, holders of tickets last year were a little hesitant before applying for reservations again. However, as soon as the fans saw the type of players being brought in for the team this season, they responded with phone calls to the reservation department for their requests.

Gems Are Strong

Starting off with the Hartford Gems Wednesday night gives the Recreations a big menu to think about. With players such as Phil Rabin, Allie Esposito, Herman Knuppel, Bobby Holm, Jimmy White, Russell himself and Jack McGuirk of last year's Kingston squad, the Gems should be a "natural" to open the new festivities. Karam himself praises Honey Russell's choices but comes back with a prediction, that Kingston should be able to handle itself against the Nutmeg State representatives.

After breezing through the Hartford lineup recently, Karam declared "Kingston fans will be in for a big surprise Wednesday night. These two boys, Nick Shaback and Herb Gershon, in my opinion, will give the club one of the fastest and potent passing attacks seen around in years." Shaback proved to be a big favorite last year. Karam also mentioned Howie Bollerman who has regained his 1940-41 form.

Although the Recreation schedule is limited at this time due to the difficulty of booking many games in advance, it is believed that the club will endeavor to get the outstanding Philadelphia Sphas of the American League here for the Thanksgiving Night contest at the auditorium. Fans also are requested to keep the tentative date of Wednesday, December 9, in mind when the Recreations are scheduled to oppose the Field Artillery of the United States Military Academy at the auditorium. This game will be played for the U.S.O.

Durocher to Meet Rickey Today for Contract Signing

New Brooklyn President Says He Prefers Early Decision on Pilot of Flatbushers

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Leo Durocher went to see a man about a job today.

Durocher, who has managed the Brooklyn Dodgers for four seasons and is more than slightly interested in continuing in that capacity, was scheduled to talk over the situation with the new president of the National League baseball club, Branch Rickey.

Leo arrived in town last night, shortly after Rickey disclosed he had wired the manager in St. Louis that he "would like to see him at his earliest convenience."

Rickey arranged to meet with Durocher today, but declined to discuss the conference in advance. He indicated, however, that he would prefer an early decision on the managerial question.

"This uncertainty is not my way of doing things," Rickey declared. "I want to settle this matter at the earliest possible moment and then I will be able to attack my other problems with more energy and delight."

Book Home Games

Bartlesville, Okla., Nov. 17 (AP)—The Phillips "66" basketball team, which used to travel from coast to coast each year, no longer has the wanderlust.

The team will play only home games this season.

Many of its stars, including Coach Chuck Hyatt and Angelo "Hank" Luisetti, are in the services.

Brother Against Brother

Columbus, O., Nov. 17 (AP)—Brother may play against brother when Michigan meets Ohio State Saturday.

Paul White is a stellar halfback for the Wolverine football team while his brother, John, is second string left end for Ohio State. They live in River Rouge, Mich.

Family Dogs May Get Along on Mixed Foods

Ithaca — Fido, the family pup, need not go hungry even when meat rationing cuts out all his share of fresh meat, says Prof. C. M. McCay of the school nutrition at Cornell University.

Dry mixed dog foods, either in pellets or meal, which contain some dry meat and bone meal, will keep the dogs healthy and growing he says, without as much as a smell of fresh meat. They don't even need a real bone to chew on, so the bones from the meat ration can go into the family stew pot for added flavor.

"We have reared puppies from the time they were weaned, on dry mixed foods," says Dr. McCay. "These puppies grew into excellent dogs with fine bones and teeth. One litter of puppies was offered its first fresh meat when the pups were six months old. They played around the meat for a day before they decided it was good to eat."

The fifteen million dogs in America, like the people, says McCay, will learn in wartime to eat some foods that are new to them. Both the dogs and their owners will be healthier for the change.

Rare Bird Bagged

Chicago — A rare game bird was bagged in a recent hunt by C. E. Berman of Chicago. It was an almost perfect albino cock pheasant. The plumage was perfectly white except for a few scattered spots of dark brown on the head, back and wings.

Georgia Holds Top Position in Grid Poll for Colleges

Writers Switch Votes to Boston College; Team Still in Third Place Despite Change

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Georgia clung to first place in the Associated Press' poll to determine the nation's best college football team although its share of the first place votes slumped from 76 per cent a week ago to 54 per cent in today's tabulation.

Much of the favoritism formerly shown the southern powerhouse switched to Boston College but the Eagles were unable to better their third place rating behind Georgia and Georgia Tech.

Sixty-nine of the 126 voting experts figured the Bulldogs were the best although 85 of the 112 had that opinion a week ago before the men of Wally Butts buried Chattanooga, 40 to 0.

More 1st Place Votes

However, the 56 to 6 pasting the Bostonians applied to Fordham brought them 37 first place votes in contrast with the 10 of a week ago. And Georgia Tech, which cleared one of the toughest hurdles in downing Alabama, gained points and respect but also lost first place votes in the general swing to the Eagles.

All three of the top clubs are barging along unbeaten and untied, a situation that may last until the two Georgia elevens collide in Atlanta and Boston College meets its arch foe, Holy Cross. The winner of the southern battle and the Eagles have been labeled as prospective foes in the Jan. 1 Sugar Bowl contest.

Michigan, which lived up to early season billing by downing Notre Dame, vaulted from sixth to fourth place while the Irish skidded from fourth to eighth.

Three other big ten clubs in addition to the Wolverines gained rankings in the first ten, Ohio State grabbing fifth place, Wisconsin seventh and Minnesota tenth.

Tulsa into Sixth

Tulsa, also unbeaten and untied, swirled into sixth place on the strength of its 24 to 0 victory over highly rated Baylor of the southwest conference last Saturday.

Although the one-two race of the two Georgia elevens is likely to continue until the final November poll, the struggle for fourth place between Michigan and Ohio State will be decided this Saturday when the two meet at Columbus. Similarly, Wisconsin and Minnesota are rivals this week-end.

Jim Dykes Happy; Sees Problems in Re-Building Sox

White Sox Manager Has Lost 18 Players to Armed Forces; Is Still Very Proud

Chicago, Nov. 17 (AP)—Jimmy Dykes, pugnacious Chicago White Sox manager, shifted the ever-present cigar in his mouth which signalled that he had something to say.

"I'm happy—and it's a funny feeling being that way when you got so many troubles," he said. "Two more of my lads enlisted yesterday and that makes 18 in all to answer Uncle Sam's call. Of that I'm happy and proud.

"But, boy, have I got troubles! I nearly have to rebuild my whole baseball team for next year,"—and with that he viciously sank his teeth into the cigar.

Dykes had just received word from Len Perme, the left handed pitcher brought up from Waterloo, Ia., of the Three Eye League last September, that he had joined the Navy. Earlier in the day, Myril Hoag sent in the tidings of his enlistment in the Army Air Forces at Mather Field, Sacramento, Cal.

That placed 18 stars on the Sox service flag, one of gold in memory of Gene Stack, the first major leaguer to be drafted, who died last June.

With Hoag gone, most of Dykes' troubles are spotted in the outfield. Wally Moses, 31, is the only veteran fly chaser left. Taft Wright and Sam West preceded Hoag by several months. Two outfield rookies, Bill Mueller and Val Heim, called up from Waterloo late in the season, are in the Navy. Dave Philley, another prospect, who was in last spring's training camp, is in the Army.

Other White Sox players in military service are Ted Lyons, veteran pitcher; Walter Navie, John Rigney, Leo Wells, George Dickey, Stanley Goletz, Chester Hajduk, Murrell Jones, Bob Kennedy, and Doyle Lade, who was bought in midseason from Shreveport.

Odd But Science

Life From Lava?

By H. W. BLAKESLEE
(Wide World Science Editor)

New York—A. L. Herrera, Mexican biologist, reports some evidence in laboratory experiments that life, at least on the scale of bacteria, may have originated in volcanoes, and may still be coming from eruptions.

His experiments have covered 10 years. He has mixed chemicals containing formaldehyde, ammonia, sulphur and cyanogen. From the mixtures have come about 6,000 different microscopic forms, all of them showing some of the properties of living micro-organisms.

He does not claim that these test tube things are alive. But they act variously like ameba, spores and chromosomes which are the particles which fix heredity. In fact he says they imitate the whole microscopic world.

In addition, chemical analysis shows that they produce certain reactions. From these reactions come vestiges of starch, amino-acids which are the parts of proteins and globules of green, red and yellow pigments. All these are ordinary products of living micro-organisms.

Volcanoes, he points out, contain in their emanations sulphur, cyanogen and ammonia, which may be the basis of continual synthesis, or creation, of life from inorganic matter.

As supporting evidence that life can originate in inert matter he refers to experiments of a few years ago in the United States, in which mixtures of olive oil and gasoline produced microscopic things which, though presumably not alive, imitated much that happens in a cell of living tissue.

light cruisers and six destroyers.)

Nimitz estimated between 20,000 and 40,000 Jap troops went down on the sunken transports, which he described as "jammed full."

If he were a Jap commander, he said, "I'd be sweating and bleeding if I had to explain such a loss."

The action cost the life of Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan, former naval aide to President Roosevelt, during an opening phase in which the flagship he was commanding received several 14-inch shell hits from an enemy battleship which wrecked the bridge and superstructure.

Brush Estate Is Set At $1,973,770 by Appraisal

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Matthew C. Brush, industrialist and a Republican presidential elector from Connecticut until his death in Norwalk on October 15, 1940, left a net estate of $1,973,770, it was disclosed with the filing of an estate tax appraisal yesterday.

He left bequests of $100,000 each to his widow, Elizabeth Hunger Brush, of South Norwalk, Conn., and a brother, George S. Brush of Brookline, Mass. Bequests of $50,000 each were left to Donald G. Miller of Larchmont, N. Y.; a nephew, George S. Brush, Jr., of Yonkers, N. Y., and Mlle. Chiqueta Wilhelmy of New York city. Three per cent of the residuary estate goes to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Legion Auxiliary Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary will be held in the rooms on West O'Reilly street, Friday, November 20, at 8 o'clock. The president, Mrs. Culver Ten Broeck, will preside. This is the first meeting over which the new officers will have complete control. Demands such as we have never had before are coming up daily and we need the help of every member. Reports from the Albany conference will be given. "Empire State News" has a new editor, Ida Ashby. Its appearance has been changed and its size enlarged. This year it will carry outlines of the work for each committee instead of having separate bulletins issued. This will be a great saving and will keep us up to date on all issues. Dues are payable at anytime now. The Third District Membership Chairman, Mrs. Stanley Matthews, is one of our members; therefore we must not lag.

Women's Group Meets

A regular monthly meeting of the Women's Group of the Congregation of Agudas Achim will be held Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the social hall. All members are urged to attend as matters of importance will be discussed. A social hour will follow.

The eating of beans serves a double purpose these days: they are low in cost and high in food value. Combined or served with milk and eggs, they take the place of meat. Fire Destroys Frame Building

Schoonmaker Property Is Lost in Blaze

Fire, of unknown origin, destroyed a frame building owned by Contractor Lyman T. Schoonmaker, just outside the city line on Lucas avenue extension, at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. The building contained considerable building materials and equipment, including a truck and an automobile.

The building stood between a garage and a barn, and the wind carried some of the sparks to the roof of the barn, which was damaged slightly.

Owing to the fact that the building stood several hundred feet outside the city line it was necessary to use long stretches of hose and Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said that to increase the pressure two pumps were employed.

The fire had gained such headway before it was discovered that the fire department was unable to save it from destruction. Mr. Schoonmaker had been in the building about an hour before the fire broke out and at that time there was no evidence of any fire.

Chimney Loss

CHIMNEY loss is identified as such because it is the loss of heat up the chimney. Little attention is paid to it because it is in the form of heated gas which is impossible to see. This chimney loss amounts to from 10 to 20 per cent and sometimes more in inefficient furnace operation and is usually indicated by an overheated smokepipe.

Here are some of the causes of and remedies for chimney loss: No Turn Damper — Without this baffle in the smoke pipe, the heated gases do not stay long enough inside the furnace to give up their heat and as a result they flow up into the chimney.

Sectional View Side View
Turn Damper in Smoke Pipe

Turn Damper Located in Wrong Place—If the turn damper is located on the chimney side of the check damper, it is automatically open too wide. Always place the turn damper on the boiler side.

Cracks Around Doors — Loose fitting or warped doors will pull cold air into the furnace, diluting the hot gases. All doors should fit tightly.

Size of Coal Too Large — Too large a size of coal forms too large air spaces between the coal particles. The air used for combustion rushes through too rapidly, carrying useful heat away with it.

Fuel Beds Too Thin—Thin fuel beds permit the air to pass through too quickly, wiping away heat as it does so. (14)

Sheffield Farms Hearing Continues at Cobleskill

Cobleskill, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—The hearing of the Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., facing charges of dominating the Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc., and thereby engaging in unfair competitive practices, continues today.

Dr. K. A. Shaul, Cobleskill, president of the Schoharie County Cooperative Dairies, Inc., first witness at the reopening of the hearing yesterday, told Andrew Duval, Federal Trade Commission trial examiner, the Sheffield Farms paid the cooperative direct for their milk.

Dr. Shaul testified that the farms sent milk checks direct to producer members of the cooperative and that the farms checked milk weights and made the tests, rather than the cooperative.

The hearing resumed here after an adjournment since October 14 at Syracuse. The Eastern Cooperative claims 8,000 members in New York, Vermont and Pennsylvania.

Prince Ucon Objected To Removing His Religion

A man who gave his name as Prince Ucon and his address as Wash, Calif., was booked at the Ulster county jail Monday evening for a five days' stay, that sentence having been imposed by Justice Walter Seaman on a public intoxication charge. He and Morris Peterson, 27, of Marlborough, who received the same sentence, were arrested at Highland by Sergeant E. J. Hulse of the State Police Peterson being charged with disorderly conduct.

According to the booking the Prince was born in North Africa, is a Mohammedan, has a college education and is by profession a "book writer." He said that he was a naturalized citizen and admitted 48 previous arrests.

The prince objected strenuously when Night Jailer Lyman Ellsworth insisted on his removing a long turban which he wore. He finally did so, objecting that he was being made to "remove his religion," but lost no time in replacing it as soon as possible.

FAT SALVAGE

The fat salvage campaign is not one that will run a week or a month but for the duration of the war.

What are you doing to keep the homemakers of your community alive to the continued need for saving waste kitchen fats?

Waste kitchen fats are in the spotlight. This country, which never fully realized its importance to peacetime life and progress, must now learn to think of it as a basic, indispensable material in war.

So homemakers "Get in the Scrap, Save Waste Fat." The campaign for salvaging of waste fats is lagging. Are we falling down on a job given to us to do? You are not selling our country short, are you? Well, are you? Have you made use of every little bit of meat drippings, meat scraps and oils? Honestly, have you saved fats that you cannot use at home and taken them to your butcher?

Sure, it's a piddling job. No medals are being awarded. No over time is being paid. No one may even thank you for your efforts. But whose war is this? It doesn't make any difference how the job is done just so we go to work or do what is asked of us.

To you it means only a little of your time and effort. Won't you start saving waste kitchen fats today?

Brooklyn Hears Talk Of Quitting New York

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Shades of 1860! There is talk of secession—in Brooklyn.

Assemblyman Fred G. Moritt (Dem.) recommended yesterday that the borough of baseball and baby carriages secede from the city of New York and become a "local autonomy."

"We", he told 200 residents of his home district yesterday, "are the stepchild of Manhattan. There are too many homes boarded up and factories closed in Brooklyn."

He told his listeners to think it over and that if they felt the same way about it, he would take the matter up at the state legislature.

Wounded Deer Is Sought

Investigating a report by DeForest Bishop that a wounded deer had been seen on Route 209, near the Kripplebush road intersection, Inspector Fred DeWitt of the Conservation Department was told that the animal was last seen making its way across the fields. He was unable to find any trace of it last night. This morning Game Protector Gillen went out to make a further search for the animal.

Draftees Wave Goodbye at Station

can reconnaissance planes patrolled the desert without encountering the enemy. British reports also suggested that Field Marshal Rommel's withdrawal had outdistanced the British Eighth Army in pursuit across the hump of Cirenaica.

Military sources in London said that what was left of Rommel's force had been able to delay pursuit enough by rear guard action and mines to prevent General Montgomery from delivering the coupe de grace.

Reports that the Germans had landed 12-ton tanks by air in Tunisia suggested to London observers that the first of two newly organized Nazi panzer airborne divisions were being thrown into the Tunisian test. One of these divisions numbers some 7,500 fighting troops, 2,500 service troops, and more than 200 tanks.

In the air and, to a lesser extent, at sea the battle already was joined as Malta-based planes of the R. A. F. continued to batter at the Axis-held airport near Tunis, but a spokesman at Allied headquarters in North Africa said last night reports of fighting between Allied and Axis troops at Bizerte were premature.

Both Radio Morocco, in Allied controlled Morocco, and Axis stations had reported contact between the opposing forces, readying for a clash which will determine the success of the Allied operation in North Africa and probably settle the future of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's bedraggled Africa Corps, retreating westward in the Libyan desert.

The London Daily Express also said the British and American troops in Tunisia were "reported to be fighting a fierce battle with the Germans near Tunis," but there was no confirmation for the report.

Certain it was that the clash could not be long delayed with the Allied forces moving steadily toward the disputed area between Tunis and Bizerte and the Axis showing no abatement in preparations for the battle.

French forces in Tunisia already were fighting the Germans and Italians. The American consul at Tunis, who managed to make his way out of the Axis-held city and reach Algeria, said that French troops near Tunis had thrown back German patrols and "the French population is eagerly awaiting the arrival of the Americans."

The consul added that "the large Italian settlement is frightened to death."

French troops apparently were joining the British and American columns speeding to battle as they passed through the Tunisian countryside, a communique from Allied headquarters reporting that "small French military units have begun to cooperate with the eastern and center task forces."

At Oran, a French force joined United States troops at their Algerian stations, the communique said.

While the activities at sea were clouded in secrecy, the British navy unquestionably was contesting any Axis effort to reinforce the Nazi garrisons in Tunisia by sea and a communique said "the Royal Navy maintains control of the western Mediterranean and its approaches."

"This naval force has sustained losses," the communique added, "but these have been small in proportion to the size of operations and casualties on the whole have been light."

The capture of the officer and crew of an Axis submarine sunk off the North African coast was reported.

The American consul at Tunis on arriving in Algeria said he believed the Germans and Italians were trying to keep the ports of Tunis and Bizerte open to support Marshal Rommel's retreating forces, last reported in the neighborhood of El Agheila, Libya, some 400 miles from his main base at Tripoli.

Christmas Bonuses Can Be Given Out

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP).—You still get (or give) that traditional Christmas bonus, and Federal approval isn't necessary.

But note that it must be traditional! In other words, this is not the year to start a bonus custom, just because business is good. It is not the year to increase it, either. Of course, if bonuses have been based on a percentage of salary, and the salary has increased, then the amount of bonus also increases, but not the percentage. But if the bonus has been a fixed amount, it cannot be increased above the sum given in the last bonus year.

Mrs. Tierney Is Burned

While attempting to remove a parcel from a closet in the kitchen of her home, 6 Hudson street, at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, Mrs. Rose Tierney was burned slightly about the face and hands in a fire that did considerable damage to the kitchen. According to the fire department an electric iron had been left plugged in and had ignited the ironing board, the fire communicating to the floor and walls.

Two Contingents Are Sent to Army Induction, Camp

morning the crowd was swelled by hundreds of others who had gathered to bid good bye to the boys leaving for Camp Upton.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy served as grand marshal of the parade which was headed by the Sons of the Legion Drum Corps, Mayor William F. Edelmuth, a large number of army and navy men already in service and home on furloughs, members of Kingston Post of the American Legion, and of Joyce Schirick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. There were also squads of police and firemen in the parade.

Hundreds View Parade

The sidewalks on Broadway from the draft office in the central post office building to the West Shore railroad was lined by hundreds of relatives and friends of the boys who left for camp, while at the railroad station hundreds of others had assembled for their last glimpse of the boys as the train pulled out at noon.

Bringing up the rear of the parade this morning were the 88 men and clinging to their arms and marching with them in the parade were their mothers, wives and sweethearts.

Each member of the contingent was presented with a package containing candy, chewing gum and cigarettes by the mayor's committee to arrange gifts for the boys leaving for camp. The gifts were distributed by a group of Senior Girl Scouts.

Chief of Police Charles Phinney had detailed several policemen to serve as traffic officers and they directed traffic on Broadway while the parade was forming and during the march to the railroad station.

The squad of police in the parade was in charge of Captain James V. Simpson, while the platoon of firemen was led by Deputy Fire Chief Fred M. Leverich and Deputy Fire Chief Harold Sanford.

This was the first time since our country entered the second world war that two contingents have been sent away on the same day.

Since the first of the month all men inducted into the U. S. Army are granted but one week's furlough, instead of the usual two weeks.

Three Are Indicted

Detroit, Nov. 17 (AP)—Two priests of the Rumanian Orthodox Church, one of whom investigators said had sought to arrange entrance into the United States for former King Carol and Magda Lupescu, were indicted along with an editor of Rumanian publications by a Federal Grand Jury today on charges of espionage.

Germany is trying to increase the yield of potato plants by treating seed potatoes with natural gas or ethylene.

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Stocks generally ignored the good war news today although scattered market leaders managed to recover fractions on Monday's losses.

Advances were the rule at the start. Dealings soon dwindled, however, and many issues backed away from the best. Near the fourth hour trends were slightly uneven.

Brokers appeared disappointed that the smashing U. S. naval defeat of the Japanese in the Solomons did not touch off more of a rally. Secretary Knox's warning that the latest victory was not decisive served to restrain some buyers. Light tax selling persisted as a handicap.

Dollar loans of captive European countries continued their rise. Commodities were uneven.

Among stocks U. S. Rubber Preferred touched a new year's top. Supported at intervals were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Great Northern, International Telephone, Westinghouse, United Aircraft and International Harvester. Occasional losers included Chrysler, Baltimore & Ohio, Western Union, Anaconda, American Can, Union Carbide, Goodyear, Dow Chemical and du Pont.

In a spotty curb resistance was shown by Humble Oil, Pantepec, Cities Service and Wright Hargreaves. On the offside at Times were American Cyanamid "B", Gulf Oil, Great Atlantic & Pacific and Pennroad.

2 More Ranking Naval Officers Killed in Action

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Rear Admiral Norman Scott of Kirkland, Mo., 53, and Captain Casin Young, 48, of Coronada, Calif., were killed in the furious night naval battle in the Solomon Islands on November 13, the Navy Department announced today.

Rear Admiral Scott was in command of a naval unit in the engagement and Captain Young, holder of the medal of honor for heroism at Pearl Harbor December 7, was commander of Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan's flagship. The death of Callaghan was reported by the navy yesterday shortly before announcement that American naval forces had scored a major victory over the Japanese armada.

Rear Admiral Scott, a native of Indianapolis, usually made his home at 135 West Bodley avenue, Kirkland.

He had been in command of a naval unit at sea since June of this year.

Captain Young, a native of Washington, D. C., had made his home at 560 B avenue, Coronado. His home address prior to that, the navy said, was 6401 Overbrook avenue, Philadelphia.

The best way to make sure that the child will like all vegetables when he grows up is to let him know their flavors when he is young.

Correction Is Made

The Albany avenue Socony Service Station, which has been designated by the Kingston ration board as one of the official inspection stations and registration points for the tire and gas rationing on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, is located at 550 Albany avenue and not 124 Albany avenue as previously reported in the list supplied by the ration board.

Shortage of wagon and harness makers and horseshoeing facilities is impeding increased use of horse-drawn vehicles, the Department of Commerce says.
